We are informed that an article on "Co-operation," which appeared in the Record a day or two since, was read before the Petroleum Producer's Council, at Oil City, yesterday, and commented on very harshly, and we are disposed to think ungenerally. Certain members of that honorable body denounced the paper as having "sold out to the Refiner's Combination," "gone over to the traitors," &c.

We deny the allegation as utterly groundless and false. The Record has not sold out to the Refiner's Combination; has opposed that and all other combinations that tend in the least to injure the producing interest and will continue to oppose all such rings or combinations to the bitter end; is and always has during its seven years of existence an earnest advocate of the great oil interests of Pennsylvania, and further, is not in the market for sale when the price is that of blood, which appears to be that offered by the Refiner's Combination, otherwise the So. Imp. Co.

In which statements every producer in this and the surrounding districts will bear us out. When any such reflection is made on our honor and integrity, we feel bound to resent it, and would respectfully refer the honorable gentlemen of the Petroleum Producer's Council to the files of this paper for proof of what we assert.

"Oh wad the power some gifte gie us, do."

Tidonts and Fagnadas, it is understood, start up their wells on Monday next, the thirty days for which they shut down expiring on that day. What effect this will have on the balance of the region cannot be explained as yet, although it is understood the different districts propose to hold on until their time expires.

Our townsman, Mr. J. W. Irwin, left this morning for a trip to St. Paul, Minn., and other points in the West. We wish him a pleasant trip and safe return home.

The remains of antiquity are found in America from Mexico to the Lakes. Who these rude and curious people, the mound builders of the valley of the Mississippi and Ohio were, is an unsolved problem. According to the Maine Historical Society, traces of the Northmen—whether of Liefson of Eric the Red, or of Biorn, the son of Herolf, or of later settlers is undetermined—have been found in that state. Whence came the city building Indians of New Mexico, and the older Aztec civilization? Here are secrets of old days for the antiquarian to puzzle his brain over. And every day is adding something new. The latest has reference to a number of ancient copper mines that have been discovered on Isle Royal, in Lake Superior. On authority of the Duluth Herald, shafts of considerable depth, filled up by the accumulated debris of ages, are being opened, and in penetrating to a distance of sixty feet, tools of wondrous workmanship have been found, together with charcoal remains, which mark this as the point where skilled artisans formed from copper tools whose temper and durability would astonish ingenious makers of such things of the present age. Hammers and chisels seem to have been the principal implements for working this mine, and they, together with fire, were used to reduce the ore to a condition which rendered its removal in detail easy. Finely tempered knife blades have been picked out of the pit, and granite hammers.

Two twelve barrel tanks located on the bank of Oil Creek, on the Egbert farm, were torn down yesterday, by order of Mr. Paist, Superintendent of the Maple Shade Oil Company. Those two old tanks were among the oldest landmarks of the place, having been erected in 1864, at the time when the famous Coquette well was pouring out the precious fluid at the rate of 1,500 barrels daily, to the wonderment of thousands of spectators. Other wells on that farm were also pouring out petroleum at a lively rate, the whole forming a tale that would equal that of the fairies almost. Another phase of the excitement of those days was the loading of the Oil Creek barges with oil from those same old tanks. The Creek lined with boats; the boatmen, never proverbial for their piety, swearing blue streaks at the horses, with an occasional "bit of a knock down" for a change; the crowds of greasers worshipping at the shrine of the oily god; the different phases of humanity to be seen, and the various exciting scenes consequent on the striking of oil, would make a picture both strange and startling, and one that will never be witnessed again in any country. The two old tanks have departed from our midst, and may they rest sweetly in grease.

The following officers of Petroleum Centre Lodge No. 715, I. O. of O. F., were installed, last evening, by District Deputy Grand Master W. C. Roem, of Franklin, for the current term:

N. G., B. Allen.
V. G., E. O'Flaherty.
Ass't Sec'y, S. H. Kooker.
M. G.'s appointments—
R. S., J. E. Hartman;
L. S., F. Hyde.
B. W., J. Waddell.
J. W., A. Duck.
C., C. Buckley.
E. S., J. E. Cable.
L. S., J. Williams.
O. G., W. Britton.
I. G., Jas. McNamara.
Y. G.'s appointments—
R. S., J. Reeves.
L. S., F. R. Greenwell.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies the newly elected officers returned their thanks to the brothers of the Lodge for the honor conferred upon them in neat and appropriate speeches. At the conclusion of the session the larger portion of the members adjourned to Capt. Smith's oyster saloon and enjoyed an oyster supper gotten up in his best style. The affair was a very pleasant one.

