GREATEST

IMPROVEMENT

OF THE AGE IN PIANOS.

MEYER'S Improved Overstrung Pianos, acknowledged by the leading artists, and endorsed by the Musical public, to be the finest Pianos in America.

America.

The attention of the Musical public is called to mass recent great improvements in Piano Fortes. By a new method of construction, the greatest possible volume of tone has been obtained, without the sweathers and brillians for which the sweathers. possible volume of tone has been obtained, without any of the sweetness and brilliancy for which these Pianos are so celebrated, being lost, and which, with an Improved Touch and Action render them Unequaled.

These Instruments received the Price Medal at the World's Fair, held in London, as well as the Highest Awards over all competitors, from the Brst Fairs and Institutes in this Country. Ware-rooms, 722 Arch street below Eighth, Philada.

STEINWAY & SONS
GULD MEDAL GRAND, AND UPRIGHT SQUARE PIANOS, are now considered the best in Europe, as well as this country, having received the first Prize Medal at the World's Exhibition in London, 1862.
The principal reason why the Steinway Pianos are superior to all others is, that the firm is composed of five practical pianoforte makers (where are superior to all others is, that the firm is com-posed of five practical pianoforte makers (father and four sons), who invent all their own improve-ments, and under whose personal supervision every part of the instrument is manufactured. EVENING BULLETIN MONDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1864.

NORTHERN REBEL OFFICERS. Retributive justice has come swiftly upon many northern men, of southern proclivities, who, when the rebellion broke out, joined the rebel forces. They were welcomed by the boasts and promises of Jefferson Davis, and made to believe that the South would speedily friumph, and that their fortunes would be made as great generals of the triumphant confederate army. A large number of these traitors have paid for their folly with their lives. Others have failed signally as military men, and all the rest have lost the confidence of the Southern people. The most noted of the officers who have tailed is Lieutenant-General Pemberton. To him was assigned the task of defending Vicksburg, and because he could not do it against the strategy and force of General Grant, the Southern people grew furious at him, charged him with being a traitor or a coward, and brought such a pressure upon Jefferson Davis, who had been till then his devoted friend and supporter, that he was compelled to relieve him of his command. Pemberton is now an unemployed officer, and it is not likely that he will again have a command while the war lasts. The prejudice against Pemberton has extended to all rebel officers of Northern birth. Last June General Joe Johnston telegraphed to

''To his Excellency President Davis: It has been suggested to me that the troops in this Department are very hostile to officers of Northern birth, and that, on that account, Major-General French's arrival will weeken, instead of strengthen us. I beg of you to consider that all the officers of Northern birth are on duty in this Department. There is now a want of Major-Generals.

'It is impertant to avoid any cause of further discontent.

J. E. Johnston.'

'In his reply Davis tried to vindicate General

iscontent.

In his reply Davis tried to vindicate Genera French, as well as other Northern officers. But, after all, the fact exists that the Southern people have not a particle of confidence in any officer not a native of a slave State. Nobody need be sorry for this, except the deluded recreants themselves.

RECRUITING IN PENNSYLVANIA. Governor Curtin, ever mindful of the interests of Pennsylvania, her citizens and her soldiers, has found it necessary to issue a proclamation on the subject of enlistments, which we trust, will receive the thoughtful consideration of every reader. Many men of this State, seduced by tempting offers of bounties, or by the cunning devices of emissaries from other States, are enlisting in regiments that do not belong to Pennsylvania. By so doing, they forfeit not only the bounties which are offered to them in his State, but the aid to their families, which is secured while they are absent in the field. After the war they will be entitled to nothing should make them serve as soldiers of Penn sylvania. They will receive immediate bounties as large as they can from any other State, and will secure also the future rewards of the noble old commonwealth of which they are citizens. We trust that the Governor's appeal may be handsomely responded to, and that thus the quota of Pennsylvania may be filled without recourse to the drafi.

