by the Musical public, to be the finest Pianos in America.

The attention of the Musical public is called to these recent great improvements in Piano Fortes. By a new method of construction, the greatest possible volume of tone has been obtained, without any of the sweetness and brilliancy for which these Pianos ars so celebrated, being lost, and which, with an Improved Touch and Action render them Unequaled.

These Instruments received the Prize Medal at the World's Fair, held in London, as well as the Highest Awards over all competitors, from the Irst Fairs and Institutes in this Country. Ware-rooms, 722 Arch street below Eighth, Philada.

EVENING BULLETIN THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1864.

EUROPEAN TROUBLES.

The Emperor Napoleon, when he proposed a Congress of Sovereigns, said that if one were not held, there would be a general war. The Congress was not held, and there is no probability of a general war. On the contrary, the virtual menace which he threw out has been silently withdrawn, and he. the great intervener, coldly refuses to intervene in any of the difficulties that disturb the continent.

The Danish difficulty has advanced towards a solution unfavorable to Denmark with surprising celerity. Neither of the great powers, parties to the treaty of 1852, has done, or is going to do, anything for the maintenance of that treaty beyond mere remonstrance against its violation. Austria and Prussia have overrun Holstein and Schleswig; the Danes fighting gallantly, but with forces totally inadequate for effective resistance. Before this time, probably both duchies are wholly cleared of Danish troops, and the authority of Duke Frederick as their sovereign is completely established. We Americans of the loyal States, who have been carrying on a war for the preservation of the integrity of our nation, can imagine how galling it must be to the Danes to be deprived of nearly half their territory by foreign powers. But, after all, the great fault was in the past intermeddling of foreign powers, who made the two duchies, whose people are German, parts of a Danish kingdom. The events of the past few years show that treaties of the great Powers, for the settlement of national disputes, are ntterly worthless as guaranties for the future. They have been ignored in Poland, in Italy, in Greece and in Denmark, and the parties making them have witnessed their violation without making further opposition than tame, useless remonstrance.

It is now reperted that Great Britain will propose an armistice in Denmark and the Duchies, with a view to a conference. This will be the preliminary of a new treaty, which will pretend to patch up the difficulties. But that any treaty will be submitted to by the German States, which will make them relinquish the duchies whose conquest they have achieved, with the apparent acquiescence of the chief parties to the former treaty, is not to be believed. The dismemberment of Denmark is an accomplished fact, and neither France nor England has raised a finger to prevent it. They will be powerless to reconstruct what they have permitted to be destroyed. King Christian, of Denmark, has been shabbily treated by both of them; but he cannot expect any better treatment in the future.

While the Danish trouble has been hurricd to a conclusion so different from what the Danes had a right to expect, the Polish trouble, which the French Emperor proposed to make another cause of war, has almost ceased to attract any attention. The English and French papers contain scarcely any news from Poland, and it is evident that the Russians are re-establishing their authority in that country without even remonstrance from the Western powers, which, some time ago, pretended to so much sympathy for the insurgents. In fact, intervention, as a part of European policy, may be considered a game played out. It was not attempted in this country, and it is not likely to be seriously attempted again on the European Continent.

BROAD STREET. Yesterday a sub-committee of the committee of City Councils on the question of the opening of Broad street, from Germantown road to Fisher's lane, visited the region lying between these two points. Their visit was made for the purpose of seeing what amount of grading and culverting will be necessary to make that portion of Broad street as passable as the rest of that noble thoroughfare. The property owners along the street between the points named have agreed to pay the road damages, which amount to between $9,000 and $10,000. They have made every preparation for the grading and culverting, and they expect City Councils to open the street at once. We hope their expectations will be speedily fulfilled. A number of buildings are now being erected on the line of Broad street on the city-ward side of Fisher's lane. At present the owners of these buildings are forced to pass around the Old York road so as to reach their property. This is a great disadvantage, which is severely felt by all the residents in the vicinity, and they look to Councils for prompt action. When Broad street is opened from Germantown road to Fisher's lane, that noble avenue will sweep uninterruptedly from League Island to Fisher's lane, thus making one of the grandest streets in the world. If the new Navy Yard should be established at League Island, it would add greatly to the importance of Broad street by increasing the travel along its line. In the meanwhile we hope to see the ardent desire of those residents on the unopened portion complied with at once. The benefit will soon redound to the interests of the city in a direct manner; for, after the opening of the portion of the street referred to, the tax receipts will be so increased as to compensate for the amount expended by the municipal authorities.

A LIFE OF GENERAL McCLELLAN is adver tised in our columns to-day by Messrs, T. B. Peterson & Brothers. It makes a neat duodecimo volume of about 170 pages. The greater part of it consists of the despatches, reports and speeches of the general, including a speech made only a few days ago to some veteran soldiers in New York. The book will be much sought after by his friends.
