The subscription books for the stock of the Petroleum Producers' Agency, will be closed in this district on Saturday evening next. We would call the attention of the producers to the card in another column from Messrs. Vera and Walker, Members of the Producer's Council. Let every producer who has not taken stock come out and show their hands between now and the next meeting. Talk is cheap, promises amount to nothing. Come down with the stamps and add the movement substantially. It will prove, like "casting bread upon the waters," a safe investment and a sure return

MARRIED.

PATTERSON-MILLER.—At the residence of the bride's father at Petroleum Centre, on Tuesday evening, November 12, 1872, by Rev. W. C. Burchard, Mr. W. C. Patterson, of St. Petersburg, Pa., and Miss Jennie Miller, of Petroleum Centre, Pa.

We congratulate our friend Patterson on winning the affections of one of the Centre's fairest daughters. May they have a long lease of life and a full measure of wedded bliss, in the wish of hosts of friends in this vicinity.

The newly wedded pair received the congratulations of their friends, at the house of the bride's father, our worthy Postmaster. Last evening, and left for their new home on the late train. Good luck to them is the wish of the printer.

NEW WELL.—A new well was struck on the Central farm, yesterday. We have not learned what it is yielding.

The balance of the Chicago Relief Fund, raised in this place at the time of the Chicago fire, amounting to something over $300 was sent to the relief of the Boston sufferers by the late fire, on Monday.

Subscriptions to Producer's Agency.

The attention of Directors of the Producer's Association, of Committee on Subscription, and of subscribers to the stock of the Producers' Agency is called to the following resolutions of the Producer's Council— as adopted yesterday.

The books will be closed on Saturday evening next. In the meantime, however, the lists are in the hands of the committee who will continue to receive subscriptions up to that time, and all who can, and have not yet done so, are requested to subscribe.

RESOLVED, That members of the Council are hereby directed to close and collect the subscription lists in their several Districts on Saturday next, that copies of such lists shall be furnished each District Trustee and the originals be presented by the members of the Council on Tuesday next, the 19th inst.

RESOLVED, That the Director of the Local Associations be requested to direct the immediate payment to the Trustees of the 10 per cent. required to be paid on each subscription at the time of subscribing, and that each subscriber to be required to furnish a Trustee's receipt for the payment of such ten per cent. on his subscription, before being allowed to vote upon the shares of stock subscribed by them.

For convenience in carrying out the last resolution, printed receipts in blanks will be forwarded to Trustees by the Secretary of the Producers' Council, Capt. J. E. Ray, the Trustee for the Eleventh District, will probably receive these blanks by Thursday.

J. A. VERA,
L. P. WALKER.

Members of Producers' Council.

The following resolution was brought before the Petroleum Producer's Council, yesterday, and referred to a joint committee on Refineries and statistics. The resolution is an important one:

RESOLVED, That the Committee on Refineries are hereby instructed to inquire into and report to this Council as nearly as practicable the aggregate amount of available refining capacity in operation in this country and Europe, where located, its cost and present value less the value of real estate on which it is located, whether of moderate or otherwise, the amount necessary to refine what oil the consumptive demand requires, at what points oil is now being refined with the amount at such, at what point it is most practicable to refine, the cost of buildings and of refining in each locality, and all such other information as they may be able to obtain in relation to refining and marketing refined oil, together with the amount of shale oil, or other oil refined in this country or Europe that enters into competition with the sale of petroleum here and elsewhere, the cost of producing the same, and at what price they can successfully compete with petroleum oil.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Daily Evening Telegraph, a new paper published at Oil City every evening, Sundays excepted, by I. N. Pratt, Esq. The paper is neatly printed, well gotten up typographically, and ably edited. Oil City has long stood in need of a first class evening newspaper, and the Telegraph will undoubtedly supply the want. We wish our friend Pratt abundant success in his new enterprise.

Some malicious individual purloined a bundle of goods valued at $18, from Uncle Kuhn, the well known pedlar, a night or two since. The wretch who could be mean enough to take the bread from a poor man's mouth, as in this case, deserves to be kicked to death by geese. He is known and had better return them forthwith.

