Odd Fellows Celebration.

The second anniversary of the institution of the Petroleum Centre Lodge, No. 715, I. O. of O. F., will be celebrated at Petroleum Centre on Monday, June 10th. The Rev.
Mr. O'Neil, pastor of the Centre street M.
E. Church, of Oil City, will deliver an address on the occasion, and from the well known ability of the gentleman an eloquent oration may be expected. An invitation to attend the celebration has been extended to Oil City and Corplanter Lodges, of Oil City, and other lodges, which has been accepted. All individual members of the Order are invited to attend. Permission has been granted for the Lodges to appear in regalia. The procession will start from the hall of Petroleum Centre Lodge, soon after the arrival of the 10:26 a. m. train from Oil City. The Columbia cornet and string bands, and also a quartette of vocal musicians will be in attendance.

Road Commissioner McHugh is now engaged in the good work of renovating the roads on the Boyd and adjoining farms. It is well known that the roads in this section have not been placed in thorough repair for years, the money raised here by tax, and which ought to have been expended on our roads, having been applied towards repairing the roads in other sections of the township. The present year this evil has been remedied, "which the same" is mainly due to Mr. McHugh, and for which he is justly entitled to the thanks of the tax payers and citizens of Petroleum Centre.

In one point of our report of the arrest of the horse thief, Jones, yesterday, we were in error in stating that the prisoner was discharged on the suit brought by Levi for obtaining goods under false pretences. Justice Reynolds informs us that the prisoner was held in the sum of $300 to answer.

Immediately after the arrest of Jones, he was searched by the officers and $10 in currency and a through ticket and return from Rouseville to New York, taken from his person and placed in the hands of Justice Reynolds. Last night Mr. R. gave the money and ticket to Mr. Phillips, of Rouse-ville, he being the unwitting purchaser of the horse, and to whom the money and ticket rightfully belonged.

There are at present nine wells pumping ing on the Corns & Beers farm, which average thirty barrels per day. Mr. Frank Holden, the gentlemanly Superintendent of the farm, informs us that it is the intention of the company to commence the work of drilling several new wells before long.

The habit of playing ball on the main streets should be abolished. But a night or two since a ball thrown with great force, passed within an inch of the face of a lady who was walking along Main street. Had the ball struck her undoubtedly it would have inflicted serious injury. Let the practice be stopped.

"Carry the news to Mary," was beautifully rendered, at Cliff. Robson's Cay Saloon, night before last, by an experienced minstrel performer. At the conclusion of Carncross & Dixie's performance, this evening, this wonderful musician will favor the boys with that pathetic song—"She's a Siskie wild rose."

It is reported that Messrs. Needie & Crosby, of Jamestown, New York, have bought the Tidoute Journal and will shortly take possession and "push things." tom."

Grant and Wilson
Nominated.

By a special telegram from Philadelphia, we learn that the Republican National Convention have nominated Ulysses S. Grant, of Illinois, for President, and Henry Wilson, of Mass., for Vice President.]

MINSTRELS.—This evening, Carncross & Dixie's renowned Philadelphia minstrel troupe, will give one entertainment only, at Sobel's Opera House. The two gentlemen comprising the firm are well known to many in this vicinity, who also know full well that Carncross & Dixie's Minstrels are noted for the superiority of their performances in general, the originality of their humor, the excellence of their quartette, and their freedom from ought that would offend. As it is some time since our citizens have been favored with an entertainment of any sort, we hope a large audience will welcome the favorites to-night. The programme is new varied and excellent throughout, and well worth the price of admission. We advise all who attend to put a few extra stitches in their buttons else they will burst them off by the hearty laughter which will surely be provoked by Carncross & Dixie's minstrels.

Woman triumphed in the Episcopal Convention for the Diocese of Kentucky the other day. The matter came up on an amended canon prescribing who shall have a vote in parish meeting. A fearful conservative old fogy Reverend attempted to insert the word "male" in the canon so that women who are pew holders should be excluded from voting. The convention refused so to amend, but it was defeated by a mere scratch. The Reverend who introduced the amendment made a speech against woman suffrage, and he attempted to bring in the Bible as authority, claiming, also allowing women to vote in parish meetings is mischievous. What would become of the churches were it not for the women? What would ministers do were they deprived of the aid women give them? A minister should be ashamed of himself to attempt to exclude women pew holders from voting.— He should have left that motion to be made by some crusty old bachelor who cannot appreciate the value of woman in her efforts to make this world better. There is no reason why women should be excluded from vestries, or boards of trustees, or from any official position in a church. Churches lean upon the women for very existence, then why not allow women a voice in all that pertains to the government of religious bodies?

