y the Musical public, to be the finest Pianos in America.
The attention of the Musical public is called to these recent great improvements in Piano Fortes. By a new method of construction, the greatest possible volume of tone has been obtained, without any of the sweetness and brilliancy for which these Pianos are so celebrated, being lost, and which, with an Improved Tonch and Action renter them Unequaled.

These Instruments received the Prise Medal at the World's Fair, held in London, as well as the Highest Awards over all competitors, from the first Fairs and Institutes in this Country. Waresooms, 722 Arch street below Eighth, Philads.

EVENING BULLETIN FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1864.

MR. CHASE'S WITHDRAWAL. Secretary Chase has, in a very handsome manner, relieved his friends and admirers from an embarrassing position, by formally declining to be a candidate for the nomination for the Presidency. After the numerous expressions of the popular desire for the re-nomination of Mr. Lincoln, it would have been an anomalous and unpleasant state of affairs to have had one of the most distinguished men of his cabinet pitted against him. Mr. Chase is doing his great share of the work of carrying the Government through the rebellion with such eminent ability, that it would be deplorable to have anything disturb the harmony existing between him and the President. He has had overzealous and indiscreet friends, who have done what they could to create ill feeling between those two distinguished functionaries; but the wisdom and patriotism of Mr. Chase have averted the mischief. The men who are most disappointed at Mr. Chase's withdrawal are the Copperhead politicians, who were rejoicing over the prospect of a division in the Republican ranks. They are disgusted at the idea that Mr. Chase and his friends go now for the renomination of Mr. Lincoln. Their disgust adds greatly to the satisfaction of every true and loyal man.

KICKING THE DEAD LION. We doubt whether any English historian ever recorded, without a blush of shame, the fact that the men who fled from before Cromwell, when he was alive, dug up his remains after he was dead, and hung, quartered and burned the body of the departed lion, when it was safe for them to sneak back to the capital from which he had driven them. The act was as cowardly as it was mean, and every indignity heaped upon the corpse of the Protector was a fresh advertisement to the world of just how much his enemies had feared him. The followers of the "stern statesman" at Richmond have inherited the worst qualities of their English ancestors, without their virtues, and they have imitated the savage meanness practised at the Restoration, and insulted the bodies of soldiers slain in battle. This brutalism commenced at Bull Run, where the trade in relics made of "Yankee" skulls and bones got its first start; but the barbarism has one of its strongest il. instrations in the recent case of the death of Col. Dahlgren. The Richmond Examiner, in A sound lawyer, a zealous loyalist, and a a characteristic article upon the subject, gloats thoroughly energetic and upright man, he will over a description of how the body of the dead fill most acceptably the post of United States bullets," of how his body was stripped naked Pennsylvania.

and robbed of all the valuables upon it, and how the fingers were cut off to secure the diamond rings upon them. These savagaries were probably perpetrated by irresponsible parties; but their acts were applauded and justified by those who profess to be the exponents of Southern public sentiment.

The Examiner goes on to tell what had become of the mutilated remains, and this act, at least, was done by authority. It says:

"Yesterday afternoon the body was removed from the car that brought it to be York kiver initroad depot and given to the spot of earth selected to receive it. Where that spot is noone but those concerned in its burial know or care to tell. It was a dog's burial, withou coffin, winding sheet or service. Friends and relatives at the North need inquire no further; this is all they will know—he is buried a burial that beatted the mission upon which he came."