Everybody likes Sweet Potatoes, especially those nice ones from New Jersey. And that reminds us, right here, that Messrs. Armstrong have just received ten barrels of the very best. Call and examine them and buy.

When you see a lady dragging eight or ten yards of skirts through the muddy street you can make up your mind that she is an heiress. Pap has either bursted a keno bank or won a fortune on the election or got rich in some other legitimate business.

A colored girl, in attempting to cross the track of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, recently, was struck by the cow catcher and thrown back upon the plot. She was found to be unhurt, and remained there quietly enjoying the ride until the next station was reached, when she jumped off and exclaimed: "Dis is just de place I wanted to come to."

A Danbury boy, whose imagination had become diseased by too close devotion to dime novels, started off one day last week to seek fame as a slayer of bears and Indians. He took all his toys, including a hand sard and a snare drum, made his little brothers and sisters an affectionate farewell, and was gone nearly two hours.

Ten Tons of Honey.

[From the San Francisco Commercial Herald.]

In Los Angeles county, on the eastern slope of the San Fernando range of mountains, and in the immediate vicinity of the Leaming Petroleum Company's oil region, there is the most wonderful collection of wild honey in existence. The hive is located in a rift, which penetrates the rock to a depth of probably 160 feet. The orifice is thirty feet long and seventeen feet wide; four passages. This rift was discovered to be the abiding place of a swarm of bees, that is represented as coming out in a nearly solid column one foot in diameter. Certain parties have endeavored to descend to the immense store of honey collected by these bees, but were invariably driven back, and one man lost his life in the effort. Others have, at the expense of much labor and money, built a scaffold one hundred and twenty five feet high, in hope of reaching a place whence they could run a drift into the rock and extract its well hoarded sweets, but finally ceased their work. Within four years the bees have added not less than fifteen feet of depth to their treasure, as ascertained by actual measurement, and it is thought that at the present time there cannot be less than eight or ten tons of honey in the rock. A man named B. Brophy lives in a cabin not far from the spot, and obtained from the melting of the honey by the sun's heat more than enough for his family requirements. All through that region immense stores of wild honey are found in trees, in the rocks, in nearly every place where the indus rucus manufactures think— for bees seem to think—that it will be secure. They consume a very small proportion, as the climate enables them to keep up operations nearly every day in the year, and flowers of some sort are always in bloom. It must be a very severe season indeed, when the little fellows are seen abroad in vast numbers busily engaged in mellifluous work.

OIL TESTS.

The alarming frequency of serious consequences following the explosion of the various burning fluids palmed off on the public as non-explosive oils, has frequently received mention in these columns, and the proper authorities have been frequently called upon to take some action to restrict or regulate the sale of these fluids. On Saturday afternoon the so-called non-explosive oil was tested in the office of the United States Steamboat inspectors in the Custom House building, Smithfield street. A measure of the fluid which caused the death of a young woman some time since was procured, and also a tin can fifteen inches in diameter. The lid of the can was then saturated with the fluid, about a teaspoonful being poured upon it, after which it was poured back into the bottle. The lid was then turned upside down and forced into the can, and after a little while the heavy gas reached the bottom of the can. Here was a tough hole, and by applying a lighted match, the gas ignited, an explosion followed, and the lid of the can, on which had been placed a four pound weight, was sent flying against the ceiling. The test was repeated several times, and in every instance an explosion followed, with similar effect. The result of the test was, on the whole, of the most startling nature. There could not have been, at any of the tests, more than a teaspoonful poured out, and except what little remained on the tin, it was all poured back. If an explosion, such as witnessed by several well known gentlemen yesterday, would take place from the gas generated in so little while, one can scarcely imagine the force of an explosion of a quart can of the oil. The result of Saturday's tests can be made to inure to the public good, if the remedy is properly applied, and we hope ere long to be able to record the inauguration of measures to suppress, under heavy penalty, the sale of all such dangerous fluids.—[Pittsburgh Mail.

It is cheering to know that the scaffold in the Washington, D. C., jail yard, on which Jenkins, the wife murderer, recently executed his crime, has been repainted, and a "drop" prepared that will work in a better and surer manner, "not to be made known to the public." The bright new paint and the improved "drop" should be the means of removing all terror of death from the doomed man, Barney Woods, who is to have the first benefit thereof. It is not singular, therefore, that he is "still calm and collected."