A fond father in Rochester, says the Courier, had suspected his daughter of having stolen moonlight walks with a lover whom he had refused her seeing, and, in coming home the other night at a late hour, thought he saw his daughter's arm linked with the hated lover's. The indignant papa took the young man by the collar, and was giving him a good shaking, when he found he had got hold of the wrong man, and soon learned that the parties were a highly respectable married couple, who were coming home from prayer meeting.

One of the saddest sights in this season of the year is a young man who has waited outside the church on an evening until he is chilled through only to see his girl walk off with some rascal who has been inside all the time toasting his sinful shins at the stove.

"This is the rock of ages," said the father, after rocking two hours, and the baby being still awake.

The Dead Beat System, which the workmen of this region have set their foot upon, effects all branches of trade. An impostor who has neither money nor property, will take a lease, put on a great deal of style, and undertake to sink an oil well—Workmen are employed and put off with promises until the well is sunk and tubed, while hardware supplies are obtained in the same way. If the well proves good the stylish gentleman can in a short time pay all bills. If it proves worthless in a manner, the workmen and hardware men can seize it and obtain the amount of their bill therefrom as far as possible. Individual who are too mean to work, bare, by managing things thus, occasionally made big strikes and secured fortunes at the expense and risk of workmen and hardware dealers. Now, according to our way of thinking, a well sunk in this manner should be the property of the men who do the work and furnish the supplies. The workmen, we are pleased to know, have taken the proper step to guard against such impositions in the future by demanding their pay at the expiration of every two weeks.—Where they suspect the persons with whom they contract to be impostors, it might be well to go a step further, and before commencing work demand security for their pay when it becomes due. They will thus guard against the possibility of being beat out of compensation for even two weeks' labor.—[Ollman's Journal.]

The ties are laid to Titusville on the Warren & Venango R. R. The iron will be laid within about three weeks. The road is now running from Dunkirk to Irvineton, and is carrying largely of freight, including coal and oil. Coal that has formerly been shipped to Dunkirk over the Cross-Cut road will hereafter pass over the Dunkirk & Warren—eleven car loads went over Monday, the first of any quantity.—Twenty-two car loads of freight went over in one train and drawn by one engine—not more than ten of which could be carried over by the Cross Cut by one engine. [Warren Ledger.]

Mr. George Coolbroth, ex private of Company A, Fifth Maine Volunteers, has relinquished his pension. He gives the following reason for sacrifice: "I am a firm believer in the immediate return of our Saviour to earth; I have felt condemned for some time for taking this money, it being the price of blood; therefore you will please erase my name from the pension list." That fellow had better ease his conscience by the reflection that he never hit anybody, and therefore his pension is not the price of blood.

People are getting resolute enough in these days to insist upon their rights even against powerful corporations. The latest judicial decisions of special interest to passengers on railroad cars has just been rendered at Norwich, Connecticut. A gentleman and his wife were injured in getting off a train at that place because it did not stop long enough to allow the passengers to alight in safety, and they have obtained a verdict for $1,800.

A large, flat buoy, with the figure four painted on the side, is said to have been seen apparently moored in the Gulf Stream about ten miles west-by-north from Belmont. The rushing of the stream renders it difficult for persons to approach the buoy, which is supposed to be the missing one to which the West India cable is attached.

Some English capitalists have purchased, with the intention of at once fully developing, one of the richest lead mines in the country, known as the Karrick lode, situated in West Dubuque, Iowa, and which, for want of sufficient funds to develop it, has been lying idle many years.

Rain is badly needed in West Tennessee and the western portion of Kentucky. For the lack of it streams are going dry, and wells and springs and cisterns giving out.—Much difficulty is now experienced in obtaining drinking water. As the crops, with perhaps some exceptions, have already been made, the drought will not seriously affect them.

