XXXVIIITH CONGRESS.—FIRST SESSION. CLOSE OF TESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS,

The bill equalizing the pay of soldiers in the United States army being under consideration, Mr. Davis (Ky.) resumed his remarks on the amendment offered by him yesterday. He said, though the write of babes correspondent amendment offered by him yesterday. He said, though the writ of habeas corpus was suspended, it did not suspend the trial which every citizen has a right to under the Constitution and the laws. a right to under the Constitution and the laws. The President assumed the enormous responsibility to prohibit the return of the States and or their constitutions, and required that certain conditions which were abhorrent to the majority of the people of these States shall be complied with before the State shall be allowed to return to the Union. The re-election of the present President, or the election of a person of similar radical views, would confirm these enormous usurpations and abuses of power. In the course of his speech, Mr. Davis referred to a remark attributed to Mr. Seward by Lord Lyons, on newspaper authority, in which the Secretary of State is reported as having said: 'My Lord; Tean ring this bell, and a citizen of New York will be arrested; and this, and a citizen of Indiana will be placed in duress.''

Mr. Javis proceeded to comment on the consequences of such a state of affairs.

Mr. Davis proceeded to comment on the consequences of such a state of affairs.

Mr. Anthony (R. I.) interrupting, wished to know whether the Senator from Kentucky was cognizant of the truth of the paragraph, and would inquire whether it were not more proper to know the facts before parading them in the Senate, with his comments upon them.

Mr. Lavis declined to be interrupted, as he knew the Senate was weary with his talk, and to acknowledge the God's truth, he was tired of it himself. [Great laughter.]

Mr. Davis referred to a meeting held at one fime in Massachnsetts, at which resolutions were passed inciting the negroes of the South to revolt against their masters. The Senatar from Massachusetts took a prominent part in that meeting, and get did not raise a word of objection against such an our ageous proposition. such an our ageous proposition.

Mr. Wilson said he was at the meeting as a spectator

Mr. Davis proceeded at great length in deaudciation of the course of Massachusetts since the dormation of the Federal government, and made some satisfical allusions to her Senutors on the Senate floor at this time. He said the military Senator, Mr. Wilson, had attempted to buly and domineer over these who were his peers on this floor.

Mr. Wilson called Mr. Davis to order.

The Chair sustained the question of order.

Mr. Peolittic thought the whole tener of the remarks of the Senator from Kentucky were calculated to create personal strife. He should either call the Senator from Kentucky to order leave the Senate, as he would not sit in his seat and listen to these personal stricks. They were not only out. Senate, as he would not sit in his seat and listen, to these personal attacks. They were not only out of order, but beneath the dignity of the Senate. The time of the Senate was too precious to be wasted in personal vituperation.

Mr. Johnson agreed with the Senator from Wisconsin that much of what had been said by the Senator from Kentucky was productive of nothing but mischief. but mischief.

Mr: Wilson hoped the Senator from Kentucky would be allowed to conclude his remarks, whatwould be showed to conclude his remarks, what-wer they might be.

Mr. Sumner had never made any harsh allusion o the Senator frem Kentucky, and he was willing hat he should proceed in his attacks against him until decoration.

until doomsday.
Mr. Davis then concluded his remarks.
Mr. Summer offered amendments to the Constitution of the United States, as a substitute for those reported by Mr. Trumbull, from the Judiciary Committee, a few days ago, and asked that they might be made the especial order for Monday next.

mext.

Mr. Sumner's amendments are as follows:

T. There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude anywhere in the United States, or within the jurisdiction thereof, otherwise than in punishment for crime, and that Congress may make ill laws necessary and proper to enforce its pro hibition.

2. To strike out the third paragraph of the constitu-2. To strike outing third paragraph of the re-cond section of the fourth article of the Constitu-tion, except the words "excluding Indians not taxed," so that the whole clause should read, "Representatives and direct taxes shall be ap-portioned among the several States of the Union saccording to their number, excluding Indians not taxed."