Giving the body of a dead enemy "a dog's

Giving the body of a dead enemy "a dog's burial, without coffin, winding-sheet or service," and concealing it where the mourning friends of the deceased will never be able to find it, may be brave and gallant, but it is such bravery and gallantry as are peculiar to the Southern school of chivalry. The Council of Constance burned the body of John Huss and threw his ashes on the Rhine; but the act only made the teachings and memory of the martyred reformer more precious to his followers, and his scattered ashes became emphatically the seed of the church, and they bore abundant fruits. The "dog's burial" of young Dahlgren makes his name and memory more glorious in the sight of his countrymen, and it better serves the cause he loved than if the traitor crew had given him a pompous funeral and raised a pile of monumental marble over his grave.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE The Richmond newspapers are filled, not only with details of what was accomplished by Kilpatrick in his late raid to the rebel capital; but also with phrenzied editorial comments upon the event. The rebel editors fall to scolding "like very drabs," and they denounce the act of destroying supplies of food as unchristian, devilish and Vandalish. They want the scarcity caused by the destruction of breadstuffs to be visited upon the heads of the Union prisoners in rebel hands, or in other words they want the work of starving them to death finished up. One blood-thirsty editor even goes so far as to urge the imitation of English rule among the Sepoys, by blowing the prisoners among Kilpatrick's men from the cannon's mouth, and all this he wants done before the sun goes down. The "chivalry" should bear in mind that when they inaugurated war they were bound to take all its consequences. The Government of the United States is pretty indulgent; but it could hardly be expected that it would confine itself to sprinklings of rose-water and peltings with sugar-plums to offset the rifled shots, iron rams, sunken torpedoes, and other infernal contrivances of the Davis crew. The slave power never saw anything vandalish or unchristian in the butcheries of Quantrell, the plunderings and burnings of John Morgan, or the wholesale piracies of Semmes. It was all right to shell Carlisle without the usual notice to non-combatants; putting York under contribution was perfectly proper in rebel sight, and cutting the throats of wounded prisoners, and mutilating and hiding the body of, a gallant Union officer were commendable acts when committed by traitors; but the case is very different when their own ox gets a little of the goring he was so free in administering to others. The South is realizing in its own case the ancient adage that "no rogue yet felt the halter draw with good opinion of the law." The natural effect of slavery is to engender a spirit of intolerant cruelty that knows no law except its own fierce will. It is a hard lesson for these selfelected lords of creation to have to yield to the hard fortunes of stern war, and their whinings over the just punishment inflicted upon them, render them as ridiculous in the eyes of the world as the example of the foiled bully who falls to blubbering and threatening, when he is turned upon and soundly thrashed by the party whom he had sought to oppress. Mr. Reed's friend Davis should teach his disciples to mitate his own "firmness," and to bear re-fail to exhibit when they have the power to be harsh and cruel. ANOTHER STRAW. We are constantly receiving, through the columns of the rebel journals, gratifying evidence of the change which has taken place among the people of the South; but no more convincing proof of the increasing disgust has been produced lately, than the editorial of the Richmond Sentinel complaining of the carelessness and lack of patriotism evinced by the citizens of the rebel capital upon the return of released soldiers of their army, and from which we republished an extract yesterday. Not a cheer ner other acceptable sign of welcome greeted the eight hundred and eighty-two relieved captives as they marched through the streets of Richmond, notwithstanding that the incarceration of many of their number had been of long duration. Their appearance upon the public highways elicited no enthusiastic demonstrations from the despondent members of the traitorous community, and save in the privacy of their own homesteads, no marks of regard or recognition of past services were manifested.

Such indications of appreciation of courage, and of respect for fame acquired in hard fought battles, are reserved for the Northern people, who, earnest in the good cause, surrounded by comforts and encouraged by prosperity, are always ready to yield homage to the gallant men who have by their endurance and bravery secured to them these blessings. When ovations are not offered to half starved members of reorganized regiments, it is not to be expected that a cordial welcome should be extended to a band of released prisoners, whose figures evince the care that has been taken by the United States authorities to keep them during their imprisonment well fed and well clothed. Thanks to the Sentinel, we have another straw to show which way the wind is blowing in Richmond.

CHARLES GILPIN, ESQ. The appointment of Charles Gilpin, Esq., to fill the important post made vacant by the death of Mr. George A. Coffey, will give general satisfaction. Without disparaging the claims or the qualifications for the place possessed by other prominent gentlemen who were named in connection with the office, we will be permitted the remark that Mr. Gilpin is eminently "the right man in the right place." young hero was "riddled by avenging Southern District Attorney for the Eastern District of THE GOLD GAMBLERS.

The Tribane, of New York, yesterday, said in reference to the gold excitement in that city: "This speculation is damaging to business generally, giving, as it does, the impression that he currency is depreciated to the extent of the premium. Among the most prominent of the speculators for an advance the names of parties are mentioned who profess the warmest interest in the financial integrity of the Government, and who are trusted by it, but who, for a paitry personal advantage, wound the public credit in the most fatal manner."

We may add that there are parties in this city, occupying similar positions to those reerred to above, who have boasted of their profitable margins on gold within the last ten days.

DEATH OF MB. CRITTENDEN. Samuel Hodges Crittenden, Esq., well known as the Principal of Crittenden's Commercial College, in this city, died yesterday, after a a long and painful illness. The deceased was known and esteemed by the mercantile community as an energetic, enterprising and upright busines man; while in his social relations he was beloved by all who were acquainted with his estimable qualities. His untimely death will be deeply regretted by all who knew him. THE HEBREW BALL, to be given on Tuesday evening next in the Academy of Music, will be a grand affair, judging by the sale of tickets and the excellent arrangements of the managers. The proceeds are to be employed for benevolent purposes. A splendid band of thirtytwo performers has been engaged.
