The last scene in the life drama of Gaffney, the Buffalo murderer, took place in that city, yesterday. It looks very much to us as if the whole hanging arrangement was a fraud. While there is no doubt this man was guilty of murder in an aggravated form, it is no reason why the man should be led to "the slaughter like the lamb." Fed with the best the land affords; attended by ladies fair and priests all shaven and shorn, to smooth his way to paradise, this no wonder that murders are frequent and midnight assassinations prevalent. If a man or woman are guilty of cold blooded murder, let them be hanged like a dog, but don't lead them to the belief that they are martyrs and will go straight to heaven from the gallows. The theory has no foundation in fact.

"MASON AND DIXIE'S LINE.—Forest county has voted for license; Warren county has gone against it, and the seakers are wondering where their next drink will be had. Just over the line which divides the two counties and in Warren stands a hotel, the owner of which owns land over the line.—With the "promised land" in sight, and so close to his door, the temptation to be where all is gay and happy is too strong. Accordingly, with the aid of jack screws, rollers and teams, this part of Warren will be removed to its neighboring county. In the face of such proceedings, it is well, that the line of the two counties is "nailed down," or Warren might wake up some morning and find itself in another county. Hang on to your hair all who are afraid of losing it.—[Tidoute Journal.]

At the election held on the 31st inst., Forest county gave thirty-four majority "For License." There was not much canvassing done on the question, and a comparatively small vote was out. As several counties round us have voted "Against License," we will have the benefit if there is any benefit in it of having all the whiskey that is for sale in this part of the State, for three years; that is, if the Legislature don't repeal the act. When the bridge is again in crossing shape, we expect to see a continuous string of teams crossing to this side to get their beverage. Great is whiskey. [Forest Republican.]

A full house greeted the opening performance of Miss Fannie B. Price's Dramatic Company, at the Opera House, last evening. The drama of the Octoroon was brought out in excellent shape. Miss Price as Zee, the Octoroon girl, sustained her old time reputation as an actress in the full degree. Miss Julia Hanchett as Dora Sunnyside, evinced rare histrionic talent.—This lady has improved wonderfully since her last appearance here. Manager Hanchett appeared as Captain Ratts, and carried out the character to perfection. The balance of the company sustained the caste to perfection. The only thing lacking is a good orchestra, which Mr. Hanchett informs us he intends to remedy at once.—The Columbia Cornet Band furnished excellent instrumental music for the occasion.

This evening is the last appearance of the excellent company, on which occasion Miss Price will appear in three characters—as Alcay the newsboy, Capitola Black, Old Hurricane's ward, and Capitola LeNoir, the heiress of the Hidden House. Miss Julia Hanchett and the balance of the company in the caste. We hope to see a full house greet this excellent company on their last appearance.

Eliza Part, one of our oldest citizens, elucidated to an admiring crowd on Washington street, last night.

Local option is the prevailing topic of conversation at present. There is no use disguising the fact that the passage of the local option law will result disastrously to the business interests of this place, despite all that may be said in its favor. While there is no doubt that the evil of intemperance is bad enough, it is no reason that men who have purchased and built property for hotel and restaurant purposes, should be legislated out of it. The present law, if carried out, is sufficient for all practical purposes. The local option law appears to us to be intended to rather work an injury than good.

A fearful explosion of gas occurred on Shaffer Run, near Oil City, last night, which resulted in the death of a man named Bolman, of the firm of Bolman & Frazier, oil operators. It appears they had run gas pipes from their well to the house, and were using gas in the store. Bolman went to the house last evening and turned on the gas, and then went for a match to light it, but before getting, the match something occurred which attracted his attention, and he forgot that he had turned on the gas and concluded to retire without lighting a fire. About twelve he arose to go to his well, on which he was running a tour. He got up and lit the lamp, came down stairs, and had just reached the floor of the lower story, when the gas communicated to the lamp and a terrific explosion took place, blowing out two sides of the building, and the balance fell in. Bolman escaped the falling debris, but was terribly burned and bruised. His partner, Frazier, heard the explosion and rushed to the house, where he found Bolman with his clothes on fire. He extinguished the flames burning himself severely. Bowman was conscious, but died in a few hours. He leaves a wife and family.

MY LANDLADY.

Who greets me with a welcome smile
Wherever I have just "struck tie?"
My landlady.
Who "bones" me with a frown I rue
When my room-rent is over due?
My landlady.
Who finds objections to my "toots,"
And growls when I sleep in my boots?
My landlady.
Who is it that brushes my soles,
And uses up my hair oils?
My landlady.
Who bangs at my door every morn
To give me coffee made from corn?
My landlady.
Who "tips" from my "little brown jug,"
And strews the ashes on the rug?
My landlady.
Who is it used my razor strop
On kitchen knives, that they should lop?
My landlady.
Who is it brings my "cock tails" up,
And on the stairs "takes in" a sup?
My landlady.
Who is it makes me pay her cash
Whenever I order extra hash?
My landlady.
Who was it Christmas day "got tight,"
And drank too much on New Year's night?
My landlady.
Who gets two thirds of what I make,
And tries to make a bigger rake?
My landlady.
Who has a daughter young and fair,
With rosy cheeks and golden hair?
My landlady.
Who would often try to peep,
And catch the "old weasel" asleep?
My landlady.
Who would give me my walking papers,
If she but knew of our sweet capers?
My landlady.

A man named Price was found dead last Saturday morning on the bluff back of Parker City, at one of S. D. Karns' oil wells.—He was fastened in the fly wheel, and as he was alone at the well, it will never be known at what time in the night the accident happened. He was pressed in such a manner that the machinery was stopped.

DISTILLERY SEIZED.—An illicit distillery the property of one Charles Erecht, a German, located near Plumer village was seized yesterday by T. S. Martin, Deputy United States Marshal for this district. The owner in endeavoring to explain to the officer, said he only made medicine for rheumatism! The officer thought it was "schwappe," and so shut down on him. Charles Erecht, of this city, worked up the case.—[Titaville Courier.]

The blades for the new swords ordered for the United States Army have just been finished at the Springfield armory. They are perfectly straight, thirty-one inches long and handsomely decorated with designs in asphaltum varnish. VARIOUS FARMS.
The Pawnee, on the Wm. A. Wilson farm, started up about six weeks ago, and is now producing fully 140 barrels per day. Wm. Morgan, Dr. A. C. Crawford, Parker & Thompson and Jno. B. Leonard are the owners.

The old Morgan well, owned by Morgan, Messimer & Co., is yielding 70 bbls.

Mr. Ralph Dawson is the fortunate owner of a 150 barrel flowing well on the John B. Campbell farm, near Karus City. The sand was struck last Wednesday and the well has been flowing since that time. Mr. Dawson owns the entire well.

The Rob Roy is a new strike on the Mc Clymonds farm, southeast of Fairview. It commenced to pump on Saturday last, and is yielding 55 barrels per day. The owners are John M'Cune, Dr. A. W. Crawford and Parker and Thompson.

W. G. Stoughton and others, have another well down on the same farm, which is reported at 50 or 60 barrels. We have nothing definite to report.

S. D. Karns well on the Ford farm, near Fairview, struck some two months ago, is yielding 18 barrels per day. Mr. Karns is starting another well on the same farm.

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutritious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Owen Gaffney's Sunday Comfort, judiciously used will remove both of these troubles.