3. To strike out from the third paragraph, second section, fourth article of the Constitution, the words 'no person held to service or labor in one State under the laws thereof, and escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any laws for regulations therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on the claim of the party to whom such service or labor 'may be due,'

may be due."

On motion of Mr. Hale, the Senate went into Executive session and afterwards adjourned. Mr. Farnsworth (III.) introduced the following joint resolution:

Be it resolved, &c., That the thanks of Congress are hereby given to those noble and brave men who, having already so gallantly endured the hardships and perils of war for more than two years in support of their country and flag, present the sublime spectacle of again voluntarily enrolling themselves in the army of the Union for another three years' campaign, or so long as the war shall continue.

Second, That the Secretary of War may cause shall continue.

Second, That the Secretary of War may cause this resolution to be read to each of the veteran regiments which have re-enlisted, or shall re-enlist in both the volunteer and regular forces of the United States.

United States.
The resolution was unanimously passed without debate.
Mr. Dawes (Mass.), from the Committee on Elections, reported resolutions declaring that John S. S. eeper is not entitled to a seat as Representative from the Third Congressional District of Massachusetts, and that Alexander H. Rice is entitled

The resolutions were ordered to be printed, and The resolutions were ordered to be printed, and the House resumed the consideration of the bill te-establish a bureau for freedmen's affairs.

Mr. Cox (Ohio), after discussing its constitutionality and humanity, stated that he could not support so novel, sweeping and revolutionary a scheme as establishing an eleemosynary system for blacks by the Federal Government, and making the Government a plantation speculator and overblacks by the Federal Government, and making the Government a plantation speculator and overseer. He held that the highest humanity was adherence to the Constitution. We are invoked to look the fact in the face, that millions more of slaves will be freed who are unfit for freedom and need care. This is too true. We cannot, by shutting one eye, ignore the fact. He accepted events, and he advised the humanity of New England, fattening upon Western toil, todo its part in saving the slaves so improvidently freed. If slavery be adoomed, then the conflict will be between black and white, and no longer between slavery and freedom. No system like this can save the slave. freedom. No system like this can save the slave. No new system of miscegenation, which is but another name for amalgamation, and which is being arged by Abolitonists, and to establish which as a system, no doubt, we shall soon have a bureau, will care the least will save the slave. The Northern Democracy are not responsible for his extirpation. While we never were pro-slavery, we were for non-intervention. Slaver-may be crushed out as the war goes on, but so will may be crushed out as the war goes on, but so will the slave. If slavery had to die, good men would have prepared the slave to be saved, and that it should have been by the enforced action of the States, not by the rough usages of war and the usurpation of power.

For this condition of the slave the dominant

For this condition of the slave the dominant party is responsible. In striking at slavery they have struck down local liberty, of which the Northern Democracy are the champions. They have marred the perfection and periled the endurance of our political fabric. For this they must answer next fall. No more cry of prostavery Democracy. The issue will be the old order, with Democracy to administer, or continued revolution with despotism.

The grand old Union, with as much of local sovereignty and constitutional and personal freedom as may be saved from the abrasion of war and the aggrandizement of power, or a new abolition military unity of territory, with a trinity of debi, tyranny and fanaticism.

M. Washburne said he had always listened to the gentleman's speech with attention, for he had bere dit severe!

They should not, probably, during the next session of Congress hear the gentleman series that the contract of heard it several times before "They should no, probably, during the next session of Congress hear the gentleman again rehearse his speech, for Judging by the recent elections in Ohio, and particularly in the gentleman's district, he would say to him; in the language of Watts, and in as solemn a spirit: "Ye dying men, come view the ground where you must shortly lie. [Langhter.]

