There is another row in church matters, at Kane City, which it appears by our correspondent's statement bids fair to raise a grand riot. The church, late school house, was bought by subscription by the people of Kane City, irrespective of religious belief, to be used by all denominations as those of the belief of the clergymen who preached might desire. R. A. Dempsey and Jas. Spence were designated as trustees to hold the property in charge. These parties subsequently delegated the power to postmaster Cunningham, and subsequently Spence failed to coincide in this arrangement. That was about the way the affair stood up to last night, at which time Mr. Lyman P. Howe, of Tinsville, had been announced to deliver a lecture on Spiritualism. Mr. L. Osborne, who has no particular sectarian belief, but desires to learn from all, and is a stockholder in the church, by request asked Mr. Spence for the key in order that the church might be opened in time for the lecture. Mr. Spence refused to give up the key, and was informed that unless he did a forcible entrance would be made. He still demurred and shortly after the door of the church was broken open and the lecture, a very entertaining one, was delivered to a crowded house. The affair has created a good deal of hard feeling and will undoubtedly be ventilated by the courts. And thus ends for the time being this speck of war.

It is reported that the attempt to raise money in London for the Canadian Pacific Railway has finally and completely failed. The amount to be raised in England was fixed at sixteen millions of pounds sterling or about $80,000,000; the Canadian Government agreeing to subsidize the road with $80,000,000 in cash and sixty millions acres of public lands. A London special says the English capitalists decline to give the scheme their support, on the ground that the charter is unsafe, and that the route, the time allowed for building, the mode of raising the capital, and the land arrangements acting as a barrier to emigration, are all objectionable. The deputation are reported to have relinquished all hope of getting the money, but will not return home until the close of the Dominion Parliament's session, to avoid troublesome enquiries. The action of the Parliament in regard to the correspondence implicating members of the deputation in a corrupt conspiracy with members of the Canadian Government touching Canadian Pacific Railway matters may, however, hasten their return. There is a prospect of a big wash of very dirty linen on the other side of the Lakes.

The city of Newark is preparing for a second industrial exhibition.

CONCERT.—We trust our citizens will remember the concert to be given at Sobel's Opera House, tomorrow evening, by the Mozart Musical Society of this place. The programme is first class in every respect, and comprises some very fine pieces of instrumental and vocal music by the latest standard authors. A large number of amateur singers, among whom we may mention those well known favorites, Mr. Carman and Miss Henderson, both of whom have no superiors as thoroughly cultivated musicians both in voice or by instrument. They will be assisted by Mrs. Col. Vera, Misses Hawley, Buckley and Olmstead, and Messrs Blake, Waddell and Bruce. The whole to be under charge of Prof. Boynton, who needs no recommendation from us. We hope to see a crowded house, as this will be the last entertainment given by them this season.

This is the way Madison ladies manage to give a hint to miserable callers: "The callers had arrived before the ladies had completed their toilettes and were ushered into the parlor to await their coming. Upon their arrival they invited their guests to take a seat on the doorstep, it being such a delightful evening! They brought out cushions for them, begged them to make themselves comfortable, and started back into the parlor ostensibly to get cushions for themselves. When inside the hall the front door happened to blow shut, and in some unaccountable manner the key was turned. The young ladies departed through the side door and went down street."

What a pity the Bender family of Kansas hadn't located their hotel near Captain Jack's Lava Beds. The Modoc tribe would now have been buried.

The following is a report of the number of paupers, cost of keeping, &c., in Cornplanter Township: Number of paupers in Cornplanter Township from March 1st, 1877, to December 26th, 1878, 67. Amount expended for support of said paupers, $14,000. Average cost for each individual per day, 70c. A complete list of the names of said paupers can be seen at the Record office.

An intelligent yoke of oxen brought about a collision between a locomotive and a cart containing two women, a baby, and a negro, at Athens, Tenn., the other day. One woman and a baby sailed majestically off through space, and landed unhurt in a ploughboy field, about forty feet from the centre of operations. The other woman was thrown ten feet further, also without injury; and the negro was thrown vertically upward, and came down upon his head, of course without hurting him. But the poor cart and oxen were everlastingly triturated, while the locomotive went whistling gayly on its way, without so much as a hair turned the wrong way.

Who Keeps Dead Flowers.

Who keeps dead flowers? Not I; indeed, not I. The world is wild with blossoms, and the sky Drops roses; and the regal moon-lamped night Brings sculptured lillies, carved of perfect light.

Who keeps dead flowers? Thenceforth away with these The airy ghosts of sad anemones; With dimpled, blushing buds refill the vase Dipped in the laughing wise of summer days.

Who keeps dead flowers? What if a loving friend Did last spring, give these; and now an end Hath come to all his love? Life's full today Of friends—fresh friends, fresh flowers, fling these away!

Who keeps dead flowers? Buried and gone you say. The little child you worshiped yesterday. And these pale violets on his breast were spread, Yet keep them not; for see they're dead, They're dead!

Who keeps dead flowers? Alas! one summer day Teaches how many, many turn away From life's fresh blessing and bewildering bowers, To sigh in secret and to keep dead flowers.

Sturdy old Captain H., of Cape Cod, was a widower of good property, and in an evil hour married a dan admiral's housekeeper, who soon taught him who was commanding officer. It was whispered that the relations of the first Mrs. H. were especially obnoxious to her successor. "Where's that nice old dog you used to have?" inquired one of the neighbors—"Why, he's dead," was the response; "he couldn't stand it."—"Couldn't stand what?"—"Why, don't you understand?" said the Captain, slyly. "He dropped dead from barking at my first wife's relations!"

The New Haven police drilled so thoroughly, in anticipation of heading the procession on Thursday that they refused to address their wives unless properly saluted.—One of them did not answer his wife when she called him to supper, the other night, and after the doctor had combed the tea-leaves and crockery out of his hair, he said that he guessed he could find a substitute for the parade.

"Do you like chickens?" asked a remarkably modest Nashville youth of his sweetest one, as he was walking about two feet from her on his way to church, Sunday night. "Certainly I do," she replied; "Why do you ask such a question as that?" Because I thought if you liked chickens, you wouldn't object to takin' a wing," and he crooked his arm in an irresistible manner.—Sweetness took a wing.

They have a business like method of procedure in Kansas. In the midst of the excitement caused by the terrible discoveries of bodies under the Bender house, a small board appeared on one of the graves announcing that the deserted Bender claim had been pre-empted by another settler.

Caterpillars in frightful numbers are making their appearance in many places in West Tennessee and North Mississippi.—They are said to be actively engaged in eating up every green thing in some localities, and have congregated in such numbers on the railroads as to stop the trains several times.

The actual washing away of a cemetery with all its superabundant inmates, is a grim circumstance which doesn't happen every day, but which has just occurred sixteen miles below Little Rock, Arkansas. The place was known as the Perkins Cemetery, and was opened in 1844. The Arkansas river being very high, the yard commenced caving gradually into the river, until finally five hundred coffins were swept into the stream.

No railway abuse, in the opinion of the Erie Investigating Committee, requires immediate attention so much as the leasing of railroads. As the law now stands, Directors, without asking the consent of stockholders, can lease their property on terms which amount virtually to a sale, and in this way sacrifice their rights as well as the public interests.
