EVENING BULLETIN

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1864.

COMPLETING THE GRIDIRON. On Monday last a bill was introduced into the House of Representatives at Harrisburg neorporating a railroad company to construct a road on Seventh and Ninth streets, and running to Fairmount. The corporators named are Elisha C. Pauling, Thos-W. Price, Charles Thompson Jones, Amos Briggs, D. W. Gamble, Barclay Harding, William B. Mann, Joseph McGary, Alexander T. Dixon, Hiram Miller, James A. Freeman, Joseph Manuel, Samuel P. Hancock, Henry W. Gray, Enoch Green. These persons, or a majority of them, are appointed Commissioners to open books, receive subscriptions, and organize a company, by the name, style and title of "The Seventh and Ninth streets and Fairmount Passenger Railway Company," with power to construct a passenger railway, beginning at Seventh and Morris streets, thence along Morris street west to Ninth street, thence north along Ninth street to Ridge avenue, thence northwest along Ridge avenue to Mount Vernon street, thence along Mount Vernon street to Twenty-third street, thence north along Twenty-third street to Coates street, thence Park; thence returning east along Coates street to Twenty-second street, thence south along Twenty-second street to Wallace street, thence east along Wallace street to Ridge avenue, thence southeast along Ridge avenue to Spring. Garden street, thence east along Spring Garden street to Seventh street, thence south along Seventh street, around the west side of Franklin and Washington Squares to the place of beginning. Subject to all the provisions and restrictions of an act regulating railroad companies, approved the nineteenth day of February, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, and the several supplements thereto, so far as the same is not altered and repealed by this act. And the said "Seventh and Ninth Streets and Fairmount Passenger Railway Company" shall have the right to cross at grade and connect with any other railroad now built or that may hereafter be built in the city of Philadelphia.

In other words this bill proposes to lay a railway track upon almost every principal street in the city, which is not already occupied with a railroad. Persons who desire to travel up-town from Morris street to Arch, or down-town from Arch street to Morris, can find cars running on Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Tenth and Eleventh streets; while the Thirteenth and Fifteenth, and Seventeenth and Nincteenth streets railways run from the extreme upper end of the city to Prime street. Ninth street from Arch to Vine, Ridge avenue from Vine street north, and Coates street, through-out its entire length, are already gridironed, and the proposed new road must either run over the rails already laid, or additional tracks must be constructed. Seventh, Ninth, Twenty-third, Mount Vernon, Wallace and Spring Garden streets are among the few principal thoroughfares in the city which have escaped railway tracks along their entire length. This bill proposes to finish up the work of gridironing the city by laying tracks where they are not needed, and where they will be worse than useless. It is no desire to supply a public want that has prompted this move; but it is simply a matter of speculation. We have but little faith in the Legislature resisting the substantial arguments that are sometimes employed to secure the passage of such bills as this; but we trust that city councils will interpose their authority in the event of the bill becoming a law, and express their dissent to the measure within the thirty days named in the bill. City railways are very good things in their way; but we have quite a sufficiency of them, and "too much of a good thing is good for no-

FAIRMOUNT PARK.

Should the project of purchasing the ground between Pennsylvania avenue, Coates street and Landing avenue be carried out, as now appears likely, we trust that it will not be suffered to remain in its present condition. If care is not taken, the ses will cease to be occupied by political hangers-on at nominal rents, as was so long the case at Lemon Hill. We all remember how that beautiful spot was for years, under Democratic rule, a low groggery, which no decent person could go near, and a chosen centre of rowdyism, until the Republicans rescued it, and opened it for the benefit of the citizens at large. If the ground is worth buying, it is worth applying to the purpose for which it is bought, and so long as it remains as it is, it matters little to the public who owns it.

There seems very little good sense applied to the management of our public grounds. Large sums are spent, and yet the most obvious matters are disregarded. Look at Landing Avenue, hot, sunny and dusty. A few dollars would have planted an avenue of trees along it, which, if done a few years since, would now give shade and shelter. The seats in the Lemon Hill portion are altogether too few. In fine weather it is hard to find one vacant. How much better is money spent for these purposes than in putting up ugly iron boxes over springs of dirty water, or in patching up the existing buildings, instead of removing them altogether. The amount of money required for these places need never be large, but it should be judiciously applied.