He here desired the House to hear what their friend from Ohio had written in his book called "The Buckeye Abroad" as to what he saw at Rome, and while he was rambling among the gilded corridors of St. Peter's. Writing about the music which ravished the ear, and the incense Rome, and white in was fambling among the gilded corridors of St. Peter's. Writing about the music which ravished the ear, and the incense which tittilated the nose, the author says, soon there arose in that chamber—what a shocking thing it would be here—a plain. African, delivered a sermon in Latin in the most graceful manner. The priest referred to was an Abyssinian. What a commentary, Mr. Washburne said, this was on our African prejudices. [Laughter.] The head of the great Cathollo Church, serrounded by the Aripest scholars of the age from all parts of the world, listening, not to our friend from Ohio, but to the eloquence of the despised negro, and thereby, in the language of the author, illustrating to the world the common bond of brotherhood that binds the human race." [Laughter.]
Mr. Washburne further read from Mr. Cox's—book, making comments as he proceeded, and referred to the passage in which it said copies of the sermon of the citizen of African descent, beautifully printed, were distributed at the door of the Cathedral.

Mr. Cox wished to renly, but an analysis.

athedrai. Mr. Cox wished to reply, but an epportunity Mr. Cox wished to reply, but an epportunity was not furnished for that purpose.
The House took up the Senate joint resolution of thenks to Mejor-General George Thomas and the officers and men under his command at the battle of Chickamauga.
Mr. Garfield (Ohio) moved to include the name of General W. S. Rosecrans.
Mr. Farnsworth thought thanks to that officer ought to be provided for in a separate resolution.
Mr. Garfield said that thanks of Congress had become a cheap thing. The time was when thank-were bestowed only for great fleeds, and then in the most solemn manner; but thanks are now given not only to chiefs but to subordinates, and nobody clie was not robbed. He had been so willing to thank any man that he had not seen fit to interpose any objection. Now, no keve, when it came to close to his own history, he could not permit such a resolution to go through without protest. He appealed to the House not to do injustice by singling out a subordinate in battle and give to him the thanks of Congress, without saying a word about the principal, not only in the battle of Chickamanga, but in a series of important campalgns. Some one has said that Congress had already voted thanks to General Rosecrans, but that was last year, for his conduct at Murfdesboro'. He was ready to meet with a denial any min who might say Rosecrans was not entitled to thanks for his conduct at Chickamanga. It has been the custom of the press to treat the battle as a defeat. If that was a defeat we might welcome all such disasters. If our army continues to suffer such defeats.

tom of the press to treat the battle as a defeat. If that was a defeat we might welcome all such disasters. If our army continues to suffer such disasters. If our army continues to suffer such defeats, the rebel army would soon be destroyed, and the great campaigns limited. The object of the movement at Chickamaga was to drive the enemy beyond the Tennessee river, and lay the base for future operations.

The Army or the Cumberland met and repulsed the rebels, and gained the key of the Cumberland Mountains and hoid it. If there had been greater success against such odds since the war began, he had not heard of it. Our army on that day, not more than forty, two thousand, met not less than seventy-five thousand of the enemy, who threw the weight of his mighty forces upon us, and in the aiternoon not more than twenty-five thousand of our troops met that immense host, and at the last charge the rebels were driven from our border. The history of the country would tell us that Rosscrans won the battles in Western Virginia at the commencement of the war, but another had the commencement of the war, but another had nosecrans won the battles in Western Virginia at the commencement of the war, but another had carried away the ronor.

Mr. Garfield rapidly traced the military operations of Rosecrans at Bowling Green, Muriressbero' and at other points, and said that at Chattanooga we had numbers superior to the enemy, while at Chickamanga the relets outnumbered us. He would honor General Thomas, but Thomas would not desire to be honored at the expense of Resecrans. Thomas's name deserved to be written in letters of gold Before he parted with Thomas, the latter said to him, in the most solemn manner, after the battle of Chickamanga, "By all means prevent the removal of Rosecrans from the command of the army." This man, said Mr. Garifeld, you would burden with thanks, at the expense of his superior officer.

On motion of Mr. Fenton (N. Y.), the resolution was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union on the Navy Appropriation bill.

Mr. Tayson (Pa. made a speech in favor of an propriation bill. Mr. Dawson (Pa.) made a speech in favor of an ont. McBride (Oregon), regarding the war as one for self-defence, made a strong Union speech. The Committee then rose, and at half-past four he House adjourned:
