The Titusville Herald sneers at the Oil City Derrick and seeks to make the subject of the Fairview Pipe Line a personal affair only, whereas the points in controversy are matters of public interest.

A pipe line ought to be a common carrier only, with no interest but that of its patrons, who run oil through its pipes.

If a pipe line deals in oil, it is controlled by those who refine oil, and whose official relations place them at the head of the refining interests of this country, then we maintain the so-called pipe line, or any number of them, pursuing such a course, have interests antagonistic to the producer. The latter is always a seller, the former a buyer.

So it is plain that the producer is in the hands of those whose interests and opportunities are such as to lead them to squeeze him in every possible way.

If Judge Trunkay refused, it must have been on technical points, known only to the tortuous courses of the law. The sneers at the Derrick and the producer are ill-timed, unjust and untrue. Fisher Bros. are morally, and we hope legally, in the right.

Day before yesterday a new well was struck on the Lamb farm, upper Bennehoff territory, which started flowing almost as soon as the sand was struck. The well is owned by Messrs. Evans & Burtis, of Titusville, and the farm adjoins the Pierce and Sims farms, upon which are several good wells. Our informant, Mr. Jake Taylor, states that the oil was thrown to a great distance above the top of the derrick as soon as the tools struck the sand.

He also informs us that about three a. m. yesterday morning, the derrick and rig caught fire from the gas and were completely destroyed, so intense was the fire as to not leave even a vestige of the heavy oak sill, walking beam or sampson post was left.

There is no doubt but that this well will prove one of the largest in this region. Go to Butler, young man!

A party of gentlemen from this section, composed of Messrs. J. C. Bump, J. D. Hamilton and Frank Hamilton of Columbia and Thomas West of this place, under the guidance of Major Goodman, of Tionesta, that renowned hunter and trapper, left for the Forest county fishing and hunting grounds, on Friday, May 16th. They made the biggest "catch" of the season, in proof of which we copy from their log book:

- Began fishing May 17th, on Blue Jay Run; caught 328 trout. Monday, May 19th, caught 632 on Sherriff's Run. Tuesday, 20th, Fool's Creek, 175. Wednesday, 21st, Minister's Run, 223. Thursday, 22d, Salmon Branch, 242. Friday, 23d, Salmon Branch, 222. Saturday, 24th, Salmon Branch, 218. Monday, 26th, Salmon Creek, 475. Making the entire catch 2516. The party broke camp on Monday night and arrived safely home yesterday, highly pleased with the trip, and loud in their praise of Major Goodman as a guide and fisherman. The catch would do credit to old Jack Walton himself.

About a year ago a coachman in Chicago ran off with and married the daughter of his employer. The frate parents of the bride snatched her from the embraces of her "bubby" and took her home, where they have since kept her in close confinement. "Trummers" is tired of that sort of thing and has invoked the thunders of the law. The hard hearted parents are ordered to "bring the body" of the coachman's bride into Court and show cause why the said coachman should not walk out of the Court with the aforesaid "body" tucked under his arm. "The course of true love never did run smooth."

REPUTATION.—Solomon says that a good name is better than riches. Shakespeare re-echoes the sentiment in mutual verse. Its growth is that of a life time, but its loss is the work of a moment.

Sensitive as the maiden blush of innocence, a breath of slander may mar it, or an act of indiscretion destroy it. Our lost money, nor talent, nor penitence, can restore it.

The dignity of station, the charm of beauty and the reverence of age, are but curses without character.

In the midst of adversity and affliction, if misfortunes overwhelm and sickle friends desert us, there is no greater solace than our honor.

Finally, a parent can bequeath no richer legacy than a good name. A son or daughter can leave no more fragrant memory than an unblemished record.

City Father Malloy is gone. He has left for the classic precincts of Tonawanda and Niagara Falls. The light of his benign countenance will no more illuminate our streets or the Franklin jail. Geo. King purchased a ticket, and a goodly delegation saw him off. He's gone and we're shall see his like again. He's gone to that bourne where whiskey is 10 cents a drink and Tonawanda bitters free.

Women in Florida make from $18 to $23 a week braiding palmetto hats.

Illinois is now having the liveliest contest the State has ever known.

The officers of the charitable societies in Providence have published an appeal to the wealthy citizens to provide low-rent tenements in reputable neighborhoods in that city.

