BULES FOR FASHIONABLE SEXTONS.

For the Philada. Evening Bulletin.] 1. In this age of luxury and self-indulgence, it is undoubtedly the duty of a Sexton so to arrange matters, as to contribute to the ease and comfort of the congregation; and one mode of doing this will be neglecting to ventilate the church building properly, as the oppressive atmosphere will lull some of the worshipers (perchance not a few) into a comfortable nap during the service. To be sure clergymen seem to have a prejudice against preaching to a slumbering audience; but as they invariably charge the Evil One with this sin (?) you as the Sexton of a church will hardly be suspected of being his agent. 2. By your neglecting to have the furnaces repaired when out of order; the fumes of gas and sulphur escaping will so irritate the throat and lungs of the people as to cause universal coughing, and this din will so divide the attention that the point of the sermon will in all probability fail to inflict a wound, so that some of the congregation will be able to retire with a more quiet and easy conscience than they otherwise could have enjoyed; you will thereby be instrumental of promoting "ease in Zion." 3. If your evening meetings are uncomfortably crowded, the most direct plan of thinning them off, will be to fill the building as full of gas as possible, by letting it escape in a stream, whenever you light up the church: for but a very moderate number of individuals can with impunity, inhale gas for hours to gether, oftener than once a month.

4. By keeping the church excessively hot, the ladies will be obliged to "firt the fire" dexterously, and this exercise will prove a most diverting relief from the solemnities of the occasion, much to the satisfaction of the young and gay of the assembly.
5. Again, if you keep the building so cold that it endangers the health and lives of the worshipers, it will be a moneyed benefit to the physician and undertaker, and it is unqueslionably your duty to study the interest of all, especially the last named personage.

6. For the Spring and Autumn, when the air is cold and damp, be sure you see that all the windows are closed in the body of the church, but you may leave them up in the galleries; for even though the chill air will blow directly upon the backs of the worshipers in that position; still they surely have no right to complain, as they get their seats at a much lower figure than numbers who occupy pews below; also, you can leave the doors open, as none, with the exception of individuals who sit in the rear, will be incommoded by this; and they are too insignificant to claim the attention of a fashionable sexton. 7. When you find it necessary to close the blinds on the sunny side of the church, leave them up about a foot, as this will so dazzle, that the worshipers will be obliged to shut their eyes, and perchance thereby hear the

8. When fashionable-dressed-strangers visit the church, parade them up to the most con-spicuous seats; they will be quite an ornament to the building; but plain or shabbily-dressed persons should be taught to know better than enter a fashionable church, by being stowed away in some unobstrusive corner (see James, 1.2.) where they will not be an eye-sore so the Dashers and Flashers of the congregation. It is true some rather awkward mistakes have occasion by this judging by appearance; for instance, a rich and influential citizen has found himself and family in the "corner," while his more fashionably-dressed employes have figured for the time upon an equality with "Upper-Tendom!" But, as these cases are ex-But, as these cases are exceedingly rare, you need not apprehend anything of the kind happening in your case.

9. If children, unattended by adults, presume to enter your church, send them off improved the state of the state o mediately; do this as roughly as possible, and once will be quite sufficient; we will guarantee they will never again trouble you under any circumstances. And, as an illustration of the unbounded influence of sextons over children in this respect, we here relate that an old lady informed us that she was sent roughly off by a sexton from a church when a child, and as she left the door resolved she would never in her. lifetime enter a church of that denomination, and she never did. Although she lived to very old age she was never afterwards a church-goer. She had, when a child, been very fond of going to church, but had no one to go with her. The Sexton cured her of this habit! Some sextons place children unattended under the care of a Sunday-school teacher. But these not being fashionable are no guide for your in-

10. Wear boots with very high heels, and as much creak in them as possible, then the sound of your steppings will announce to the people the precise time to turn round and gaze at the strangers you are escorting to seats.

11. When the pulpit is occupied by a stranger you need not be very particular about his having light sufficient, especially if he uses notes. His becoming perplexed and confused will cause him to appear to disadvantage, and therefore there will be no danger of the people preferring him to their own pastor.

12. When you sweep the church (or have it swept, we beg pardon) be not over particular about the dusting—it is not manly to attend to such trifles. For our own part we never see a church building well besprinkled with dust but we invariably think it a most convincing proof that the sexton belongs to the pebler servine. that the sexton belongs to the nobler sex—the masculine, and not the finical feminine gender. IMPORTANT FROM NORTH CAROLINA-THE FIGHT NEAR NEWBERN.

IMPORTANT FEOM NORTH CAROLINA—THE FIGHT NEAR NEWBERN.

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.]