"Put me in my little bed," is now rendered thusly: "Place this wearied piece of animated clay in the receptacle constructed by mechanical genius, wherein drowsy humanity may enjoy tired nature's sweet restorer."

Love letter ink is the latest style of writing fluid, so called, we infer, because in four weeks it disappears, and the letters cannot be used in breach of promise cases before the courts. To many persons this invention will be invaluable.

William Lewis, a farmer near Indianapolis, was misled at home, with valise and clothing, one morning recently, and not until the close of the third day was his whereabouts known. At that time he returned, and reported that on the night of his disappearance he had gone to his bed as usual and was soon asleep. He dreamed that he arose, packed his valise, walked to Indianapolis and took the eastern bound cars. His surprise on awakening and finding himself seventy-five miles from home can better be imagined than described. The Indianapolis Sentinel, which relates this singular case of somnambulism, says: "How he purchased his ticket with out his state being detected by the agent, and how he slumbered serenely through all the din and noise of the Union Depot, are among the troublesome things a fellow never can find out."

The whisky shops of Georgia, having worried of hearing themselves called saloons and sample-rooms, have taken a literary turn, and are now known as "reading-rooms."

A law has been passed prohibiting the erection of new buildings in Vienna during the progress of the exposition in 1873. This has been done with a view of preventing street obstructions.

One of the Boston street railroad companies has just placed upon its routes smoking cars, which run every half hour for the accommodation of the lovers of the weed.

A peculiar kind of powder, that invariably misses fire, is sold for duelling purposes by a store-keeper in Louisiana. It is bought by those who consider discretion the better part of valor.

A "finger-nail artist," whatever he or she may be, from Paris, with innumerable credentials, has opened an office in New York. He does not confine his labors, as one might suppose, merely to the beautifying of the finger-nail. He guarantees to give to each and every one who comes to him just the kind of nail desired.

The other day a girl out in Illinois fired a pistol into the mouth of an infant with fatal effect. This atrocious carelessness of the infant in pointing its mouth toward a loaded pistol should be severely condemned.

The attention of the Dominion Agricultural Department has been given to a letter from the secretary of the New South Wales Agricultural Society making mention of an urgent demand for improved agricultural implements and labor-saving machinery in that colony. Our own shippers may take the hint for what it is worth.

The experiment at Westville, Conn., of a factory for the extraction of oil from cotton waste has proved a decided success. By this process old grimy, greasy rags and waste cotton are rendered perfectly pure, odorless and merchantable. The waste of the Connecticut and Massachusetts cotton mills will more than supply the works with material.

The largest snow plow in the world is approaching completion in Omaha. The monster will weigh fifty tons, and will be operated by three of the heaviest engines on the road. It is calculated that there can be very few snow drifts on the Union Pacific that this plow will not clean out.

There is a man at St. Paul, Minn., who can rattle a tambourine, ring a dinner bell, and play the guitar while tied up, and can get loose from his bonds with the greatest celerity. This he is said to do in the full light of day. He calls the performance an expose of spiritualism.

The Louisville Courier-Journal poetically remarks: "In Montgomery, Alabama, the other day, four negroes got on a spree; one took out his little jack-knife, and now there ain't but three."

The Turks, with all their indolence, are up to a good many tricks in trade that equal those of the Heathen-Chinese. A prominent drug house in Detroit recently received a consignment of opium from New York, in the original packages as shipped from Smyrna. They opened one small box, supposed to contain sixteen ounces of the expensive gum, and found that three ounces of the weight were represented by three leaden bullets. They are apprehensive that the other boxes may "pan out" equally well in a similar way.

Last week two of the most villainous desperadoes of New Orleans, who long hated each other with a trifle more of bitterness than the rest of their fellow men, met on a spacious common and shot and backed each other in such an earnest manner that both died in a few minutes after the contest had ceased.

"The dearest spot on earth" has at last been located. Those wishing to find that "spot" will find it at the store that does not advertise.

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutritious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Owen Gaffney's Sunday Comfort, judiciously used will remove both of these troubles.
