Mr. Edward Holden, Assistant Superintendent of the Cornes & Beers farm, met with quite a severe accident, day before yesterday. He was engaged in drawing the tubing from one of the wells, when by some means a small accumulation of gas from the well caught fire and exploded, burning one of his arms from the hand up to the elbow in a terrible manner, literally exposing the cords in some places. It will be many weeks before he can use his hand and arm again.

Dr. J. E. Hievely, who has been absent to his home in Williamsport for a few days past, returned home last night, and is now ready to do any and all jobs of dentistry that may be entrusted to his care. The Dr. does extra good work, and those having troublesome teeth should pay him a call.

The McCray House changed hands again this morning, Mr. Wm. R. Spear retiring, and Mr. E. P. Crooks succeeding him.—Mr. Crooks is an old resident of this place, and will do his level best to make that hotel first class in every respect.

Bro. Wait, O'Brien and Samuels, "went a fishing" for trout, on Wyckel Run, yesterday afternoon. The "bait" filled a good sized basket when they started. When they arrived home the basket was empty, and yet—we have not received that mess of trout.

Mr. John C. Bump, has purchased the interest of H. H. Warner in the Columbia Farm store, and will hereafter conduct the business. Mr. B. always keeps on hand a complete stock of groceries and provisions suitable to the wants of the people of that farm, "which the same" he sells at a trifle above New York prices. The citizens of Columbia should extend him a liberal patronage.

Local matters are scarce to-day.

If anything could account for Mr. Robert Hart, of Utica, N. Y. emerging from the second story of his boarding-house without going through the formality of the stairs, it was the presence of four of his wives.

We have laughed heartily of the plan the New York Standard adopted to save a five column article it had in type upon the life of James Gordon Bennett. The subject of the sketch has been very sick, and reports made it out that his end was near. It is a very common practice for newspapers, on hearing of the dangerous illness of a prominent personage, to prepare and put in type a sketch of the life of the sick person, holding it ready for insertion the very moment death takes place. Usually these biographies are not very long, and the failure of the serious loss. But in this case the biography was quite extended, and the labor in getting it up had been great, and it would be a real pity to lose its insertion.—Bennett was reported out of danger, and so the Standard comes out and mentions his illness and the fact that article on his life had been prepared, but that it had been held long on account of Bennett's illness, but now that he was convalescent there was no further occasion to delay its appearance. That is the shrewdest editorial dodge we have seen in many a day.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Fleisher's Renovating Mixture for washing and scrubbing purposes. This mixture is just the thing needed by housekeepers, and cannot help but become popular.

Charlie Isham, of Titusville, the well known jeweller, is in town to-day. He reports business good at that point. His visits, although like angels few and far between, are none the less welcome.

Work has commenced on the new machine shops of the A. & G. W. R. R., at Meadville. They are to be built on an extensive scale.

Titusville wants several military companies.

Lots of passengers got left last night at all the stations on the Oil Creek Road, in consequence of the change in the timetable. A good deal of swear was the result. Instead of which they should take the papers.

James Gordon Bennett, editor of the New York Herald, is dead. He was aged seventy-eight years.

The weather is decidedly cool to-day after the shower.

The Williamsport Sun says a party from Oil City is making explorations on the property of Dr. John Nervius, in Armstrong township, Lycoming county, with a view to purchasing and opening a quarry of black marble.

Mr. Welton's new well on the Triumph tract is showing up nicely to-day. It promises to be a fifteen or twenty barrel well. He intends to put down another new one on the same lease.—[Tidoute Commercial.

"Dolly Varden" are all the rage. A little blonde friend of our devil's has one of them, and when she wears it her appearance is so much like a flower garden that she has to hire a small boy, with a brush, to keep the bees away.

Some excitement exists in Western Iowa and in parts of Kansas over the reported discovery of gold. There is no doubt that the precious metal exists in considerable quantities in both of these States—nor that it is to be found chiefly by means of the sulcol plough.

A new chemical process for restoring charred currency to a condition in which it will be perfectly recognizable, and answer every purpose of new legal-tender, has been discovered by a western chemist. It is said to be a complete success.

Mr. T. O'Donnell, of Kane City, has now eight pumping wells on the Dempsey farm—Cherrytree Run, which are yielding about 80 barrels of oil daily. He is about to sink three new ones on the same farm.

This is fame. When William Cullen Bryant was in Mexico recently, he met an American lady, who after the introduction said to a friend: "Everybody in New York knows Mr. Bryant, and they all go to hear his minstrel's sing."

