WASHINGTON, March il.—The President to-day sent to the Senate the following message:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, March il. 1884.—To the Senate of the United States: In compliance with a resolution of the Senate of the first instant, respecting the points of commencement of the Union Pacific Railroad on the hundredth degree of west longitude, and of the branch road from the western boundary of Iowa to the said hundredth degree of longitude, I transmit the accompanying report from the Secretary of the Interior, containing the information called for. I deem it proper to to add that on the seventeenth day of November last, an Executive order was made upon this sub-report from the Secretary of the Interior, containing the information called for. I deem it proper to to add that on the seventeenth day of November last, an Executive order was made upon this subject, and delivered to the Vice President of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, which fixed the Doist on the western boundry of the State of loward from which the company should construct their branch road to the hundredth degree of west longitude, and declared it to be within the limits of the township in Iowa opposite the town of Omaha, in Nebraska. Since then the company has represented to me that, upon actual surveys made, it has determined upon the precise point of departure of their said branch road from the Missouri river, and located the same, as described in the accompanying report of the Secretary of the Interior, which point is within the limits designated in the order of November last; and inasmuch as that order is not of record in any of the Executive Departments, and the company, having desired a more definite one, have made the order, of which same to be filed in the Department of the Interior. REMARKS OF GOVERNOR CURTIN.

Governor Curtin, upon taking the chair, said:

Ladi s and Gentlemen: I am much honored by the pleasure of presiding at this the first anniversary of the National Union Olub of Philadelphia, [applause,] and am it insensible to the warmth of jour reception. Members of this club, infa retrospect of the past, have no reason to be ashamed of what has eccurred. [Applause.] The last year has been fraught with great events in the the history of our country. We have met with reverses, lost precious lives, and expended millions, but our armies have been essentially victorious, and the Government is today stronger than it was one year ago [Applause.] The financial condition of the country is better than it was then, and the patriotism of the people and the lnexhaustible resources of the nation have commanded the respect of the world. There need be no draft upon our loyal people, and, now that all the requirements of our Government are filled, let the rich pour out their treasure; and pray the blessing of God on these men. [Applause] The part is a part of the history of this country. (urgovernment has stood great shocks for three years, but to-day stands as strong and great in its majesty, proving man competent of self-government. I cannot stand in the presence of so vast a people and say less. We are proud of our State, because she gave her people to sastain the National power; and the name of our State is mentioned with pride, and Pennsylvania will stand by the country. We have but few traitors, and I hope one will never be seen in Penusylvania. [Great applause.] I tet us give these strangers to Pennsylvania welcome. [Cheering.]

The RESOLUTIONS.

At this, the first anniversary of the National Union Club of Philadelphia, we deem it proper to reaffirm the principles upon which our organization was established, and under which we will be guided and governed in the future; therefore, Resolved, That the present infamous repellion was commenced and is still prosecuted without provocation and without reason.

Resolved, That as slavery was the cause, the destruction thereof must and ought to be the consequence of this nerarious attempt to destroy the proudest fabric of free Government that human wisdom ever consummatted.

proudest fabric of free Government that human wisdom ever consummated.

Resolved, That whilst we entertain a feeling of sympathy for the deluded people of the South, we demand that such justice shall be meted out to the leaders as will preclude the possibility of another such rebellion forever.

Resolved, That the demand for peace on any other terms than the conquest of the rebels in arms, and their subjugation to the laws, is freason of the first insidious and atrocious character, and calls for and receives our most unqualified condemnation and contempt.

Resolved, That we advocate such amendment to the Constitution as will forever exclude involuntary servitude, save for crime, in all the States tary servitude, save for crime, in all the States and Territories of the Union. Resolved, That no man or set of men can secure

Resolved, That no man or set of men can secure our suffrages and support who are not pledged to maintain the oneness and indivisibility of the Union.

Resolved, That we advocate and insist upon such change in the organic law of Pennsylvania as will secure to the soldier of the Republic in arms for his country, his right to the free exercise of the elective franchise whirever duty may place him. even though it be beyond the confines of his own State or neighborhood.

