J. E. GOULD, Seventh and Chestnut. EVENING BULLETIN TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1864.

THE NATIONAL UNION CONVENTION. The National Union Committee, at a meeting held in Washington city, has determined that the National Convention, to nominate eandidates for the Presidency and Vice Presidency, shall assemble at Baltimore on Tuesday, the 7th of June. Although we should have preferred an earlier day, this will be soon enough for all practical purposes. The loyal people of all the States should now begin deliberately to prepare for this important convention. The best men should be chosen as delegates; men of intellect, education and high character. No mere politicians or office-holders should be chosen. On the contrary, it should be the endeavor of every constituency to select delegates who are not politicians or officeholders; so that this convention, preliminary to one of the most important elections in our history, may be composed of pure, disinterested and unsuspected men.

We believe that if the wishes of ninetenths of the loyal people of this country could be fairly expressed, President Lincoln would be renominated without any show of opposition worth speaking of. To secure such an expression of the popular opinion should be the endeavor in selecting delegates to the National Convention. The State conventions, in the first place, should be composed of able, honest, and patriotic and upright portion of the community neglect to do their part of the work in the selection of delegates, it will be done by the corrupt and the intriguing, and the convention will not fairly represent the wishes of the people. Already there are cliques at work trying to forestall public sentiment and to create distrust in the President and his policy. Insidious reports, pretending to be despatches from Washington, and insinuations of various kinds, tending to prejudice the public mind, appear in certain journals, some of which have been and still are large recipients of the ism win their way to men's respect and bounty of the administration. The people must be put upon their guard against these tricks of the unprincipled and intriguing. Let them judge the President by his own words and deeds, and not by the stories cir-opposition to the nomination of Mr. Lincoln, whose re-election we regard as of vital importance to the country.

WHAT THIRTY-TWO YEARS HAVE BROUGHT FORTH.
Our attention has been directed, at an opportune time, to a report published in the local newspapers on the occasion of the great centennial anniversary celebration of the birth-day of Washington, which took place in this city thirty-two years ago, and the wide contrast that is exhibited between the details of this celebration and of that which was observed yesterday, gives us an idea of the changes which a quarter of a century has wrought. Philadelphia was not a great, compact, consolidated city in 1832. We are reminded of this fact by the reporter of that period, mentioning the presence in the line of the great parade, of the "citizens of Southwark," the "citizens of Northern Liberties," and so on through all the separate and independent municipalities which then formed Philadelphia. Consolidation took place in 1854, and so radical has been the change wrought by it that we have almost forgotten that there ever were any divisions of our local territory, except such as were defined by wards bearing distinctive numerical appellations. In fact, there are comparatively few persons now who can tell from memory what the bounds of the old defunct "districts" were.

The various trades walked and worked in the great procession of 1832, and the enumeration of the different descriptions of handicrafts-men furnishes us with a clue to the improvements that have been made in the arts within thirty-two years. There were cordwainers and tailors, and masons and carpenters, and boat-builders and weavers-trades that have been practised almost ever since "Adam delved and Eve span;" but we look in vain for the locomotive builder, the worker upon iron-clad ships, the maker of "last fast" printing presses, the fabricator of reaping and mowing machines, the manipulator of the magnetic telegraph, the constructor of railways and cars, the maker of rifled guns and revolving pistols, the photographer, or the representatives of the many branches of business growing out of that wondrous art. Upon that day we find, too, that the fire department of the city made their first general parade (they have had a good many since); but we find there no notice of the presence, in the line of the procession, of a steam fire engine. In 1832 Philadelphia contained scarcely a single marble-fronted storehouse, and there was not a solitary building in the city which had an entire granite front; the streets were dimly lighted at night with dingy oil lamps, and they continued to be so lighted until three years afterwards. The wealthiest citizen of that time could not boast as handsome a chandelier, or illuminate his parlor with as bright a light, as a thrifty journeyman mechanic

The principal business thoroughfare of the town was encumbered with a long range of shambles in 1832, and the magnificent market-houses of the present day were not dreamed of. Locomotives were unknown; the trade between the city and the great West was carried on by means of lumbering Conestoga wagons, and passengers could reach Pittsburgh by stage, in three days, by traveling day and night, with the aid of an occasional "lift" on a bit of canal. The stage lines for the North, South and West started, in those days, from "Jim" Reeside's two-storied frame stage-office in Third street, above Chestnut, and foot pads robbed the great Western mail, and tied the passengers to trees, on the Ridge road, this side of where Girard College now stands, just as they might have done on Hounslow Heath a hundred years earlier. In 1832 there was not an inch of magnetic telegraph in existence, and not only were city railways unknown, but the day of the now obsolete omnibuses had not yet dawned. The first Philadelphia omnibus did not astonish the good people of the town, as an exhibition of daring enterprise, until 1833, a year later. In 1832 the latest news was received by stage and steambeat. Steam was scarcely heard of in connection with locomotion, and it was entirely unknown in its application to the running of a printing machine; and a cylinder press, that would turn off its tens of thousands of impressions an hour, was not thought of in the wildest dreams of the newspaper people of that can enjoy in 1864.

