We learn of a good joke on two of our prominent citizens which is too good to lose. The two young men in question, it appears, attended a party at a point down the creek. After the dance was over in the morning, the young men and ladies sat in the parlor of the house waiting the arrival of the early morning train. Pretty soon the train whistled and the company started for the depot. Unfortunately, however, the young men got left. The ladies arrived safely home through the kindness of a mutual friend. Report says that the cue words used by the young men, as the train receded from sight, were numerous and not to be found in the latest edition of Webster's Unabridged.

We are pleased to notice the arrival home on a brief visit of the daughter of our townsman, Mr. T. S. Armstrong. Miss A. as is well known to many is afflicted with a weakness in one of her limbs, occasioned by an attack of typhoid fever. For some months past she has been under treatment at the National Surgical Institute, Indianapolis, Indiana, with results which promise an ultimate recovery. The young lady speaks in the highest terms of the ability displayed in surgery by the physicians in charge, and also of the kind and courteous treatment shown patients.

The Oil City Derrick of this morning scouts the idea of there being a flowing well between this place and Titusville. We may add that we have known for two or three days past there was a big well at the point designated, but have refrained from mentioning it from fear of injuring the market. The well is yielding full as much as reported.

Some of the corrupt officials of Venango county in high position, are likely to have a "showing up" according to the Venango Spectator, which reports the following case. If the County Commissioners are going to be shown up would it not be well for some of the lesser lights to come in for a share. Mutterings, not loud but deep, of a coming tempest, in regard to the fearful poor and road taxes in Cornplanter Township for the past few years are heard. Here is the case:

The County of Venango vs. Wilson Davis, D. H. Cassidy, and Epy Connelly.
The case involves an exposure of the inside workings of the Commissioners' office and excites considerable attention. It was opened on Wednesday forenoon and will not likely be closed until late to-day. With the defendants, Davis, Cassidy and Connelly, it is alleged that James Duceau, deceased, was also connected. The charge is, "Conspiracy to defraud Venango county," upon which several allegations are made, as follows: Receiving from Bell & Breckinridge $1,000 in consideration of awarding them the contract for a bridge the Franklin upper French creek bridge; so altering the original contract for building the bridge that Bell & Breckinridge received $100 more than their contract called for; twice altering the tax returns from Cornplanter township so that they, defendants pocketed $550, selling 25 shares of Emlenton bridge stock and not accounting to the county for the money. All of these matters occurred during 1866, 1867, and 1869. So far the evidence has been very damaging to the defendants, it being proven from their own mouths that they accepted a "gift" of $1,000 from Bell & Breckinridge, which was equally divided between them, the three commissioners and their clerk, Epy Connelly. Up to Wednesday night the other allegations had not been so clearly proven, but enough was elicited to show that these officials might be justly suspected of corruption even if the allegation was not proven beyond dispute. We refrain from dwelling at length, or commenting upon the case until the jury has rendered its verdict. The suit was brought by McCalmont & Osborn and H. A. Miller, who are assisted in conducting it by McCalmont & Miller. The attorneys for the defence are Col. J. S. Myers, C. E. Taylor and J. H. Osler.

South Bend, Indiana, claims 150 Industrial establishments, employing 2,190 workmen and turning out annual product of $5,900,000, or $500 to each inhabitant of the town. Its buildings erected in 1872 cost $1,300,000.

In one of the scenes of a pantomime recently produced in Paris, characters become musical instruments, and there is a ballet by ladies dressed as guitars and bells, assisted by children with concertina skirts while the back grounds is admirably filled up by an army of gigantic clarionets and flutes.

A Sterling Old Poem.

Who shall judge men from his manners?
Who shall know him by his dress?
Paupers may be fit for princes,
Princes fit for something less.
Crumpled shirt and dirty jacket
May be clothe the golden ore
Of the deepest thoughts and feelings—
Satin vest can do no more.

There are streams of Crystal nectar
Ever flowing out of stone;
There are purple beds and golden,
Hidden, crushed and overthrown,
God, who counts all souls, not dresses,
Loves and prospers you and me,
While he values thrones the highest
But as pebbles in the sea.

