The beathen of that place concluded that a serenade to the young couple was necessary. The screnade was gives, and great was the displeasure of the mother, so much so that she caused war-

Years since we remember reading, and langhing over a report from the chairmat of the "hog" committee at a Berkabire 'Coup/ ty. Massachusetts Cattle Show. That report was a favorite specimen of literature. for it went ali over the country. It mang the praises of the hog, and a man who could make musical such a subject was deemed an artist. But we have met a like treat in an essay on the hog delivered a while make by Prof. Tracy before the Farmer's Clab of St Louis. Here is the bog of thirty years mgo: "A miserable, lean, lank, bony, lan/ tern jawed, long faced, long tusked, long legged, long baired, ugly, vicious brute-a bad cross between an alligator and a fence The bog of the period is described rail " thue: "He is one that does more to tickle the palate of the rich gourmand, and satisfy the cravings of poor man's bunger than any other dom-stic spimal; one that is easily reared into noble proportions, and yields rich stores of substantial food or delicate nutriment to all the children of men .-Think of spare ribs, pork chops, tenderloin, sausage, bead choses and pig's feet, that come in their proper season; think then of the baked pork and beaus, bam and eggs, jowl and grum, breakfast bacon and bolled bam that come at all seasons; think of him siways as suoplying the poor man's feast or the rich man's fancy." And as a Sanking dish contemplates the "roaster," which the Professor discants up-The gentle, squesking, almost beautiful pig. He knows nothing but to est, sleep and grow fet. Think of him, too, as furnisbing that most delectable part immortalizing by the "Gentle Elis," which be profe fers to us in the shape of "roast pig."-Think of primeval, fresh furrowed sucklings -away back yonder in the ante-diluvian or anti-historic period, and those real Chipe. but not Polond China pigs that were baked in the burning of the bamboo mansion of Yang Chiand his son Ba-bo. Think how these assient pagans caught the fisvor in their nostrils, and the savor from their burnt flogers as they thrust them lato the roasted pigs and then [into their watering mouthe-how they devoured the whole litter, and when the secret escaped, a thousand buts and rin ricks were in flames to supply the demand for the prescribed;but ambiosis; food-think of all these things, and be happy that you have known rosst pig. We had the pleasure of meeting our old triend, Mr. Harry Derousse, Burgess of St. Petersburg. We were glad to meet him, as were a bost of old friends hereabouts. We can see Harry, in unsgination, seated in the chair of justice passing sentence on the evil deers of that burgh. His motto is-

Equal justice to all, consequently the sports uved, have no fear of favoritism. We wish you well, Harry, and should be pleased to tes you often.

GUILD'S SIGNAL.

[Mr. Bret Harte, in the Tribune, celes brates William Guild, the engineer of the train which, on the 19th of April, plunged into Meadow Brook, on the tine of the Stonington and Providence Railroad. It was ble custom, as often as be passed bis home, to whistle an "all's weli" to his wife. He was found, after the disaster, dead, with his hand on the throttle valve for his engine.]

Two low whistles, quaint and clear,

That was the signal the engineer-That was the signal that Guild, 'tis said-Gave to his wile at Providence,

As through the sleeping town and thence, Out in the night, On to the light,

Down past the farms, lying white, he sped!

As , a husband's greeting, scant no doubt, Yet to the woman looking out, Watching and waiting no serenade, Love song or midnight roundelay Said what that whistle seemed to say; "To my trust true, So love to you!

Working or waiting, Good night!" It said.

Brisk young bagmen, touriste fine Old commuters slong the line,

Brakemen and porters glanced abeas, Smiled as the signla sharp, intense,

Pierced through the shadows of Provi/ dense .---"Nothing amiss-

Nothing !-- it is Only Guild calling his wife," they said.

Summer and winter, the old refrain! Rang o'er the billows of rippling grain, Pierced through the building boughs o'er-Bend.

F.ew down the track when the red leave, burned

Like living coals from the engine sputned. "Sang as it flow; To our trust true,

First of all Duty-Good night," it said.

And then, one night, it was beard no more

From Stonfagton over Rhode Island shore And the lolk in Providence smiled and said.

As they turned in their beds, "The engineer

Has once forgotten his midnight cheer," One only knew,

To bis trust true,

Goild lay under his rayine, dead BRET HARTE.

The Boston Herald tells of the death of a Dr. Sheaf who committed gaulcide through sheer hunger. He was a few years since a wealthy broker, but failed and gave up everything. Bis wife, however, was wealthy in her own right, but being a proud passi woman, became mad at her bus band because he surrendered all he had to the him from ber own purse, and that is her home-because un-the left is and picked up a t as he could. But disaster followed him and the result was despair and self destruction. His daughter begged on her knees to be allawed to visit him : and relieve his necessities but Mrs. Sheaf-the mother-would not allow it.

The receipts of crude oil at this port from Jenusry T to April 17, 1873, were 256,000 barrels , sgainst 291,000 to same time last year -- nearly double; and the exports of refiord oil were 187,000 barrels, against 145,6 00 last year. The highest receipts in any previous year were 343,000 barrels. This increase is owing mainly to the increased facilities for shipping sforded by the Alles gheny Valley Railroad, but it may also b taken to indicate that this trade is at last gravitating to its natural center, and that the efforts to divert it to Cleveland and New York will not succeed. The average weekly receipts from the Oil Region have been about 38,000 barrels, or 5,500 barrels daily .- [Pittabyrgh Commercial.

This is the greatest kind of a country .-There is no discount to be made on that assertion. As we sit looking over-perbap, more probably overlooking-a buge beap of exchanges, side by side lie a paper from Portland, Uregon, and one from Jackson ville Florida. And what is strange, both papers tell the same story of mild climate through the winter, no snow, no frosts of any account, and yet those places are over fifteen degrees spart, north and south, and distant from each other in statute miles over one thousand.