THE ALABAMA. There can be little doubt of the truth of the report, that comes by way of San Francisco, that in the beginning of January the pirate steamer Alabama was in dock at Amoy, China, and that the United States steamer Wyoming was standing guard over her. We trust that this fact may be considered as equivalent to the termination of the Alabama's piratical career. If Commander. McDougal were to put a more prompt and decisive termination to it, by firing a broadside into her in the harbor, it would be eminently satisfactory to the loyal people of this country. China has never recognized the rebel government as even a belligerent power. Her depredations upon our commerce, therefore, are simple acts of piracy, and there could be no justifiable complaints against us if we were to destroy her in a Chinese port. We shall rejoice if the next news received should be that the outlaw and pirate Semmes has lost his ship by the mode we suggest.

SPECULATORS VS. THE PEOPLE. It was stated in the House, on Monday, that the question as to whether spirits on hand should be taxed or not would make a difference of ten millions of dollars! To the consumers this question is without interest, as, whichever way it is decided, the price charged for it will be the same. Alcohol, worth a few years ago 56 cents per gallon, s now selling at $1 98. The point is simply whether these ten millions shall go to the government or speculators. The lobby pressure is tremendous, and under it many have yielded of whom better things were This is now said to have been a mistake of the west along Coates street to Fairmount expected. The vote on the final question House printer.

will be scanned carefully, and members who wish to preserve an unsullied character should look out for their record.

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE. One of the most amusing pieces of news by a late arrival is that the Empress of France has thrown her Italian perfumer into prison for having sold some of the secrets of her toilet. Really this carries one refreshingly back to the times of Catherine de Medici and Réné le Florentin; only that it is to be hoped, that the secrets are of a The Treasurer of the Eighth Ward less dangerous sort. There is something inexpressibly comic in the spectacle of this middle aged lady endeavoring to appropriate to herself these secrets of artificial embellishment; as if the fountain of youth could spring from a perfumer's vial, or the purpureum lumen juventæ be worked up into a pommade.

RADICALISM OF BAYONETS: The process of reasoning by which a man reaches a given result is a curious and often mysterious operation. At St. Louis, recently, on the occasion of the reception of a number of veteran volunteers of Missouri, Gen. McNeil in a pithy speech thus showed how he had attained to his present views of the war and sla-

'I and many others have stood here, the faithful sentinels over every man's negro. The traitors dared this rebellion in order to open the slave trade. They were afraid of the growth of population on this grand bread-growing country, and broke the contract under which we worked faithfully, and when they broke that contract, I said we would make a new contract which would wipe out slavery. [Cheers.] I never should have interfered—I was a Conservative in times of peace; I always have been a Conservative. I thank God my father gave me a trade, and when he sent me out he said he was putting a loaf of bread under my arm. I never asked for a public order. I felt Conservative. If the like sentaining coercibing the kent tive; I filt like sustaining everything that kept peace and quietness between our neighbors. When this war came, I said we will have a new deal entirely and before this war is done will do away with the cause of it. You may suppose I am diverging into the line of politics; but in this war soldier cannot talk without getting into politics. Every hing is political, and bayone's are radical.

General McNeil is only the type of a class comprising scores of thousands of the best kind of democrats in the land. Many of them are as far advanced as he and a long procession follows in his rear, with steady step. Recently, in the House of Representatives at Washington, Hon. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, late shief of staff to Gen. Rosecrans, gave utterance to an account of his change of views in the subjoined terse and energetic style:

"I remember to have said to a friend when I entered the army, 'You hate Slavery; so do I; but I hate Disunion more. Let us drop the Slavery question and fight to sustain the Union. When the supremacy of the Government has been restablished, we will attend to the other question.' I started out with that position, taken in good faith, as did thousands of others of all parties. But the army soon found that, do what it would, the black phantom met it everywhere, in the camp, in the bivonac, on the battle-field, and at all times. It was a ghost that would not be laid. Slavery was both the strength and weakness of the enemy. His strength—for it tilled his fields and ted his legions; his weakness—for in the hearts of slaves dwelt dim prophecies that their deliveranc, from bondage would be the outcome of the war. The negroes came from he cotton-fields; they swam rivers; they climbed mountains: they came through jungles, in the darkness and storms of the night, to tell us that the enemy was coming here or coming there. They were our true friends in every case. There has hardly been a battle, a march, or any important event of the war, where the friend of our cause, the black man, has not been found truthful and helpful, and always devotedly loyal. The conviction forced litely upon the mind of every soldier that behind the rebet army of soldiers, the black army of laborers was feeding and sustaining the rebellion, and there could be no victory till its main support be taken away.

"Gentlemen on the other side, you tell me that this is an Aboltion war. If you pleas to say so, I grant it. The rapid current of events has made the army of the Republic an Aboltion army. I can find in the ranks a thousand men whe are in favor of sweeping away Slavery to every dozen that desire to preserve it. They have been where they have seen its malevolence, its baleful effect upon the country and the Union, and they demand that it hall be swept away."

Among the gigantic and inappreciable losses

Among the gigantic and inappreciable losses of the slave-holding South, they count the warm friendship of tens of thousands of men like McNeil and Garfield! While the South maintained its loyalty, even only in appearance, their Northern friends would have stood by them and their institutions to the last drop of blood; but when they reared the fell crest of treason and rebellion, their friends shrunk back as from something worse than death, and roused themselves from visions of Southern chivalry and honor to the hideous reality. DEATH OF GENERAL DUNCAN.

The venerable General William Duncan died at his residence on Tuesday last, at the age of ninety-two years. For many years he had been a resident of Philadelphia, though a native of Adams county. He was an intimate friend, in early life, of Robert Morris, the great financier. In the War of 1812 he was an active officer, and held several prominent military commands under the State and National Governments. He also, under Presidents Madison and Jackson, held important civic offices, his last public position being that of Surveyor of this port. Since that period he has been retired from active life, though retaining to the last his interest in certain public institutions which he had aided in founding. For more than half a century General Duncan was an office-bearer in the First Baptist Church, and his entire life was in consonance with his religious professions. His funeral is announced to be from his late afternoon, and the interment of the remains will take place at Woodland Cemetery. MR. MURDOCH'S SECOND READING takes place this evening at the Musical Fund Hall. In addition to his Scripturel extracts he will read a number of poems by famous American and English authors. Mr. Murdoch deserves the most liberal support from our loyal citizens, for he has labored in the army and for the army with great zeal and disinterestedness. His first reading gave great satisfaction to his large audience, and we have no doubt but that he will equally interest those who attend the second and third readings of the course.

GERMAN OPERA .- La Dame Blanche was beautifully played last evening by the Germans, at the Academy of Music. Habelmann's singing surpassed in beauty and purity that of any tenor we have had here since Mario. To-morrow evening Don Giovanni will be produced, cast to the full strength of the company. Of course there will be a full house, as there always is to hear the master-piece of Mozart. On Saturday, for a matinée, Stradella will be given. THE NEW LEHIGH RAILROAD.—The bill authorizing the construction of a new railroad from Mauch Chunk, down the Lehigh Valley to the Delaware, passed the House yesterday. As passed, the length of the branches authorized is limited to two miles. As originally printed, and as copied by us yesterday, the length of the branches was limited to "two hundred miles."

P LMUVAL.

R JOHN C.BAKER has removed from 154 North Third street to 718 MARKET street. Particular attention will be given to the manufacturing and bottling of his celebrated Cod Liver Oil.

John C. Baker & Co.'s Medicinal Cod Liver Oil has for many years had a reputation for genuineness, firshness purity and sweetness, which has made the demand universal. In this house, 718 Market street, the facilities for obtaining, manufacturing and bottling are greatly increased, and is all done under the most careful supervision of the original and sole proprietor. This brand of Oil has, therefore, advantages over all others, and recommends itself.