Newbern, N. C., Feb. 1, 1864.—For several days rumors have been going the rounds that a large rebel force was gathering at Kingston, near here, and contemplated an attack. Last night (Sunday) a little after midnight, the pickets were driven in at Bacheldore Creek and Deep Gulley on the west, and at Brier's Oreek on the south. The alarm was soon communicated to Newbern from the front, which is some ten or twelve miles out, and the long roll sounded at 5 A. M. this morning. Some six companies of the 12th New York Oavairy, Col. Savage, were stationed near Deep Gulley. Colonel Clesson, with the 123d New York infantry, was stationed at Bacheldore Creek, some eight miles from Newbern, on the railroad. An iron car called the Monitor, mounting two guns, also assisted the defence. Lieut. Col. Fellows, of the 17th Massachusetts, with a detachment of 115 men, and a detachment of the 99th New York, accompanied by a section of Capt. Churchill's battery 3d New York, went out on the Washington road, between 5 and 6 this morning. Another section of the same battery went out on the Trent road and was captured entire. The enemy came in oa all points at the front in overwhelming numbers. Our troops held them in check till the baggage and camp equipage could be removed or 11s men of the 17th Massachusetts.

gage and camp equipage could be removed or burned.

The loss is heavy for the force employed. Out of 115 men of the 17th Massachusetts, only 50 came back. Most of the men were captured. Out of the 13 officers of the 17th Massachusetts that went out, only seven came back. Lieut. Col. J. F. Fellows, Surgeon Issac E. Galaupe, Capt. J. H. Loyd, of Boston; Lieut. Joseph W. Davy, of Brackford; Lieut. Lieut. Seph W. Davy, of Brackford; Lieut. Lieut. Gold, and Lieut. B. M. Man, of Unelsea, are missing. Lieut. Henry A. Oheever, Adjutant, was mortally wounded by a musket shot in the side, and has since died. Dr. Galaupe was dressing his wound when he was captured. Capt. Loyd lost one leg by a shell. All the other officers are supposed to be alive.

A detachment of the 17th Massachusetts, under Lieut, Conn, reached Col. Classon's camp just as the rebels drove them to the cars, and helped to burn the camp and hospital stores. In the confusion the garrison flag had been lett flying, and Lieut. Conn made a dash for it and saved it from the rebels. The troops are all in good order. A this early hour I am unable to ascertain the number of killed and wounded and missing. Probably not more than 200 30 are killed and wounded, and perhaps 100 captured.

The enemy followed our men closely, and kept our troops came under the guns of the fort.

The strack is under the rebei General Pickett.

The force is estimated at from 10,000 to 25,000 men. There are some seventeen pieces of artillery. At this writing their pickets are within about one mile of Fort Totten. Our pickets are near theirs. The attack is from three points, and is made with great determination. Our men are at the guns, and all are in the best of spirits. All available contrabands are at the riffe-pits, to do what they can. This atternoon a train of ambulances went out bearing a flag of truce to obtain our dead and wounded, and was captured, together with the surgeon accompanying it.

Brig. Gen. J. W. Palmer is in command. Col. H. T. Si-son, of the 5th R. I. Heavy Artillery, is in command of six of the forts defending Newbern—Forts Stevenson, Roman, Totten, Gaston, Amory, and Spinola.

We are patiently waiting for the morrow. That —Forts Stevenson, Roman, Totten, Gaston, Amory, and Spinola.

We are patiently waiting for the morrow. That the enemy seriously expects to reduce these works with any gans that can be transported by land seems almost incredible. The stores here are probably the prize he seeks. More to-morrow.

P. S.—I learn that Colonel Classon, 182d New York, lost three commissioned officers. His Acting Quartermaster was shot dead, and the others are mortally wounded. Seventy of his men are missing, but it is supposed that not more than ten or twelve are killed and forty or fifty captured.

Tursday Morning, Feb. 2d—10 A. M.—Lust night, some time after midnight, several boat loads of rebels came quetly down the Neuse River and captured the guiboat Underwriter. They quetly boarded her and the sailors jumped into the water and swam ashore. She was burned at once. Her magazines blew up about six o'clock this morning. The gunboat lay between two forts, one on each side of Neuse River. The full detaits are not yet known.

The firing this morning has been light and it yet known.

The firing this morning has been light and it looks as though the rebels were going. They have made a sharp and successful move. They have captured and killed about 12 commissioned officaptured and killed about 12 commissioned officers, and about 200 men, one section of a battery complete, burned or forced us to burn all the camps at the front and destroy a fine guntoat. For the force we have we feel that a fine thing has been done by us. Save the battery, he obtained nothing, as all the camps and stores not removed were burned. The day is fine after a heavy rain last night, and from present appearance our fighting is over. The band at Fort Totten is playing National airs, and all are as gay and cheerful as possible.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 3, 1861.—The trial of the Mauch Chunk rioters was continued by the Military Commission to-day.

Charles Dugan was put upon trial upon substantially the same charges and specifications upon which Bergman and O'Donnel were tried, with the addition of the following specifications:

Specification Fourth—That said Charles Dugan, in furtherance of said combination and conspiracy aforesaid, and with the object and purposes aforesaid, as mentioned above in the first specification, and to intimidate and prevent the loyal citizens of the counties of Carbon, Luzerne, and Schnylkill, from aiding and assisting the officers of said Government in the discharge of their military duties, under the laws thereof, did, by words, in substance, threaten and declare that he would resist by force all the officers and other persons in and of the Government concerned in enforcing the laws of the United States, for enrolling and drafting any and all persons subject to military duty under the laws thereof. This was said and one at the Township of Banks, in the County of Carbon, and State of Pennsylvania on the 1st day of November, A. D. 1863, and at divers days, times and places, before and after said mentioned day.

Specification Fifth—That the said Charles Dugan, in furtherance of said combination and conspiracy aforesaid, and with the object and purposes aforesaid, as mentioned above in the first specification, and to intimidate and prevent the loyal citizens of the counties of Carbon. Luzerne and Schuyltil aforesaid, and with the object and purposes aforesaid, as mentioned above in the first specification, and to intimidate and prevent the loyal citizens of the counties of Carbon. Luzerne and Schuylkill, in the State of Pennsylvania, from aiding and assisting the officers of said Government in the discharge of their military duties under the laws thereof, did, in words substantially, say and declare that he would kill and murder any or all citizens residing in the neighborhood, who should aid or assist the officers of the Government of the United States in enforcing the draft under the laws thereof, or should give the names of those persons subject to military duty under said laws, or should give notice to said officers where the persons so subject to military duty resided or could be found, or who were or might be drafted under said laws. This said and done at the township of Banks, in the county of Carbon, and State of Pennsylvania, on the 1st day of November, A. D. 1563, and at divers other times and places before and since that date.

Patrick Murphy was called by the Judge Advocate. He swore that he attended a meeting in the woods between Janesville and Hazleton some time in June, 1863, called and organized for the purpose of resisting the draft; that the prisoner was at the meeting and acted as a sort of a marshal to form the men in ranks and march them to and from the meeting. That the meeting was organized in the morning and lasted nearly all day; there were from six to eight hundred persons present; speeches were made by Peter Dillon and several others, to the effect that they should organize to resist the draft, and if they were true to one another and all stood together, the Government would not be able to force them into the ranks of Lincoln's Abolitionists.

one another and all stood together, the Government would not be able to force them into the ranks of Lincoln's Abolitionists.

George Haycook was called by the Judge Advocate. He swore that he attended a meeting gotten up to resist the draft; that the prisoner Charles Jugan was present and took as active part in the proceedings. Edward Winters (who has since run away), made a speech, and said, "They had met to maintain the 'Constitution as it is, and the Union as it was,' and to resist the draft—that the Southerners were fighting for their rights, and if they were true to themselves they could not be compelled to fight against them." Witness swore that he, with Hugh Mulligan, 'Im Sweeny and John Paul, were appointed a committee to go around and take the names of those who would join, to resist the draft, and if any one refused to have his name put down and aid in resisting the draft, he was to have notice and be driven from the county in twenty-four hours.

John P. Shurman was also called by the Judge Advocate. He swore that he had a conversation with the prisoner, Charles Jugan, the morning after the méeting, and they appointed a committee to enroll names to resist the draft; that they were all going to be armed to resist the officers of the Government in making the draft; that this was a nigger war, and they had rather fight and die at their own doors than go and fight for Abe Lincoln and his niggers; that they intended to kill Mr. Pardee, (the Provost Marshal)'s records. Shurman swore also that the prisoner, Dugan, told him that the plan was to go to Beaver Meadow, and surprise Capt. Yates's (formerly of the Scheneckady Times) Company, of the Invalid Corps, kill them and take their arms, and march on to Scranton, and attack and overpower the troops stationed there, and by that time Gen. Lee would be in Pennsylvania with his army, and be largely reinforced from the mines, and they be and of lawless rufflans.

To me further testimony was introduced to show that George K. Smith took dia active part in assisting repairs.

We learn that affairs off Charleston are still in We learn that affairs off Charleston are still in statu quo. A slow but regular bombardment is carried on by Gen. Gillmore. Our firing averages three shells every five minutes. Fort Sumter, though a mass of ruins, is by no means untenable. It is ascertained that five guns have been mounted there, and the desperate rebels have been engaged in piling up sand-bags and cutting ravines through the rubbish of brick and mortar. The garrison, however, can do but little under the surveillance of Gen. Gillmore. There is no firing from the navy. The iron-clads still keep up a line of picket every night, which is arduous enough, especially in bad weather. It is said that the attempt to raise the Weehawken will prove a failure.

The town of Charleston does not yet show many marks of our fire. Its destruction will be the work of time. FROM NEW OBLEANS.