An impoverished top wears a ten cent silver piece on his shirt bosom, and calls it his dime and pin, which it certainly is.

They catch pickerel at Hamburg, N. Y., by tying lines with baited hooks to the feet of geese and driving them across the pond. When a fish bites the geese flounder and make for the shore, when they are relieved of their burden and sent back for more.

The famous "Buffalo Bill" has rented a house in West Chester, where he proposes to locate his family, and when his dramatic engagements are concluded he intends to return to the war path, after Captain Jack, as chief of scouts in the employ of the government.

Henry Waidly, the affianced husband of the unfortunate Miss Clara Worth, of Strasburg, Lancaster county (who was burned to death at Harrisburg, last week,) has become a raving maniac, through grief for her loss.

Some Corry bummers got drunk recently, and amused themselves by pulling out a mule's tongue. Corry should have a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

Mambrina Temple, the famous stallion owned by Col Norman J. Coleman, publisher of the Rural World, died in St. Louis on Sunday. The animal was closely related to the finest stock of the country and was valued at $10,000.

On an excursion train between Lexington Ky., and Winchester, on Sunday, Jack Bradford shot John Pearson, cut his head nearly off and threw his body from the train. Both were colored. Bradford was arrested at Mount Sterling and brought to Winchester for trial.

Legal tenders outstanding yesterday $356 425,878.

The Metropolitan branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, between Washington and Point of Hook, was opened to passengers on Sunday. All through trains between Washington and the West now run via Washington.

A sensitive Pennsylvania last week went out and killed himself because a few friends laughed at him; and, at about the same date, an Alabamian under similar circumstances went in and killed a few friends.

A respectable youth in Delaware is under bonds of $500, for kissing a married lady of his acquaintance, without her consent.

It is proposed to hold an encampment of all the surviving Vermont soldiers who served in the war in Rutland, this summer.

There have been engraved at the Bureau of Engraving and printing of the Department a vignette of the late Wm H. Seward and another of the late Thomas Corwin.—The former is for use on the checks of the Disbursing Clerk of the State Department and the latter for the use of the Interior Department.

A Sandwich Islander recently dived a depth of forty-eight feet, and made a rope fast to an anchor. He then became insensible, floated to the surface, and was picked up, with the blood flowing from his mouth, one and ears. He soon recovered, however.

Mr. Metzler, of Baltimore, poured coal oil over his sauer kraut, mistaking it for vinegar. Then he put it on the stove to warm and—where is that sauer kraut now? And where is Mr. Metzler's eye?

The editor of the Home Journal, published in Houston, Tex., proposes to increase the circulation of his paper by sending it at half-price to all who marry during the year.

Reports concerning Captain Jack, chief of the Modocs, place him north of the Pied river country, with about twenty-five warriors. He says he will die with the rifle in his hands.

One of Friend & Fox's paper mills at Lockland, Ohio, was burned Sunday. The warehouse adjoining, containing much valuable stock, was saved. The loss is about $40,000, and insurance $33,000, $18,000 of which is in home companies.

The Congressional Exclusionists arrived in St. Louis yesterday morning, and nearly all of them have already gone to their homes.

At Constantinople a number of old rusted helmets, deposited in a church there, were lately sold to a Jew as old iron at about two or three cents per pound. There were about six hundred. The purchaser commenced cleaning them, and then discovered that they were of fine steel, and adorned with Arabic inscriptions, showing that they dated from very ancient times. He began by selling them at one dollar the piece, then one dollar and fifty cents, two dollars, two dollars and fifty cents, until at last an American bought up all that were left at four dollars and fifty cents each, and put them up to sale in the bazaars. The government has repurchased them at from ten to fifteen dollars apiece.

There are no less than one hundred and forty-seven towns and villages in the United States named for George Washington, besides the Federal capital. It is curious to note the distribution of these, and to account for the difference in number in various States.—Seventeen States have one each, namely: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Michigan, Illinois, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas; Alabama, 2; Arkansas, 3; Missouri, 4; New Jersey, 9; Pennsylvania, 19; while Ohio has no less than 41, and Iowa 33. Can any one tell us the reason for this great preponderance in the two latter States, which is the more curious from the accidental similarity in the names of the States themselves?