Man upraised above his fellow,
Oft forgets his fellows then;
Masters—rulers—lords, remember
That your meanest knds are men!
Men of labor, men of feeling,
Men of thought and men of fame,
Claiming equal rights to sunshine
In a man's ennobling name.

There are foam embroidered oceans,
There are little wood clad hills;
There are feeble inch high saplings.
There are cedars on the hills,
God, who counts by sons, not by stations,
Loves and prospers you and me,
For to him all vain distinctions
Are as pebbles in the sea.

Toiling hands alone are builders
Of a nation's wealth and fame,
Tired laziness is pensioned,
Fed and fattened on the same;
By the sweat of others' foreheads,
Living only to rejoice,
While the poor man's outraged freedom
Vainly lifts its feeble voice.

Truth and justice are eternal
Born with loveliness and light;
Secret wrongs shall never prosper
While there is a sunny right.
God, whose word wide voice is ringing
Boundless less love to you and me,
Links oppression with its titles
But as pebbles in the sea.

Silver ore has been discovered in Barton county, Missouri, and a gentleman is engaged in sinking shafts to determine whether it exists in paying quantities. There is a legend in the neighborhood that about thirty years ago, some Mexicans were found near the location of the new shaft, engaged in coining money, and it is said the remains of a furnace are still to be seen there.

It will be remembered that a day or two since we called attention to the fact that George Fellows, formerly an engineer at the Fox wells, Wild Cat Hollow, was missing since the Prospect disaster. A correspondent of the Oil City Derrick writes that the same man is running engine on the Wilson farm, beyond Parker's Danding. The minds of his friends hereabouts are consequently relieved, and another evidence of the value of advertising secured.

CHANGE.—James and George Spear have bought out the interest of J. W. Beatty, in the fruit and confectionary store, next door to Morris Heron's clothing store, and will hereafter conduct the business. We have known the boys for several years and take pleasure in recommending them to the public, and trust they may do a liberal share of business in their line. They propose to keep none but the best the market affords in the fruit and confectionary line and will sell cheap. Give them a call.

Why some Hotels are Unpopular.

What is the most common complaint with guests against first-class hotels? Nine old travelers out of ten can give the fault for miles in a minute. About as follows: "I registered my name, and they gave me a room at the top of the house, and charged me as much as if I had the best room on the lowest floor. Major General Buncombe had the best room in the house and didn't pay any more than I did." It will be positively refreshing to our readers to know that here is one first-class hotel on Broadway, New York, that has taken a stand against this unsatisfactory and worn out system, and charges less for the upper floors than the lower, and allows the guests to choose for themselves.

The Grand Central Hotel, under the judicious management of A. L. Powers, adopt this incomparably the best system at the start, and it is being better appreciated every day. The Grand Central Hotel has now taken the lead of all New York Hotels. In its arrivals as well as other respects, its prices are $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 per day. An elegantly furnished room, meal at all hours, from early morn till midnight and the use of the finest elevator in the world for $3.00 per day is very comfortable. It reminds one of old times, and fosters a feeling of peace with our neighbor and all the world besides. 2t

A man in Clinton, Massachusetts, has a dog whose extraordinary wisdom is thus evinced: While getting his forenoon lunch from a neighbor's pail of "odds and ends," he upset the pail, which fell to pieces, seeing the mischief he had done, he at once trotted home and took back a sound pail, which he substituted for the broken one, carefully transferring the contents of the old to the new, and as carefully covering his tracks by carrying off and hiding the staves of the disintegrated vessel.

Physician in Louisville a day or two since out from the hand of a young lady a piece of china about an inch square, which had been in the flesh of the lady's hand for over a year without causing any uneasiness or pain until recently. Its edges were sharp.

During the month of January there were 494 marriages in Chicago and Cook county. Divorce books not yet fully posted.

A lady in Henry county, Missouri has hair sixty-eight inches long. When she assumes a perpendicular position her tresses drag four inches of their length on the floor.

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutritious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Owen Guffney's Sunday Comfort, judiciously used will remove both of these troubles.
