LATE FROM TEXAS. [Correspondence of the New York Tribune.] New OILEANS, Feb. 11.—The news received in this city by the steamer Crescent, which arrived iastnight, bringing mails from Brownsville, Texas, and from Pass Cavillo, is interesting, though not exciting. At the points occupied by our troops on the Texas coast all is quiet and dull. A party con-sisting of nine loyal Texans arrived in Brownsville a day or two before the sailing of the Crescent, di-rect from San Antenio, which place they left on the night of the 23d of January. One of the party, a very intelligent gentiemaa, who has heretofore occupied a high social and political position in Texas, was sen there by General Banks his information touching the state of affairs in the Lone Star State. I have seen and couversed with him. He says that General Magruder's army, amounting to about twenty thoreaud mer., is en-camped in and around Houston. At least one-half of it is well armed with Entield rifles and Minie muskets. The remainder is cavalry, and is armed promiscuonely with snot-guns, subres, porting rifles. carbines and misio, such is armed promiscuously with snot-guns, sabres, sporting rifles, carbines and pistols, and such other weapons as had been picked up through other weapons as had been picked up through the country. Magruder was poorly supplied with field artillery, and his siege guns are princi-pally in position at Galveston. The loss of artii-lery sustained by him at Saluria has been seriously feit. The ammunition for this army has been sup-plied through Mexico, and in small quantities, from the east side of the Mississippi, the crossings having been effected above Natchez without much difficulty. Supplies of articles of prime necessity are easily procured in the neighborhood of Hons. are easily procured in the neighborhood of Hous-ton, that being one of the earliest settled and richest portions of the State, with good crops last

The measures adopted by the rebel authorities, State and Confederate, have been very effective in swelling the ranks of the armies of Magrider and Kirby Smith. Nearly every male citizen of the State is now either connected with some military organization, or is a refuree in Mexico, the mountains, or elsewhere. Exempts are no longer exempt, and nothing but flight, or absolute and utter physical incapacity to handle a gun, will save man or boy from becoming food for powder in the rebel ranks. It will be remembered that Tom Reynoids, of Missouri, and other fugitives and peripatelic Governors, met the Governor of Texas, for a council, sometime last Fall. An address to the people of the South west and Trans. Mississippi States was then and there concocted, in which it was mysteriously hinted that very vigorous and very effective measures for involving in the Inics of Federal occupation had been gassed. It is now evident, however, that the measures alluded to consisted in the formation of a well-organized set of secret societies, distributed throughout the second of rescuency, and controlled and managed by the most malevel up the rebel cause is at once put down on what is styled "the roll of infamy," and thence, forth his life, his liberty, property and the sancity of his home are in the hands of as graceless as et of scampa as ever cut a throat. ERESONAL. PERSONAL. Lieutenant-Commander Dawson Phenix, U.-S. Navy, died at the Washington House, in this city, on Saturday last, in the thirty-seventh year of his age. Lieut. Phenix was a native of Baltimore, but was well known in Philadelphia. He entered the navy in September, 1841, and attained the rank he held at the time of his death, on the sixteenth of July, 1862. He had been recently upon special ordnance duty. His funeral will take place this afternoon.

THE DAILY EVENING BULLETIN : PHILADELPHIA. MONDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1884 HORRIBLE MURDER .- An Irishman named Cornelius Tuell, who lives on Third street, between F and G, Washington, murdered his wife some time during the afternoon of ACADEMY OF MUSIO. Wednesday, by cutting her head with an axe and beating her with a hammer. Suspicion of the fact was not aroused until Friday morning, when the murderer was arrested. After the murder of the woman, Tuell, in company with George Ballard, a teamster, went to Mr. Plant, the undertaker, and procured from him a coffin, stating that his wife had just died of the small-pox, and that he considered it unadvisable for any one to visit the house. The mangled body was placed in the coffin, and the two then carried it to a stable between Sixth and Seventh streets and I and Massachusetts avenue, and deposited it there for the night. On Friday morning the body was taken to Glenwood Cemetery, and buried as a smallpox case, under the name of Jane Farrell.

After the arrest of Tuell, an investigation was had befere Justice Giberson. A son of the murderer, a boy ten years of age, testified that he saw his father strike his mother with an axe about four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. He identified the axe and hammer.

George Ballard testified that he was acquainted with the prisoner. On Thursday, about 6 o'clock P. M. ., prisoner went to witness's house; he seemed to be excited. Witness asked him the matter; he said his wife was dead. Tuell said he could not go to much expense; that the priest said she could not be buried in the Catholic burial ground, and he wanted witness to go to Mr. Plant's and get a coffin. Witness went with him, got the coffin, went to Tuell's house, put the body, which was wrapped in a sheet, in the coffin, and carried it to witness's stable about 9 o'clock. Tuell said his wife fell down the steps while drunk. After this testimony had been elicited, Tuell was committed to prison, and Ballard was held to bail as a witness. Tuell is about twentyeight years of age, and treats the affair with great indifference. The murdered woman was about twenty-four years of age, and quite prepossessing in appearance. The head of the corpse was horribly mutilated, the wrist broken; and the body generally discolored from the effects of blows inflicted.