A colored "seventh son," who vended quack medicines in Nashville, has been arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses. A similar interpretation of the statute in the case of the medical impostors in the latitude would do much for the preservation of public health.

Minnesota is invaded by an army of pigeon-trappers from Illinois Wisconsin, and elsewhere, and the shipments of the captured birds increase daily.

The New York Central Railroad Company has commenced suit against United States Collector Bailly to recover the scrip dividend tax collected of it.

Thinking it full time to be rid of the idea that a man on foot has no right in the street which a man going about with a horse is bound to respect the Quebec Mercury makes an earnest protest against the longer use of that execrable machine called a truck in the narrow and irregular streets of that city.

The young ladies of Woodland Avenue Seminary play croquet in front of the seminary building every pleasant evening. Dazzling each game every young man in that part of the city puts on his new clothes, parts his hair in the middle, and gets on the seminary fence, where he smiles and sighs, gets mad and swears, because the school rules are so strict, and because the colored porter sits in the belly with a loaded shot-gun and with instructions to shoot the first male that puts his foot in the yard.

One A. P. Ursey, near Princeton, Ind., insisted on one J. T. Reed drinking, and the latter refusing he attacked him with a brick. Reed struck back with his fist and killed him.

A sad and sorrowful tale is told in the affidavit filed in a libel suit brought against the Chicago Inter-Ocean. There is an old and wealthy citizen of Chicago named Wicker, who once upon a time became a widower. Wicker lived in a large and elegant house, and, being fond of the beautiful, engaged a pretty and engaging young female named Sarah Golan as handmaiden in his establishment. Sarah being young and comely—just eighteen years old—Wicker thought he would add the graces of mind to those of person by sending her to a first class boarding school, where she was crammed with "accomplishments" regardless of cost. When she returned she was promoted from the position of handmaiden to mistress—that is to say, she became housekeeper and ruled the establishment.—In this position of mistress, that is to say housekeeper, she remained two or three years, and then came trouble. Mr. Wicker says she was not content with this profitable and presumably honorable position, but conspired with other persons to compel him to marry her. The ungrateful Sarah spread her baits to entice into the matrimonial trap, but he had been there before and was too wary. Then she sought to drive him into it, and even caused him to be pounded with that purpose. Finally to save his life and have a little peace he married the pertinacious Sarah, and has now enjoyed the "felicities" of second marriage several months. All this is woful enough, but just here the wicked Inter-Ocean came in with the full story in full, displayed with startling headlines, and averring that Sarah whipped him into the matrimonial traces by asserting he had beguiled her of her innocence. Wicker pondered over the matter several months, and then became satisfied he "wasn't that sort of a man," and that he had been basely slandered. He has just sued the Inter-Ocean for half a million dollars, and if he doesn't get it, he will doubtless think himself a much injured person.

Winter storms, snow blockades, and the controversy as to the authorship of "Beautiful Snow" are over for a season and now come thunder storms, tornadoes, potato bugs, and a squabble between rival claimants of "Betsy and I are out." There was probably some merit in the "Beautiful Snow" poem, but the quarrel over it has rendered it a complete nuisance, and "Betsy" and her old man were well enough for a time, but the reading public will before long heartily regret they did not have a square fight with poker and shovels, and so use each other up that they could neither tell what it was all about.

Wink at her tenderly— The girl over there! Her walk "grecian tenderly," And purchased her hair.

P. Dennis of Memphis, found his daughter aged 16 years, in a house of prostitution, took her home, commenced beating her, when she fell against a sewing machine and died.

Columbus O'Donnell, one of the wealthiest citizens of Baltimore, died on Sunday.

Two-thirds of the business portion of Jarvis, Ontario, was burned on Saturday night.

A fire at East Saginaw, Michigan, destroyed a large block of building, with a loss of $50,000, two-thirds insured.

Russia favors a complete line of railway across Asia, from St. Petersburg, and connecting with the English railways in India to Calcutta.

J. P. Halzman, a Philadelphia leather dealer, who bankrupted and forged heavily some four months since, has been arrested in Chicago.

The Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, broke up a dog fight in a pit, Sunday night, at Cincinnati, and arrested twelve men.

C. B. Nicholas, of Albany, reported as one of the lumber ring who had failed, denies being connected with the ring, and says he has not failed.