The names of the prominent citizens who took an active part in the great centennial celebration are as strange to the ears of their present generation of Philadelphians, as the mechanical and scientific advances of the present time would have sounded to the people of 1832, could they have been named to them. We find that Col. Clement C. Biddle was Chief Marshal of the civic pormen. If the intelligent, disinterested discover among the Marshals such familiar tion of the procession, and although we names as John Swift, Josiah Randall, and James Harper, the majority of the names would sound strangely to the ears of modern Philadelphians. The concluding ceremonies of the day embraced the reading, in Independence Square, of Washington's Farewell Address, by William Rawle, Esq., a most worthy representative of the old time lawyers of Philadelphia, and a prayer by Bishop White, a name that will be remembered and venerated while earnest piety, purity of life, simplicity of character and true patriot-esteem. The political bearings of the display, yesterday, were quite as significant as the material changes which thirty-two years culated for political effect. But they must when the loyal and patriotic people have wrought. At the very time also take a direct and active interest in the of Philadelphia were doing special homage work of choosing delegates to the Baltimore to the memory of the great American whose convention. If they do this, then the con- ashes rest on the banks of the Potomac, devention will be composed of the right kind | generate men of his own section were planof material, and there will be no pretence of | ning the destruction of the nation which he had founded. At that very period the Calhoun-Nullification - Secession - School first dared publicly to show its head in South Carolina, and the poisonous seeds that were then planted, budded and blossomed under the encouragement of mean Northern demagogues and renegades. The procession of yesterday represented the martial spirit of the generation which has in hand the great work of substantially perpetuating the glorious memory of Washington, by battling for the great principles of Freedom and Union, of which he was the most illustrious advocate, and by preserving the nation which he founded from the fratricidal hands of men who have become blind despots through their unreasoning devotion to the system of human bondage. Great as are the changes political, mechanical and scientific-which have taken place since 1832, we are persuaded that 1896 will find the city, and the country at large, as far ahead of their present condition, as the latter is ahead of the days of the centennary of Washington.

THE GREAT CENTRAL FAIR. Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston, each in turn, have had their great Sanitary Fair, the last always more successful than its predecessor. And now New York is straining every nerve to outdo all. There must needs be a climax in this ascending scale. Why shall not Pennsylvania come in to cap the climax? We are a little slow, we Pennsylvanians, to take up with a new idea; but let us become inoculated, and Pennsylvania yields to no State-Philadelphia yields to no city, the palm for energy, for philanthrophy, for generosity. We can even excel New York, with all her boasted wealth, if we only set about it, and intend

The great "Central Fair" is already christened with a name. The time is fixed for June, and the loyal gentlemen in our community are beginning to get the machinery in working order. A meeting of our citizens will very shortly be called to co-operate with them. Let every lover of mankind, let every one who cares to assuage the sorrows that are flooding our land; come up to this work. Those who have money or the equivalent of money will give of their store. Those who have time and energy will give labor; those who have brains will give us their brain-work. And in this last we must not allow even the Yankees to excel us—in brains—in talents. We have artists-let them give us of their art. Already our talented fellow-citizen, Mr. Hamilton, has promised to paint, for the Fair, a view of Niagara Falls. We have amateur and professional musicians; we have dramatic taste and execution; we have fine readers. Now this Fair will give scope for all. Besides every conceivable thing on sale, restaurant, postoffice, and all the usual addenda of fairs, there will be rooms devoted to amusements. concerts, readings, tableaux, drama, besides galleries of fine arts and curiosities, and indeed, everything that our intelligent people can devise and carry out. One of the last propositions (made by a child) is to have a children's department, where things can be for sale for children, and where suitable entertainments will be provided them at a low price of admittance. Sunday schools, day schools, and all children are invited to work for and devise plans for the children's department.

Let every one who reads this resolve what he or she can give or do. A farmer in Delaware (and by the way our good neighbors, Delaware and New Jersey, are invited to join hands with us in this work of mercy) at the first hint of a fair, provided a plough; an iron-master, of Pennsylvania, some boiler plate iron, and an artist, a picture. There is nothing made by human skill, or taken from the face of God's earth, that will not be acceptable.

It is scarcely necessary to add one word as motive for this effort. Probably there is no one who doubts that the coming spring and summer will be the bloodiestt, he most terrible of the war. While we shudder in thinking of it, let us prepare the oil and the wine to bind up the wounds of our stricken

THE LAST OPPORTUNITY !!!

An adjourned meeting of the Citizens of the FIF-TEENTH WARD, will be held at the

BAPTIST CHAPEL,

Eighteenth and Spring Garden, On Tuesday Evening, 23d instant,

AT 8 O'OLOCK.

The Citizens of this Ward liable to the Draft are earnestly admonished that the meeting on TUES-DAY will be the LAST opportunity left them to come forward, and by a proportionate contribution, from each person interested, free themselves and their families from the anxiety and trouble which are sure to follow their continued apathy

More than Sixteen Thousand Dollars have been contributed by about five hundred persons, (many of whom are not liable,) and about Ten Thousand Dollars more will fill the quota. The MEN are eady, the MONEY ONLY is wanted. Will the I wo Thousand or more, who have done nothing worth mentioning, remain idle, and depend upon the generosity and industry of their more energetic and patriotic neighbors? Many who hesitate now, about giving five or ten dollars, which a little economy would in a few weeks make good to them, will bitterly regret their parsimony and folly when it is too late. Let every one in the Ward liable to the Draft be present at the meeting. Let every man who is interested, resolve not only to come himself, but also to bring his neighbors and friends along with him, and it can be demonstrated to their entire satisfaction that a comparatively trifling sum from each will insure them against any further anxiety on