"Throw physic to the dogs" when the patient is given over to die, and administered in mild doses and she will recover. At least this was the case in Indiana, recently, when a young attorney was married to a lady who was supposed to be in her last illness, but so salutary was the effect of the marriage that instead of dying she rapidly recovered, and is now able to be out.

A story is told of a Davenport boy who two years ago was given ten cents, which he invested in matches, and sold at retail, and reinvested the proceeds in trade, and to-day is worth one thousand one hundred and fifty dollars, all made in legitimate trade from that ten cents.

SCOTCH HYMN.

There are blossoms that have budded,
Been blighted 't the cauld,
An' lammies that has perished,
Because they left the fauld;
But cover ye in aenough His wings
Wha died upon the tree,
An' gather in his bosom
Helpless weans like you and me.

In the world there's tribulation,
In the world there is wae;
But the world it is bonnie,
For our Father made it see;
Then brighten up your armor,
An' be happy as ye gang,
Though your sky be often clouded,
It winna be for lang.

Love One Another.

"Love one another," were the last words of the dying statesman of Auburn. The members of his family and the servants of his household were gathered around his death bed, to hear the last words of their dying friend and protector. "Love one another," he said, and then fell asleep and woke no more.

Seward's whole life was a grand illustration of "man's humanity to man." He loved the human race, and devoted his best talents and energies to the lifting up the lowly, to the freeing of the enslaved, to the protection of the oppressed, to the advancement of the best interests of the nation and mankind. In death as in life, his great soul taught the precious lesson of forbearance, mercy and charity which the Divine Master himself labored to impress upon His followers: "Love one another."
It is the lesson of peace and good will.—It is the sweet burden of the songs of the angels in heaven. It is the principle of truth brotherhood and a true life. The whole world would be the happier by its universal observance. By it families would be more perfect in unity; man dealing with his fellow man would be nobler and better, nations in their intercourse with nations would be glorified by it; rulers in their relations with their subjects would be greater and more powerful by it, universal mankind would become nobler in spirit and in achievement by virtue of it.
Let the world, holding its listening ear to the lips of the great apostle of Freedom, Humanity and Republicanism heed his fast, eloquent god like words, and learn the grandest lesson of human wisdom, divinely inspired: "Love one another."

NOTES OF THE DAY.

There are no bees in Montana.
The less power a man has, the more he likes to use it.
An Ohio hen hatched out a mixed brood of chickness, and deliberately killed all the black ones.
An Albany minister, referring to his record of 40 years, finds fewest marriages in summer.

$10,000 is reported paid to the Mayor of Memphis by four men for running keo banks.
The temperance people of Chicago, with a view to the enforcement of the liquor law, have organized a secret smelling committee of fifty.

A Berlin physician recently tried to dis sever the bodies of two twin-girls grown together like the Siamese twins. One of the girls survived the operation and day, and the other lingered for three days.
A wild man has been seen at San Pedro Bay, Fla. He is said to be entirely covered with hair and as wild and fleet as a buck—When first seen he was feeding on wortle-berries, but as soon as made aware of the presence of a person, ran into the swamp.—It is supposed to be some fellow who deserted during the war and sought shelter in the swamp.

Says the Columbia (Tenn.) Herald, "A gentleman of this county recently ordered some negroes to cut down a tree which had been struck by lightning, but they positively refused to do so, stating that were they to cut a tree struck by lightning, the lightning would strike and kill them."

The following is the card published by the producers association of the 16th district:
The "thirty days suspension" of operations on your wells will expire on Monday, the 21st inst at either 6 o'clock p. m. or midnight, according to the time of shutting down.
This notice is given to correct the impression of some producers that the time of suspension would end on Saturday the 19th inst. This would make but twenty-eight days.

As the rest of the oil regions will carefully mark the action of the Tidonts district, producers here are earnestly requested not to give others excuse for non-fulfillment of their engagement in its strictest sense.
Per order. M. G. CHEUNG, Sec'y 16th district.

California is in trouble over her gold note currency. Despite all her bankers can do, and her newspapers exhort, it will not become popular. Greenbacks are perfectly satisfactory to the great mass of the people of the United States, and the most sensible thing the press of California can do is to abandon the gold note currency cry and advocate the immediate adoption of the fraternal greenback.