CONFEDERATE " CHEEK," The members of the rebel Congress have come out with a manifesto to their constituents which comes more appropriately under the head of "cheek," than of any distinctive name we can think of. Lying is a comparatively vulgar accomplishment, and it is generally practiced by individuals who presume upon the ignorance of their auditors concerning the thing lied about. But to lie boldly, roundly, directly, by implication, by inuendo, by inference, and in every other way by which a falsehood may be uttered and the truth suppressed, and to utter these manifold and multiform "whoppers" gravely in the faces of those who know all about the facts, and who know how thoroughly the liar is avoiding the truth-arises to a fine art in libbing. It becomes sublimated into "cheek." The rebel leaders who produced this extraordinary address have outdone all former efforts in the lying line. Think of the sublimity of the "cheek" required to give utterance to the assertion that the South had for many years been the victims of Northern tyranny, of the evident intention of the North, before the election of 1860, to subjugate the South; think of the "cheekiness" of charging the North with inaugurating the war at Fort Sumter; and imagine the cool impudence of applauding the readiness of the Southern people to take up arms in the rebel cause at the present time. These are a few specimen whoppers," but they answer as samples of the whole: But, as in the case of a badly-scared individual who makes a show of whistling to keep his courage up, there is an under-current of alarm and apprehension running through this document which cannot be concealed. There is also a very shrewd and cunning little pat upon the back given to Northern Copperheads, who are thus diplomatically referred to:

"Many sagacious persons at the North discover in the usurpations of their Government, the certain overthrow of their liberties. A large number revolt from the unjust war waged upon the South, and would gladly bring it to an end. Others look with alaim upon the complete subversion of constitutional ireedom by Abraham Lincoln, and feel in their own persons, the bitterness of the slavery which three years of war have fulled to inflict on the South. Brave and earnest men at the North Brave and earnest men at the North have spoken out against the usurpation and cruel-ties daily practiced. The success of these men over the radical and despotic faction which now rules the North may open the way to peaceful negotia-tion and a cessation of this bloody and unnecessary

"Brave and earnest men at the North" is a very good phrase to apply to the faction led by the Reeds, the Woods, the Whartons, and the Ingersolls of the day, and it is only a fair recognition of similar rhetorical compliments bestowed upon the "Stern Statesman." Upon the whole, though, it is rather "cheeky." With one more specimen we dismiss the subject. The manifesto says: subject. The manifesto says:

"Until some evidence is given of a change of policy on the part of the Government and some assurance is received, that efforts at negotiation will not be spurned, the Congress are of opinion that any direct overtures for peace would compromise our self-respect, be fruitless of good, and Interpreted by the enemy as an indication of weakness. We can only repeat the desire of the people for peace, and our readiness to accept terms, consistent with the honor and integrity and independence of the States, and compatible with the safety of our domestic institutions."

the safety of our domestic institutions Considering that the framers of this precious document had just before declared their intention to fight it out to the "last ditch." and to give up all ideas of peace, the paragraph quoted above looks like a very active desire for peace, and a conviction of the hopelessness of obtaining it upon their own terms. It reads very like the sagacious remarks of Grumio, in "The Taming of the Shrew," who thus berates Curtio for interrupting him in the telling of a tale: "Tell thou the tale:—But hadst thou not crossed me, thou shouldst have heard how her horse fell, and she under her horse; thou shouldst have heard in how miry a place; how she was bemoiled; how he left the horse upon her; how he beat me because her horse stumbled; how she waded through the dirt to plack him off me; how he swore; how she prayed—that never prayed before how. I wish prayed—that never prayed before; how I cried; how the horses ran away; how her bridle was burst; how I lost my crupper; with many things of worthy memory; which now shall die in oblivion, and thou return unexperienced to thy grays."

A CONTRAST - THE PEOPLE AND THEIR LEGISLATORS. One of the main matters of interest at the North for some time has been the attraction of money to aid the Sanitary Commission by fairs. Successful efforts in this way raised at Cincinnati near $300,000, at Boston about $150,000. A fair is in progress in New York, and one, is in prospect in Philadelphia. In all, with much effort and much individual liberality, it is probable that a sum of about a million will be raised to supply the deficiencies in the government care of our soldiers.

Meantime Congress carelessly throws away a sum ten times as large to the whiskey speculators. So long as the statement that the amount involved was ten miliions rested on Mr. Fernando Wood's authority, it was liable to question; but we have now Mr. Washburne affirming its correctness. Even should Congress now rectify this matter, it cannot recover from the disgrace of having been on the point of yielding.

POSTAL REFORMS.

The present Congress is expected to act upon the revised code of the laws relating to the Post-office Department, which was submitted to the last Congress by the Department. The reforms already effected, under Mr. Blair's ad ministration, have proved most excellent and satisfactory. They are referred to, along with those yet to be acted upon, in an article from the National Intelligencer copied into another part of this paper, to which we invite attention. We trust that Congress will not fail to consider and act upon the proposed reforms during the present session.