An English paper reports the case of a mother causing her boy to be arrested and put in prison for attempting to commit suicide by jumping out of a window. The boy was an undutiful son, and the mother testified she had often beaten him until he was black and blue but it did no good, so she wished the authorities to take him in hand.

If that mother had knocked her son down a few times with an ax heave, or other similar rod of correction, it might have made him behave, the probabilities surely are that he never would have been obliged to jump from a window to end his troubles.— Painting children black and blue with a broomstick may be a style of art conducive to obedience, but that depends upon the number of coats of coloring put on, and whether one is applied before the other has struck in.

producing wells, giving a total of 700 barrels. The first dry hole is yet to be bored.

THE NEW COUNTERFEIT FIFTY-CENT NOTE.—The following are some of the points of difference between the new counterfeit fifty-cent note and the genuine. The head of Stanton has a different expression, the beard harsh and stiff, the background on the right of the head irregular and scratchy. Under some of the letters, and but four in the genuine. In the word "United States" the blank spaces between the body of the letters and the ruled shade are irregular and generally narrower than the genuine, which are of uniform width.— On the back of the counterfeit the hair lines forming the turns at the top (and bottom) of the italic letters are heavy; on the genuine they are light and delicate. The red seal also differs materially from the genuine in the forms of the letters, the dots on the shield, the shade to the letters, which are irregular and on both sides of the letters, and the ruled lines forming the background to the shield. The fibre paper on which the genuine notes are printed has been imitated by scratchy lines engraved on the counterfeit plate. The points noted are some of the most prominent, and by comparing with a genuine note can be readily seen. On examination with a glass it will be seen that the entire work differs from the genuine. The general appearance of the note, with the exception of the head of Stanton, might deceive those who do not examine closely the money they receive.

SOMETHING ABOUT BABIES.—Talk about babies! We always loved a baby—not any of your sour, suspicious, squalling specimens, but a bright, rosy, dimpled thing, full of fun and frolic, running over with glee and of such a confiding, unsuspecting disposition as not to refuse to go to anybody.
What can be more refreshing in this busy, tiresome world than an occasional romp with a baby? A jetting down as it were of chord of mind until it vibrates in unison with a baby's, and then holding a confidential chat, in real baby vernacular.— Then to have a couple of white chubby arms thrown about your neck, and a pair of rosy lips, fresh as rosebuds ere the dews have left them, presented for a kiss. The man who can think of it without a softening of the heart and a watering of the month, is no better than the swine before whom the pearls are cast, and we hope he may never be blest with a baby—or if he is, let him be a kicking pugilistic baby one skilled in the art of gouging, who takes delight in running his thumb into your eye, and is always trying to obtain a lock of your hair by a more summary and unceremonious process than clipping.

CURIOUS.—One of the curious phases in the life of an editor, is the kind of correspondence he receives. For instance he sends out several hundred bills to his patrons, and, of course, expects a prompt response. But of the pumber there are about fifty who respond cheerfully and promptly, and give him good words of encouragement—perhaps will show their appreciation of his labors by sending him another subscriber. These are the true friends of the paper. Next comes a batch who don't think they are in arrears, but would trouble the editor to make out a statement of their account. Next comes a few, who want the paper stopped, without condescending to ask whether their bill is large or small, not caring whether they pay or not, and falling to use some harsh expression, as though they were insulted by being asked to pay what was justly due, doubtless thinking that a printer is not of much account, and not worth attending to. Last, but not least, and really the lowest of the lot, is that class of readers who never think of paying, and though you may write and write and weary of sending bills, these incline to respond, and never we are sure think of paying. May the good Lord deliver us from such.

It washes clean, and gives a very clear and beau-carpets, broad cloths, washing linen and cotton goods, and for scrubbing it cannot be surpassed.

It saves a large amount of labor, and does away

It does not injure the finest texture, for the sim-
