XXXVIIITH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION. CLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

SENATE. On motion of Mr. Powell (Ky.), the Senate proceeded to the consideration of his resolution, calling for the report and evidence of the Commission, at the head of which was General McDowell, charged to investigate the conduct of certain charged to investigate the conduct of certain officers in the West.

Mr. Wilson did not think the Senate should order these papers. If it was the report of a court martial, where both sides could be heard, he would not object to a call for papers in any case whatever. This was simply a commission seat out to seek information for the government, much of which was to be used in the prosecution of such officers as had been derelict in duty and become implicated in unlawful transactions.

Mr. Grimes proposed an amendment, to strike out the words "Secretary of War," and insert "request the President of the United States to transmit to the Senate the report and the evidence, and any papers in his possession shedding light upon the subject."

Mr. Grimes said he understood the whole proceedings, both in the institution of this commission ceedings, both in the institution of this commission and its subjequent action, were grossly in violation of the articles of war, which provided that no such commission should be created except by the President, and him alone." He was justormed that the President was wholly ignorant of the for-mation of such a commission. He (Mr. Grimes) considered it nothing but a commission empowered to fish up testimony derogatory to officers of high standing in the army to fish up testimony derogatory to officers of high standing in the army.

He referred, as an instance, to the case of Gen. Ourtis, who was arraigned on ex partic testimony without his presence. He had been informed that every particle of the testimony reflecting upon General Ourtis, taken by the Commission, was disproved by testimony now in possession of the President and the War Department So satisfactory was the evidence, that the President announced at once that General Ourtis was free from all blame. If this resolution passes it should be accompanied by a request for any testimony which should properly accempany it, that the country may have an opportunity to judge of both sides. He did not want an exparts statement to go out to the detriment of a soldier, when the records of the War Department entirely exonerated him. Department entirely exonerated him.

Mr. Lane (Kansas) moved to insert after the words 'President' the words, 'if not incompatible with the public interests.'

Mr. Powell had no objection to the amendment of the Senator from Iowa. That Senator had stated that the commission was organized without the knowledge of the President. This was no doubt the truth, for the Secretary of War was in the habit of doing things without the knowledge of the President, just as he pleased very much to the detriment of the best interests of the country. If the President allowed such thin, s to be done without his knowledge, he was not entitled to the commiseration of the country. He should instantly dismiss such an official from his service.

Mr. Powell hoped that Gen. Curtis was exculpated. He had visited the War Department on one occasion for the purpose of examining into a law he had introduced here to prevent frauds upon the War Department, and was fally refused the privilege of reading the reports in the War office. He (Mr. Powell) considered it an unpardonable rudeness to a Senator, and he had not put his foot inside of that office since. He contended that he had an equal right to the privileges of the War Department with Republican Senators.

Mr. Lane (Kansas) had no answer but this to make to the assault of the Senator from Kentucky on the President and Secretary of War while in the Persident and Secretary of War while in the Persident abundantly vindicated Gen. Curtis from the charges of speculasion in cotton. He had it from the lips of the President innself that the removal of Gen. Curtis was for another cause.

Mr. Powell said the Senator from Kensas had stated that if he was the President or Secretary of War he would want no higher enlogy than his censure. If he thought the Secretary was performing his duty he would have no word of censure for him. Of one thing he was certain, that the praises of the Senator from Kansas would be very damaging to the President and his War Secretary.

Mr. Lane (Kan.) had been here three years and had never heard one word fr word "President" the words, "if not incompatible

Mr. Lane (Kan.) had been here three years and had never heard one word from the Senator (Mr. Powell) in denunciation of the leaders of the rebellion, while he heard day by day denunciations of the officers of the Government.

Mr. Johnson hoped the Senator from Massachusetts would withdraw his objections to the passage of the resolution as amended. Gen. Curtis was not the only efficer whose reputation had been damaged in public estimation by the Commission. Ninetenths of the evidence before it would not be received in a court of justice.

Mr. Wilson would not resist the passage of the resolution after the amendment of the Senator from Ohio. As a general rule, however, he did not think it proper to call for the reports of and evidence taken by Commissions sent out by the War Department to reform abuses, to be spread before the country.

The subject was then informally postponed.