Resolved, That in Governor Andrew G. Curtin we recognize the true statesman and pure patriot, whose devotion to the interests of our State and nation has won for him a name which will stand whose devotion to the interests of our State and nation has won for him a name which will stand high on the roll of our country's patriots, and whose devotion to the welfare of those who have periled their dearest interests to save the nation's life deserves the lasting gratitude of the people. The resolutions were unanimously adopted. VICE PRESIDENT HAMLIN ON THE STAND. Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Vice President of the United States, was then introduced and spoke as follows:

Intelligious liberty. Much good has resulted from it, which will live when we forget the sounds of the president of the president on the president and members of the National Union Club: I have not come with any purpose of detaining you this evening, but I am in this city, rich in the history of the past, to gather an inspiration from the very surroundings, and as cheering to the pathway of duty. [Applause.] It is proud to be a citizen of this Commonwealth. Who knows what it has done, but may rejoice that in the Old Keystone State, we have a reliance against rebellion and secession. Let every true man thank his God he lives to day. War is a calamity in many aspects, but we all know there are blessings will spring out of it, which will live when we forget the sounds of the present hour. The Union Club stands as one of the great instrumentalities in adding the Government against attacks on civil and religious liberty. Much good has resulted from it, and there are to be found in it men of all religions and politics. I concur is the patriotic resolutions offered, for they have the right ring. There are a class of men in this community who say, we must have the "Constitution as it is and the Union as it was." That cannot be Man is everywhere to stand erect in the dignity of freedom. [Applause.] And this war is not to be closed until the cause of it is removed. [Great applause.] We must stand on, and protect a Govern ment based on right, freedom, and not be perpetuated for all coming time; and the progress towards that result is fast and rapid. When this rebellion is suppressed it will be said, "We now see the be ginning of the end." [Applause.] The hope of a division of the North has kept up the rebellion in the South, but the North is united from Maine to the Keystone State, and its effects are planny seen and felt; and when all this false hope has a division of the North has kept up the rebellion in the South, but the North is united from Maine to the Keystone State, and its effects are plannly seen and felt; and when all this false hope has evidently failed this rebellion will collapse. I came here to see what was the spirit which animated a Philadelphia audience; and I can only say that our National Executive has only represented the spirit of Pennsylvania. [Applause.] That ancient Commonwealth will stand in the vanguard of freedom forever, and the same spirit shows that the liberties which our fathers transmitted to usehall go to those who come afterwards. We will swear by all the sacred dutes devolving on us—by the gailant dead on the battle-field, that we will preserve our free institutions, and let come what may, "Liberty and Union, one and inseparable, now and tolever."

WHAT A MISSOURIAN SAID.

Hon. Henry T. Blow, of Missouri, was the next speaker. He commenced with the remark that his mind had been kept too busy hitherto to allow him a fitting season to address so large an andience as the one before him. He reverted to the invitation engaged in a struggle which, in some respects, might be mentioned along with the struggle on this side. The time had come when the corrodings of an element foreign to their spirit must cease. The triumph of the people over despotism was advancing. The speaker, in conclusion, alluded to several bills before Congress, and concluded his particularly ornate and polished address, to which his earnest delivery lent fresh charm, amid unrestrained applaces.

When Mr. Blow had concluded. Governor Ourtin introduced Mr. Dunbar, of Washington, who sang, with great spirit and pathos, the well-known hymn:

sang, with great spirit and pathos, the well-known hymn:

"We are coming, Father Abraham,
Three hundred thousand more."

The rendition was received with unparalleled enthusiasm. The ladies waved their bandkerchiefs, and the men threw up their hats in enthusiasm, acach verse concluded. The audience would no tol-rate his going away without another demonstration of his vocal ability. He came forward again, and was received with three cheers, followed by three more for "Father Abraham."

Mr. Dunbar then made a p'easant speech, endorsing the whole policy of Mr. Lincoln, and expressing gratitude to him for having brought the conurry so safely out of its direct troubles. He apologized for speech-making, but he had just been "throwed in" [laughter], and he wanted to acquit himself handsomely. So he would again sing his ideas. He gave, with renewed "eeling, the popular ballad of the 'Merrimac and Monitor,' which was equally well received with the other.

The band next played "Rally Round the Flag, Roys," and after a speech from Hon Amos Myers, oi Pennsylvania, the meeting adjourned.

Myers, oi Pennsylvania, the meeting adjourned.

