Consumption has its origin in a scrofulous and corrupt state of the blood, hence the folly of curing a lung disease with cough syrups, balsams &c., &c. The cure for consumption we have justly and confidently claimed for it, and when the blood is pure consumption cannot exist. Dr. McCallum's Burdock Blood Searcher is the purest extract of the great blood purifier and alterative, Burdock, and we will warrant it to cure all diseases originating in the blood. Without a cure no pay. Price $1 per bottle. Sold by druggists generally.

THE

TORPEDO PATENT SUITS.

Roberts vs. Nicholas Geyer.

The following is the decision rendered by Judge McKennan, at May Term of the Circuit Court in the above case:

In the Circuit Court of the United States, in and for the Western District of Pennsylvania.—E. A. L. Roberts vs. Nicholas Geyer.—No. 1.—May Term, 1873.—In Equity.

November 28, 1872. Bill filed and subpœna issued.

Subpœna and notice of application for preliminary injunction served.

December 17, 1872. Motion for preliminary injunction heard, and the Court being only advised in the premises that injunction awarded as prayed for, and decree filed.

January 11, 1873. Injunction issued, and on the 20th day of January subpœna served personally and by copy.

May 22, 1873. Rule issued for defendant to show cause why attachment should not issue for contempt in violating injunction and decree served.

June 26, 1873. Rule for attachment in this case coming on to be heard, and the evidence of counsel for and against the rule being heard and considered, the Court being satisfied that the defendant, Nicholas Geyer, is guilty of the contempt charged in the rule, but not deeming it necessary to commit him to jail, it is ordered by the Court that he pay the costs of this proceeding, and that he stand committed until the same be paid. Now, viz: June 30, 1873, the defendant in the contempt proceedings, Nicholas Geyer, having paid the costs of the proceedings, and filed his oath of inability to pay the fine imposed, and that he has not the means to pay the same, it is ordered by the Court that he be discharged from custody.

June 30, 1873. Copies sent to counsel.

A motion to dissolve the injunction in the case of the Roberts patent was argued before Judge McKennan, at Erie, in expediting hearings in the hope the same act of infringement might be tried before the Supreme Court at its December term. Judge McKennan, after hearing the case, filed his opinion:

In the case of Nicholas Geyer charged with contempt, I am entirely satisfied that there was no intentional violation of the injunction. As I stated in the Pennsylvania case, the question of fraud is one of intent, and the presence of fraud in the mind, whether proved or not, is an element of the petitioner's case, and will be one of the questions for the consideration of the Court.

Mr. Roberts, by his patent here, is one of the pioneers in the field of torpedo inventions, and although there is doubt sufficient in it as well, at the time of the explosion of a torpedo, to operate as a warning, whether it goes there naturally or is put there artificially, his patent is infringed. This is clearly the case in regard to the Rock well.

All Mr. Geyer seems to have to do is to submit to the injunction, which he merely ignored, and then, if he desires to test the validity of the patent, he can do so in the Supreme Court. He should be fined in the sum of $1 and the costs of the proceedings, and stand committed until the same be paid.

Mr. Nicholas Geyer, who had been adjudged guilty of contempt and ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings, was this morning brought into court in the custody of the sheriff, and paid the costs, whereupon he was discharged from custody.