The bill to promote enlistments came up in order, the pending amendment being that of Mr. Brown, recommending a general amendment than the first proper in the story of the pending amendment being that of Mr.

pending amendment being that of Mr Brown, recommending a general emancipation policy as a war measure.

Mr. Brown addressed the Senate for two hours and a half in support of the proposition that Congress and the Executive were clothed with full gress and the Executive were clouded which had power to eradicate slavery as a war measure, and asserted that the present struggle in which we were engaged would have to be fought over again, if during its continuance the institution of slavery was not aradicated by the exercise of those powers was noteradicated by the exercise of those powers with which Congress and the Executive are clearly

Mr. Brown quoted voluminously from Patrick Mr. Brown quoted voluminously from Patrick Henry and John Quincy Adams in support of the existence of this power. He contended that Missouri, which forty years ago came into the Union by act of Congress dedicating her to slavery, would now gladly hail the passage of another act dedicating her to freedom.

The further consideration of the bill was then postnored.

postponed. Mr. Wilson called up the bill to equalize the pay of soldiers.

Mr. Davis offered an amendment, providing that the District Courts shall appoint a Commissioner to determine the value of and make awards to loyal owners for slaves taken into the service.

Mr. Davis announced his intention to address the Senate to-morrow on the amendment.

The Senate went in o Executive session and soon

The House resumed the consideration of the bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell from time to time, at his discretion, any gold coin in the Treasury over and above the amount which in his opinion may be required by the Government for the payment of the interest on the public debt, and for other purposes.

Mr. Dumont (Ind.) offered an amendment, providing that the Secretary of the Treasury shall not sell any gold, without the advice and consent of the other Executive departments of the Government, and the operation of this act shall cease in one year after passage of this act. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

one year after passage of this act.

The question being taken on the amendment, it was rejected.

The House next voted on the following amendment of Mr. Cox (Ohio):

Provided, That before any such sale shall take place at least five days, public notice shall be given of the time and place for receiving the bids and the Secretary of the Treasury may, if he deem it for the public interest, withdraw gold from the market before the bill is actually accepted.

This amendment was rejected—yeas 49, nays

The question was next stated on an amendment

The question was next stated on an amendment of Mr. Long, of Ohio, namely, authorizing and requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to use, from time to time, the surplus gold in the Treasury for the payment of the soldiers in the field.

Mr. Boutwell's amendment, heretofore offered, was adopted in lion of this, as a substitute for the original bill. It merely authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to anticipate the payment of interest on public debt from time to ume, with or without rate of interest upon the coupons, as to him may seem expedient. The bill in this amended form was then passed—yeas 90, nays 34.

Mr. Schenck (Ohio) from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported the following bill:

Whereas, It appears that many regular and volunteer officers are either entirely unemployed, or not upon duty, corresponding to their rank, thus holding commissions and drawing pay without equivalent service, and at the same time standing in the way of the promotion and increase of compensation of those performing the duty of general officers; therefore, be it

**Resolved**, That all maj, generals and brig, generals who on the 15th day of March shall not be in the performance of duty or service corresponding to their respective rank, and who have not been engaged three months next prior to this date, be dropped from the rolls of the army, and all next.

engaged three months next prior to this date, be dropped from the rolls of the army, and all pay and emoluments shall cease from that day, and the vacancies filled by promotions and app as in other cases; provided, that this act shall no apply to any officer unemployed in consequence of wounds received or disease contracted in the

of wounds received or disease contracted in the tervice, or, who is a prisoner of war in the hands of the enemy, or on parole.

The latter part of the bill provides for returning to the regular army those who were appointed therefrom to the position of general officers. They are to be returned to the rank they occupied before the passage of the act of July, 1861.

Air Schenck (Ohio) said the provisions of the bill were distinct in their character, and asked that it be put on its passage.

Mr. Holman (Iud.) inquired how this bill would affect General Robert Allen, who is charged with the Quartermaster's Department of the valley of the Mississippi. Would the bill put him out of the service?

the service?