Americus is the county town of Samter cennty, Georgia, and is situated on the Southwestern Railroad, leading from Macon to Albany, distant from the former place about seventy miles. The country around Americus is gently undulating, he forests are mostly of yellow pine. The climate, though quite warm, is very healtry, and is not intensely hot, the temperature during the summer being miltigated by the breezes from the Gulf. The nights are always cool and pleakant, and there is no annoyance from gnats and mesquitors. The lands in Sumter county are among the best in Southwestern Georgia. Cotton was the principal staple before the war, but all the cervals are produced in abundance, as well as vegetables and fruits of every variety. The water too, is most excellent, springs being very numerous. Nar Americus is a celebrated mineral spring which was at one time quite a fashionable resort. The population of Sumter county in 1854 was estimated at 25,000, about 12,000 of whom were slaves. Americus had at that time about 1,200 inhabitants. It contained three fine churches, Baptist, Methodist, and Presbyteriar: a very handsome court-house, and an elegant Female College, under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Two weekly newspapers were published, one a Democratic and the other an o'd line Whig journal. Americus was often called the Athens of Southwestern Georgia, 'b' because of the general intelligence and refluement of its inhabitants and the number of educated gentlemen and ladies who resided there. In 1850 the citizens of Sumter voted against secession by about for hundred mariority, but the probabilities are that all these men are now advocates of the rebellion.

THE GREAT

CENTRAL FAIR.

FOR THE

Sanitary Commission.

Philadelphia, 1307 Chestnut Streets February 20, 1864.

The undersigned, members of the Executive Committee of the GREAT CENTRAL FAIR for the Sanitary Commission, beg to invite the co-operation of all their fellow-citizens, especially of those resident in Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, in this important enterprise. It is proposed to hold the Fair in Philadelphia, in the FIRST WEEK IN JUNE NEXT, and it is condently expected that the contributions. coming from a popula ion so benevolent and patriotic as that which inhabits the Central States, and repreand representing the most important and varied branches of industry and art, will secure a result in aid of the funes of the Commission, and for the benefit of the Soldier, at least equal to that which has attended similar undertakings in other cities. It is not necessary to say a word to stimulate sym-pathy for the soldier. We feel for them all as brethren, and the popular heart seeks only the best mode of manifesting that sympathy in the most efficient and practical way. These fairs in other places have been productive of great results. By this means Chicago has recently raised for this object $60,000, Boston $150,000, and Cincinnal more then $200,000. We appeal, then, with the greatest confidence to the inhabitants of the Central States, especially to those who constitute the great industrial classes, to send as contribution the productions of their skill and workmanship. We appeal to them in the interest of no party, radical or conservative, Republican or Democratic, Administration or anti-Administration. We know only this, that to send our national soldiers in the field supplies to supplement those Government undertakes to give them, but which they sometimes fail to receive, and thus to relieve them when sick and in misery, is a work of Christian charity, and that it is a work of intelligent patriotism also, as economizing their life, health and efficiency, on which, under God, the nation depends in this its ime of trouble. We therefore ask every clergyman to announce this humane undertaking to his people, and to advise them to do what they can to further it. We ask the press to give it the widest publicity and the most earnest encouragement. We call on every workshop, factory and mill for a specimen of the nest thing it can turn out; on every artist, great and small, for one of his creations; on all loyal women, for the exercise of their taste and industry; on farmers, for the products of their fields and dairies. The miner, the naturalist, the man of science, the traveler, can each send scmething that can at the very least be converted into a blanket that will warm, and may save from death, some one soldier whom government supplies have failed to reach. Every one who can produce any. thing that has money value is invited to give a sample of his best work as an offering to the cause of national unity. Every workingman, mechanic or farmer, who can make a pair of shoes or raise a barrel of apples, is called on to contribute something that can be turned into money, and again from money into the means of economizing the health and the life of our national soldiers.

Committees have been appointed in each department of industry and art, whose business it will be to solicit contributions for the Fair, each in its own special branch. These Committees will place themselves in communication with those persons who may wish to aid us. In the meantime it is recommended that local committees or associations should be formed in every portion of Pennsylvanis, Delaware and New Jersey, with a view of organizing the industry of their respective neighborhoods, so as to seenre contributions for the Fair. ies have also been organized to co operate with those of the gentlemen in soliciting contributions.

A list of all these Committees will be shortly published and distributed. In the meantime thos who are disposed to aid us, or who may desire any further information on the subject, are requested to address CHARLES J.
