HE SIEGE OF CHABLESTON.

Correspondence of the Boston Herald. NEAR CHARLESTON, Feb. 29, 1864 .- Since my last, the Admiral has adopted every precauton to prevent a rejurnence of the sad fate which befell the Housatonic. The blockading field of outer ships has been increased, and the same is strictly kept up. The loss of the noble Housatonic does not benefit the rebels any, so far as the blockade is concerned, for the blockade runners will find it a dangerous business to try to get into this place. not benefit the rebels any, so far as the blockade is concerned, for the blockade runners will find ita dangerous business to try to get into this place. The H. has settled down into the sand and nothing is to be seen of that once fine ship but the upper part of her lower mast above the water. Thegan-boat Flag has saved two of the a chors belonging to her, and by the assistance of our divers and the anchor hoy, her splendid battery of thirleen guns will be saved. It is expected that her officers and perhaps some of the men, will go north on the next trip of the Missachasetts. On two or three evenings since the sinking of the Housatonic, an infernal machine has been seen lurking in the north channel, near Beach Inlet. Movements are already on foot to capture it if possible. From deserters we learn that they intended to sink ther fit they can, but they will not get a chance to destroy any more of the Housatonic; that two machines came out for that purpose, and that they got alarmed and returned. They are de-termined to sink her if they can, but they will not get achance to cestroy any more of the Housatonic, (including Capt. Pickering, who is rapidly re-covering from his injuries) and the crew, are still on board the Ganandagua, where they have been most kindly treated by Capt. J. F. Green, his officers and men. The crew of the Housatonic will be distributed among the ships of the fleet. A addition the montor has been added to the fleet of iron-clads near Morris Island, and flore are daily expected.

The bombardment of Charleston is kept up with vigor. Our shells are doing their work of destruc-tion to a greater degree than the rebels are willing to have made known. Hardly a day or night passes without our having the pleasure of seeing flames and smoke issuing from barning buildings in the city.

On the night of the 26th inst., one of the boats of the gunboat Nipsic, in charge of Acting Master's Mate Kitchen, and five men, was captured by the rebels while on picket anty near Sumter. They were taken to Charleston.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS IN EUROPE.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS IN EUROPE. [From the Lohdon News, Feb. 26.] BRUSSELS, Feb. 24.—In a recent number of one of the London daily journals it is stated that 'the agent of Messrs. Fould & O., (Mr. Heine) has been in communication with Senor Almonte, who, duly authorized by the Emp+ror elect, has granted the concession of the new bank," and 'trust-worthy information leads to the belief that by mu-tial co-operation and combination the bondholders may obtain terms in every way commensurate with the sacrifices they have endured with this debt As my name has been mentioned in connection with the preceding assertions, I beg to state that I am in a position that enables me to assure the public that all that has been said in the article in question is incorrect, and that his Imperial High-ness, the Archduke Maximilian has not authorized General Almonte either to grant privileges to the above-mentioned bank, or to enter into any settle-ment with the English bondholders, his Imperial Highness not having as yet definitely accepted the throne of Mexico. I request you, sir, to have this letter published. F. DE ARRANGOIZ. [Paris (Feb. 25) correspondence of London News,]

F. DE ARRANGOIZ. [Paris (Feb. 25) correspondence of London News,] The Archduke Maximilian and his wife are ex-pected to morrow at the Tuileries from Brussels. I still continue to think it very doubtful indeed whether he will ever be Emperor of Mexico. The explanations given by the Memorial Diplomalique of the reasons why his reception of the deputation come from Mexico to offer him the crown is delayed until after his visit to Paris are hesitating, and betray much want of confidence. That journal, which is not_inaptly styled the Archduke's Moniteur, says that he is deeply imbued with a sense of the 'difficulties'' of his task, and that he wishes, before seeing the depu-tation, to haye a thorough understanding with the Emperor. The 'difficulties'' are indeed so great that I yet suspect they will turn out to be impossi-bilities. The young Archduke is probably a Jesuit; and at all events, according to outward obset vances and professions is a very extreme Romanist. Whatever he may be personally, it is certain that the Jesuits fixed upon him as their tool; and if they find they cannot use him to restore the odious clerical government which reduced Mexico to its present degraded state they will none of him.