Mr. Schenck replied that in framing this bill the

Mr. Schenck replied that in traming this bill the committee had no reference to any particular officer. They believed that the public service would be benefited by its passage, without regard to those who might be struck on one side or the other. If the gentleman would look at the bill he would see that it is not directed at those general officers who happened not to be in command of divisious or brigades, but at those not employed in a capacity ruitable to their respective ranks. If the President should place at the head of the Quartermaster's Department a gentleman holding such a rank as General Allen, the employment should be considered appropriate to the grade, and therefore this bill would not affect him. According to a communication from the War Department, there are fourteen major-generals and eleven brigadier generals unemployed, and thirty-nine major-generals and brigadier-generals to the wood are employed in various ways in duties of more or less importance; some on examining boards and others on courts-martial, not having command in corps or brigades.

Mr. Cox (Ohio) said that the President had no discretion to drop any officer who is unemployed. see that it is not directed at those general officers

Mr. Cox (Ohio) said that the President had no discretion to drop any officer who is unemployed. Mr. Schenck replied that the President has no power to dismiss any of these officers.
Mr. Cox understood that this bill gave the President this arbitrary power.
Mr. Schenck replied that the bill itself drops the officers if they come within this description.
Mr. Cox asked whether this bill had been printed.

printed.
Mr. Schenck replied that it had not been ordered to be printed by the House, but it had been printed in the newspapers of the country.
Mr. Cox remarked that there was something of a personal and partisan character in this bill. He hoped his colleague was so gallant as not to strike at a brother officer. The House should have the opportunity of seeing whether there was any back-hand stroke at any general officer unemployed.

Mr. Schenck desired his colleague to deal in plain language—not in insinuations. There was nothing concealed in this bill. He could not he under suspicion, when he knew nothing wrong was intended, and would not reply to such insinu-Mr. Cox-You need not reply to any insinuation until one is made. I do not know whether the bill strikes at Fremont, or McClellan, or any other bill strikes at Fremont, or McClehan, or any other officer.

Mr. Schenck said neither nor both.

Mr. Cox said he should like to know what the bill meant. He did not take things for granted because they came from the Military Committee. He wanted to understand whether thirty-four officers were struck at. He wanted to see who was to be hurt by it. Was there to be any saving to the Government, or are others to be appointed to the places. He did not deal in insinuations. An opportunity should be afforded to discuss the bill. He knew McClellan did not ask favors of gentlemen on the other side of the House. McClellan had lost in the public service every dollar he had ever earned as a civilian. It might be the purpose to strike at his pay.

ever earned as a civilian. It might be the purpose to strike at his pay.

Mr Schenck said when this bill, several weeks since, was proposed to be reported and read to the House, his colleague objected, supposing it be a cat in the meal tub.

Mr. Cox said he had used no such expression.

Mr. Schenck said, at all events his colleagues then thought somebody was struck at, and that there was some covert design in the bill. His colleague was shrewd and critical, and he could not persuade himself that his colleague had not looked persuade himself that his colleague had not looked into it. He appealed to him to say whether the provisions were not so clear as to be readily com-prehended?

Mr. Cox said the same bill was reported back to he committee. It was now for the ported.
Mr. Schenck said something ought to be done to Mr. Schenck said something ought to be done to correct the end, without reference to any officer to be affected by the bill. His colleague wanted to get in a speech about McClellan, who would be affected by the bill, unless he should be employed before the 15th of March. So of Fremout, Buell and others. The country should not be taxed to support officers who are rendering no adequate service, or no service at all.

Mr. Eldridge (Wis.) inquired whether officers could not be drepped, without the action of Congress. gress.

Mr. Schenck replied that they could be dismissed, but that would imply something wrong.
But the committee thought it would be better to provide for dropping them in a bill which would not touch the characters of the officers, or any impropriets of conduct

Mr. Gauson (N. Y.) inquired whether the gen-An. Galactic (N. 1.) Inquired whether the gentileman had any information to show why these officers are not employed.

Mr. Scheuck replied in the negative, and said some of them ought to be employed.

Mr. Kennan (N. Y.) said the bill affected those general officers who have not been employed for three months. Did the committee doubt that some of them are meritorious officers? If there were meritorious officers among them they should not be dropped, but a different course should be pursued with others. The House should not pass a general law destroying all, whether good or bad. There should be a distinction.

Mr. Schenck replied, saying a discretion must be left to the President, and further showed the propilety of passing the bill.

Mr. Cox said that gentlemen on his side desired to offer amendments. It was only fair that an opportunity should be afforded for discussion upon this. leman had any information to show why thes opportunity should be afforded for discussion upon this.

