SOME PHILADELPHIA INSTITUTIONS.

The March number of the Atlantic Monthly contains an article called "Our Soldiers," from the sense are all that rangover the first to answer the trumpet call that rangover the first to answer the trumpet call that rangover the land, and went in the spirit of their father it the battle, when these men passed through 'hild delphis, hungry and weary, the great he art of the city went, our to meet them. Oitzens brough them into their houses, the neighboring shops gaving into their houses, the neighboring shops gaving into their houses, the neighboring shops gaving into their own and them their own tables, and with food snatched from their own tables, and alleys with loaves and half-loaver, all that they had to give, go did the whole people years over their defenders; and the it was seen over their defenders; and the interpretain way, but dusty and them, ready for the ray, but dusty and them, ready for the people were of one much an and—it was hardla known how, only that, as in and—it was hardla known how, only that, as in and—it was hardla known how, only that, as in and—it was hardla known how, only that, as in and the old times, with people were of one much an one accord," and brought of such things as they had but on that and yet proud day, that brough hack to them those who fell in Baltimore on the memorable load of April—the beroes in whom all claim a share, and the right to say, not only Mas sachus it's dead and wountied, but ours—this sachus it's dead and wountied, but ours—this was ready for them a shelter in the unpretending was ready for them a shelter in the unpretending building famous since as the Cooper Shop, Ther the people crowded about them, weeping, bless ing, consiling; and from that Philadelphial boasts the two largest military hospitals in the world. Of the twenty-three in and about Washington many are worthy of all praise. The general hospital at Fort chuyler is admirable in plan and locale, and this latter condition is found to be of vast importance. A rebel battery, with an incurable habit of using the hospital as a target, would scarcely be sed angerous as a low, water-sogged, clayer soil, with its inevitable results of lever, rheumatism and bowel complaints.

as a low, water-togged, clayey soin, with the evitable results of tever, rheumatism and bowel complaints.

Spotless cleanliness is another indispensable characteristic—not only urged, but enforced; for there is no such notable housewife as the Government. The vast "Mower!" Hospital at Chestnut Hill, the largest in the world, is as well kept as a lady's boudoir should be. It is built around a square of seven acres, in which stand the surgeon's lecture-room, the chapel, the platform for he band, etc. Along corridor goes about this square, rounded at the corners, and lighted on one side by numerous large windows, which, if removed in summer, must leave it almost wholly open. From the opposite side radiate the sick-wasds, lifty in number, one story in height, one hundred and seventy, five feet in length, and twenty feet farther apart at the extremity than at the corridor, thus completely isolating them from each other. A rail way runs the length of the corridor, on which small cars convey meals to the mess-rooms attached to each of the wards for those who are unable to leave them, stores, and even the sick themselves; and the corridor, closed in winter and warmed by stoves, forms a huge and airy exercisohall for the convalescent patients. As for the cooking facilities, they are something prodigions, at least in the sight of ordinary kitchens, leaving walled by stokes, then at patients. As for the cooking facilities, they are something prodigious, at least in the sight of ordinary kitchens, leaving nothing to be desired, unless it were that discriminating kettle of the Erre king, that could cook for any given number of men and apportion the share of each to his rank and needs. Such a kettle might make the "rextra-dist" kitchen unnecessary. otherwise I can hardly tell where improvement would be possible.

The Mower Rospital, which employs ten hundred and fifty gas-burners, uses daily one hun and fitty thousand gallons of water, and can ceive between five and six thousand patients, is free even from a suspicion of the "hospital smell." In Phiadelphia stands the first chartered "Home" for disabled soldiers, a cheery old house, In Philadelphia stands the first chantels as the me" for disabled soldiers, a cheery old house, dating back to the occupation of the city by the British army in 1738-8, founded and supported by private citizens, open to all, of whatever State, and fully looking its title, a "Home"; and as we grow graver, sadder and wiser, under the hard teachings of our war, and more awake to the thought that we have done with our spleadid unclouded youth, and must now take apon us the sterner responsibilities of our menhood, that a new spirit will spring among us—the spirit of that woman who, with a bedridden mother, an alling sister, and a shop to tend, as their only means of support, yet finds time to visit our sick soldiers, and carry to them the little that she can spare, and that which she has begged of her wealthier neighbors,—the spirit of that poorseam stress who smatches an hour daily from her exhausting toil to sew for the soldiers,—the spirit of that mechanic, who, having nothing to give makes boxes in his evening leisure, and sells then of that mechanic, who, having nothing to give makes boxes in his evening leisure, and sells them for the foldiers,—the spirit of the brooks, that never hesitate between up-hi-l and down, because "all the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is Lever full,"—the spir t of all who do with love and zeal whatever their hands find to do, and sigh, not because it is so little, but because it is not better. better.

Oliew ON MEDICAL EDUCATION.—

OUST PUBLISHED.

Lectures on Medical Education, or on the proper Method of Studying Medicine, by SAMUEL CHEW, M. D., Protessor of the Practice and Principles of Medicine and of Chaical Medicine in the University of Maryland.

In One Volume, 12mo

In One Volume. 12mo

This little work by the late Professor Chew, comprises five lectures on the subject of Medical Education. A ripe judgment, and a rich store of learning, were brought into use in the preparation of these lectures; and the style, which is clear, sucid, and eminently correct, is worthy of the subject matter. We can cordially recommend the work not only to students of Medicine, but to students of all professions, and to all lovers of learning. No person of intelligence can read it without deriving both pleasure and profit from the perusal.

THE NATURE. CAUSES AND TREA UNENT TO F NERVOUS DEAFNIES. Translated from the French of "Duchenne," with additions. By Laurence Turnbull, M. D., of whiled hind. Published and for sa e by Lindsay & Biakiston, No. 25 South Sixth street.

"This reat and wapretending little volume before us if devoted to the consideration of a group of diseases of the ear, for the reiter of which most of us do very little that is rational, or indeed, generally, of any real axell. Forming an appendix to this translation from Duchenne is a poper by Dr. Turnbull—on Nervous Deafness. It gives his views and experiences on this obscure and immortent subject, embracing remarks on the character, ettology, physiology, etc., etc. The little volume is very interesting and worth reading."—Cincinnet Longit and Observer, October, 1805.

"In Turnbull" standitions presenta very good account of the existing state of knewledge with regard to nervous deafness."—Beine Medical and Surgical Journal, Sept. 10, 1863.

"We have now reached the conclusion of the little volume, which is presented to us in a very neat form. Considered as a whole, it is quite creditable to the translater; and to those specially interesting in Aural Surgery, and unacquainted with the original, will repay perusal and prove a valuable addition to the literature upon the subject."—Weideel and Surgical Reporter, 400, 22, 1853.

The book will be sent to any address, postage paid, on receipt of price.
