Measures, by his patent, uses as one of the principal elements of his invention, that, depending and wherever there is said sufficient in a well, at the time of the explosion of a torpedo, to operate as a lamp, whether it goes there naturally or is put there artificially, his patent is infringed. This was clearly the case in regard to the Beas well.

But Mr. Geyer seems to have been misled by Hauer, who led him that he never intended to make an experiment; and I do not think, this being the first time, that he ought to be very severely punished.

He also is adjudged guilty of contempt and ordered to pay the costs of this proceeding, and undergo an imprisonment in the county jail for ten days. I hope this will be the last of these cases, because, if the matter comes to our notice again, we will be constrained to impose such punishment as will make us make the doctrine of the Court's respect.

THE COURT McKeanan, J., a. c. delivering his opinion in the Hauer case, proceeded to sentence Nicholas Geyer for contempt, and delivered the following oral opinion:

In the case of Nicholas Geyer charged with the same offense, I am entirely satisfied that there was no present, in the Beas well at least, as I have indicated to the court in the course of the argument, the presence of said in the well, whether it be there or not, is an infringement of the patent, and a breach of the injunction of the Court.

THE TORPEDO PATENT SUITS.

Roberts vs. Nicholas Geyer.

The following is the decision rendered by Judge McKeanan, at May Term of the Circuit Court in the above case:

In the Circuit Court of the United States, in and for the Western District of Pennsylvania.—E. A. T. Roberts vs. Nicholas Geyer.—No. 1.—May Term 1871.—In Equity.

November 21, 1872. Bill filed and subpoena issued.

Subpoena and notice of application for preliminary injunction served.

December 13, 1872. Motion for preliminary injunction heard, and the Court being fully advised in the premises, the injunction awarded as prayed for, and decree filed.

January 14, 1873. Injunction issued, and on the 29th day of January judgment served personally and by copy.

May 22, 1873. Bill issued for defendant to show cause why attachment should not issue for contempt in violating injunction and duly served.

June 24, 1873. Rule for attachment in this case came on to be heard, and after argument of counsel pro and con, the Court being fully advised in the premises, the rule is made absolute, and the sentence of the Court is, that the said defendant, Nicholas Geyer, be imprisoned in the common jail of Allegheny County for and during the term of ten days, and that he pay the costs of this proceeding.

June 26, 1873. Commitment issued.

The injunction in this case was for infringement of the Roberts' patent of No.—(called the Torpedo), for increasing the productivity of oil wells. The net of infringement for which the defendant was committed for contempt, consisted in aiding Alexander Hauer in exploding torpedoes in oil wells being the same act of infringement for which Hauer was also committed in the case No. 2, November Term, 1868, as before stated.

The Court McKeanan, J., a. c. delivering his opinion in the Hauer case, proceeded to sentence Nicholas Geyer for contempt, and delivered the following oral opinion:

In the case of Nicholas Geyer charged with the same offense, I am entirely satisfied that there was no present, in the Beas well at least, as I have indicated to the court in the course of the argument, the presence of said in the well, whether it be there or not, is an infringement of the patent, and a breach of the injunction of the Court.

This was clearly the case in regard to the Beas well.

But Mr. Geyer seems to have been misled by Hauer, who led him that he never intended to make an experiment; and I do not think, this being the first time, that he ought to be very severely punished.

He also is adjudged guilty of contempt and ordered to pay the costs of this proceeding, and undergo an imprisonment in the county jail for ten days. I hope this will be the last of these cases, because, if the matter comes to our notice again, we will be constrained to impose such punishment as will make us make the doctrine of the Court's respect.