OUR DIGESTION; OR MY JOLLY FRIEND'S SECRET.—We have just received from the well-known publisher of first-class Subscription Books, Geo. Maclean, a copy of his last publication, entitled "Our Digestion," by the celebrated author, Dio Lewis.—This justly popular writer and lecturer on health has done good service to humanity by his efforts to promote physical education, and we gladly welcome anything from his pen. We learn from the preface of the book before us that the author considers it his most important work, and we entirely agree with him. In fact we believe there has long been a need for just such a book as our "Jolly Friend's Secret," and feel sure that the information it contains is calculated to do great and lasting good in the community. The subjects here treated are really of vital importance, and it is passing strange that so little attention has heretofore been paid by Americans to the simplest rules for eating and drinking. Dio Lewis, who is eminently practical, inculcates the necessity of bodily exercise, of temperance in eating as well in drinking, of simplicity in diet, of proper attention to the cooking of victuals, of fresh air, of overloading and overlasted the stomach, of slow mastication of regularity in eating, and other means whereby indigestion and dyspepsia may be avoided and conquered. Three-fourths of all the sickness and unhappiness in our midst has a weak digestion for its prime cause, and dyspepsia may almost be considered a national failing. How easily this can be overcome our author clearly shows in his usual felicitous, charity, home-like style. The doctor talks right to the heads and hearts of the whole people—rich and poor alike—and this is the secret of his great popularity. The simple reading of one of Dio Lewis' books will dispel a fit of "the blues." "Our Digestion" is simply invaluable, and "Our Jolly Friend's Secret," which means long life, health and strength, physical and moral, is worth many times the price asked for the volume. This book ought to supersede Buchanan's and every other "Domestic medicine" as a household work, for it shows how medicine may be disposed with, to a considerable extent, in a majority of cases. The book is issued in splendid style, and contains a striking portrait of the author, on steel, and their fine engravings. We predict for "Our Digestion" an immense sale and lasting popularity, and for the benefit of all those who may wish to secure an agency, we give the address of the publisher in full; George Maclean, 733 Sanson street, Philadelphia.

Titusville is agitated over the base ball question. It is probable that $10,000 or $15,000 will be subscribed, and a professional nine employed. Now, let the finish out the thing while they are about it. The glory of Titusville must not be suffered to wane, nor her prestige to diminish. Let her citizens come down with the necessary stamps, and employ professional eubure players who can rake in the funds from greenhorns, skilled billiardists who know how to bet on a game and win, poker players with well developed cheek, small boys well versed in the mysteries of marbles; in short, let Titusville prove herself equal to the emergency and assert her natural dignity, and finally let her match her professional nine against the Forest City Base Ball Club of Cleveland, and play for goose eggs and white-wash brushes. [Tidoute Journal.

A man out west undertook to play with a lion at the menagerie the other day. He says he finds it mighty hard to write with his left hand, but that he misses his eye more than anything else. His nose was always a trouble to him.

Composite ships with an iron frame and wooden planking are coming into favor on the lakes.

It is said that sunstroke is due to the action of light upon the brain, exerted through the eye, and not, as generally believed, to an elevation of temperature; and it is asserted that if the eye be properly shaded from the glare of the sun, any extra or unusual precaution in the way of protecting the head or back may be dispensed with.

A Burlington, Iowa, baby is immortalized by the following epitaph:

Beneath this stone our baby lays,
He neither cries nor hollers;
He lived just one and twenty days,
And cost us forty dollars.

A man in Lansing, Michigan, has a crow that associates with the hens, and crows like a healthy rooster. Who has more caws to crow than a crow?

Trouting.

Off before your mother
Fairly knows your'e out,
Goodness! ain't it jolly
Tramping after trout.

Tripping over mosses,
Slipping over stones,
Creeping through morasses,
Chilled through blood and bones,

Dipping into spring-holes,
Ripping something out,
Goodness! but it's pleasant,
Whipping after trout.

Water, cold as "blazes,"
Foms your feet about,
Catch your death of—whist, man?
Did you see that trout?

Fly him, gently, kindly—
Horse-hair is but frail,
There's a speckled beauty—
These flies never fail.

Twenty ounces surely—
Heft him if you doubt—
Silver, gold or garnets,
What can match a trout?

Slightly drops the "hackle,"
Blithely sings the stream,
Blithely burst the foam bells
Like a poet's dream.

Splash—there goes a "socker"—
Whirr! and he is out—
What school is so charming
As a school of trout?

An oil well is to be down on the Smith farm, Cowanshannock valley, recently purchased by F. Hague and C. B. Dougherty. The surface indications in the locality, are said to be very favorable, and the well will decide the question whether there is oil on the Cowanshannock or not. So down it will all haste.—[Free Press.

The House Wife's Comfort!

S. FISHER'S

Renovating Mixture,

FOR WASHING & SCRUBBING PURPOSES.

It washes clean, and gives a very clear and beautiful appearance to the fabric, and will set the color in calicoes. For cleaning grease spots out of carpets, broad cloths, washing linen and cotton goods, and for scrubbing it cannot be surpassed. It saves a large amount of labor, and does away with scouring brushes. It does not injure the finest texture, for the simple reason that its affinity is for grease or oil, changing them to soap, and thus loosening any substance with which they may be combined. It is instant death to bed bugs.

Having tried Fisher's Mixture I take pleasure in recommending it to housekeepers as being everything that is claimed for it. S. KEYNOLD.