Mr. Schenck said he, could not consent to any accommodation including a threat.

Mr. Cox said he cautiously avoided any threat. His gallant friend from Ohio ought not to be scared by threats, anyhow.

Mr. Schenck remarked he would agree to make the bill a special order, and asked on what day the gentleman would take it up.

Mr. Cox replied on the first day of April. [Laughter.]

By general consent the bill was made the order for Tuesday next. or Tuesday next.
The Senate bill to establish a uniform system of ambulances, was passed, with slight amendments.

Also, the bill to increase the rank, pay and rmoluments of the Provost Marshal General to those of a Brigadier General. The vote on this stood 68 against 26.
Mr. Farnsworth, from the Committee on Milt. tary Affairs, reported a bill providing that regu-lar and volunteer chaplains shall not suffer dimi-nution or loss of pay when absent on leave on ac-count of sickness, or when held by the enemy as count of sickness, or when held by the enemy as prisoners.

The bill also provides for giving them pensions in case of disabilities, at the rate of $20 a month.

This bill was passed.

Mr. Julian (Ind.) from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill to secure to persons in the military or naval service of the United States homesteads on confiscated or forfeited estates in insurrectionary districts, and for other purposes. The bill was ordered to be printed and recommitted. nitted. At 4.30 P. M. the House adjourned.

CONTROLLERS OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOL. A stated meeting was held yesterday afternoon. A communication was received from the Eighth Section, asking authority to form new divisions in the Secondary Schools, and to appoint teachers therefor. One from the Fourteenth Section, asktherefor. One from the Fourteenth Section, asking that a head assistant be appointed for Gramman Schools of four or more divisions, whose duty it shall be to assist in teaching the first division. One from the Nineteenth Section, recommending the sale of the Franklin School House, that a new building may be erected out of the proceeds; one from the same section informing the Board of the creation of a division in the Witte School House. All of the communications were referred to proper committees.

All of the communications were referred to proper committees.

The Committee on Accounts reported that at the last stated meeting of the Board a resolution was passed requesting the Directors of the Twenty-fifth Section to transmit to the Board the names of all teachers appointed in said section since January, 1862, holding the proper certificate of examination as required by law, and as said Board of Directors has not complied with the resolution, the committee withhold their approval of the bills for the salaries of such teachers as have been appointed since that time. The report was adopted.

Mr. Shippen, from the committee of Investigation into the examination at the Girls' High and Normal School, reported that a large amount of evidence had been taken, but that the committre was not ready to report.
On motion, it was agreed that Brooks's Mental Arithmetic and Key be adopted for use in the pub lic schools.

Mr. Shippen, from the Committee of Investigation at Glris' High School, moved that the result of the late examination at the Girls' High and Normal Schools be announced to the Board, and that the committee on that school admit the candi

Mr. Fletcher moved an amendment that the result of the examination be announced, with the exception of that or a rithmetic and definitions.

Dr. Nebinger opposed the amendment; it was countenancing rebellion in the candidates against the teachers of the Normal School.

Mr. Fletcher declared that a rebellion of the kind which had taken place at the Giris' High School examination was a righteous one. He held that when any authorities nearp or exceed their delegated powers, it is the right and duty of the governed to rebel against such usurped authority. governed to rebel against such usurped authority. Dr. Nebinger replied that after the oppressed have appealed to the proper authority without redress, that then they might rebel; but, in this instance, the candidates had not appealed to any one, not even their own parents. one, not even their own parents.

Mr. Shippen withdrew his motion, and offered as a substitute, that the controllers and teacher have access to the examination papers.

The motion was agreed to.

The resolution of the Committee, as offered by Mr. Shippen, was again called up.

An amendment was offered and accepted, that An amendment was offered and accepted, that the averages of the pupils of the Hancock School be reported to the Board for future action. The resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. Vaughan announced that the admissions into the Girls' High and Normal School will take place next Thursday morning at ten o'clock.

Mr. Shippen stated that the publisher of Davenport's History of the United States had altered the objectionable part of the work, by inserting the words 'so-called' before the words 'Southern Confederacy,' and he, therefore, moved that the vote of the last meeting, expunging the said work, be reconsidered. The motion was agreed to, but no final action in the matter was taken.
