XXXVIIITH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. CLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

SENATE. - Mr. Morgan presented memorials of SENATE.—Mr. Morgan presented memorials of citizens of New York, praying for increased mail and railroad facilities between New York and Philadelphia, which were referred to the Commuttee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

Mr. Wright offered similar memorials of citizens of New Jersey.

Mr. Clark submitted so much of the act entitled than act to increase the morand care.

An act to increase the internal revenue and for other purposes," passed March 4th, 1864, as im-poses an additional tax upon distilled spirits, im-ported from foreign countries, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Finances. A message was received from the President of the United States, establishing the initia point of the Inited States, establishing the initial point of the Inion Pacific Railroad Company. Referred to the Committee on Pacific Railroad.

A resolut on of Mr. Lane (Kansas) was agreed to, inquiring into the expediency of providing and for a branch of the Pacific Railroad from Warrens. burg, in Missouri, to Emperia, in Kansas.
The Senate then took up the House joint resolution to anthorize the Secretary of the Treasury to anticipate the payment of the interest on the public debt.

debt. Mr. Hendricks modified his amendment of yesterday, as follows: "That the Secretary is hereby suthorized to dispose of any gold not necessary for the payment of the interest on the public debt, for war material and supplies, or for the payment of debts of the United States then due; provided the same are paid and received at the value of gold in the city of New York, in comparison with legal-tender notes."

Mr. Hendricks said he approved of the purpose Wir. Hendricks said he approved of the purpose of distributing the money in the Treasury amongst the people in a proper and safe mode, so that it might again return to the channel of commerce. If his measure was adopted, the money would be paid out, not in very large sums, but as the sustenance of the credit of the Government might require. If there was a hundred thousand dollars to convey to a Government creditor he would as to a Government creditor he would a eave take the gold at its value as legal-tender The effect of the proposition of the Senator from Ohio would be to throw upon the country from six to twenty millions of dollars in gold. The ultimate effect of this, he thought, would be to depreciate the price of the currency, for as soon as the Government has withdrawn from the market up goes gold again, as speculation then commences. The proposition he made was that the Secretary should issue the gold in the ordinary course of business of the Treasury; then, if there was any mint value in the gold on hand the Treasury would reap the advantage If he would refer to the speech of the Senator from New Hampshire, now absent, he would have no difficulty in proving that the Navy Department had made friends and favorites rich. He might also refer to the fact that a banking company had been made rich by its connection with the Treasury Department, the firm of Jay Cooke & Company—in its disposal of the bonds of the Government. These bonds might have been disposed of on as good terms by the ordinary machinery of the Department. If the Secretary was going to sell this gold, it was hardly possible that some Senator might desire to attend the sale, and what would be his surprise to see present the member of the banking house of Jay Cooke & Company, already rich from the drippings from the Treasury.

Mr. Sherman would say but a few words in reply to the Senator from Indiana in his unjust attack upon the Secretary of the Treasury. The Senator would pay out this gold to the contractors, and forget entirely the claims of the soldiers. He did not see why any class of persons should be sadected for the purpose of receiving this gold. The The effect of the proposition of the Senator from and forget entirely the claims of the soldiers. He did not see why any class of persons should be selected for the purpose of receiving this gold. The Senator knew well that it was impossible to set aside this gold in the way he proposed under the rules of the Treasury Department. Mr. Sherman defended the Secretary in his action in placing the five-twenty loan in the hards of Jay Cooke & Co. He stated that the Secretary had made the arrangement with them after repeated failures to negotiate loans in New York except at ruinous rates. They procured the ten million loan on favorable terms, and the Secretary continued their agency in the sale of the five-twenty bonds. They were taken by the people in all parts of the coun-were taken by the people in all parts of the country, and the money came pouring into the Trea-The banks of the country know that Jay Cooks The banks of the country know that Jay Cooke & Co. were employed to negotiate, and that they received only one-eighth of one per cent., while their agents received one quarter of one per cent. Out of this meagre per centage of the banking company came all the expenses of advertising, telegraphing and expressing. No loan had ever been negotiated in this or other countries on more favorable terms than the five-twenty loan. The fortunes of these bankers were made before the war commenced, and the Secretary was induced to employ them for their skill and sagacity, and the result was an admirable success.

If Mr. Chase had gone to New York and asked for the lean it could not have been taken, as she had only one-seventh of the money of the country. He had an admiration for Louis Napoleon above some of his countrymen, and he appealed from the Paris Bourse to the people themselves to sustain the national credit. So with Sceretary Chase. Instead of going into the market of New York, he gives them only the same advantage he gave to all other citizens of the Union. He believed that gives them only the same advantage he gave to all other citizens of the Union. He believed that three millions of people were interested in the five-twenty loan of every class and interest in the five-twenty loan of every class and inverest in the country.

Mr. Hendricks denied that his amendmet provided for any favored class. He proposed that the Secretary should take the gold at its value in New York and pay it from the Treasury to creditors. Would that be favoring the contractor? He would go further than the Senator from Ohio, in paying the soldier the equivalent of thirteen dollars per month in gold.

vilson said the passage of this bill would have the effect to check speculation in gold, and the would vote for it. He believed another and a better way to check speculation in gold was for Congress to address itself diligently to the perfection of bills increasing the newspan. Wingress to address used diagonaly to the perfec-tion of bils increasing the revenue.

If the Sherman said Mr. Wilson seemed to forget that all the revenue bills must originate in the House.

Mr. Fessenden knw that the House committee were using all their abilities and wisdom in perfecting proper revenue measures.

Mr. Wilson had great confidence in the Senate Finance Committee, and was glad to hear what he had just heard from his chairman. It could not be denied that the advance in gold was owing in a great measure to the fact of our inability to gay our expenses as we go along. He believed it to be the duty of Congress, at the earliest practicable moment, to double the internal revenue of the country. The people were better able to pay an increased revenue now than at a future time. Instead of the triffing tax of sixty cents on whisan increased revenue now than at a future time. Instead of the trifling tax of sixty cents on whiskey, we should have a tay of one dollar and fifty cents, and double the tax on manufactured tobacco and other articles. He said this boldly, though representing a State engaged more largely than others in manufactures. He said the speculative value of gold in New York city was three per cent. over foreign exchange. It was highly important that measures should be adopted to secure a uniform national currency.

Mr. Johnson, while he would not oppose the measure proposed by Mr. Sherman, was in favor of increased taxation and economical management of the finances as the surest means of relieving the country. He said the case of Jay Cooke & Cowas but one of a theusand of cases of misunderstanding where reports were noised abroad which, upon investigation, proved to be incorrect. He was but one of a theusand of cases of misunder-standing where reports were noised abroad which, upon investigation, proved to be incorrect. He had understood that Jay Cooke & Co. had received one-half of one per cent., of which they paid half to the banks acting as agents of the government, paying the expense of expressing, advertising, &c., and Jay Cooke & Co. getting one-fourth of one per cent. for nothing. But he was glad to find that his report was untrue.

Dir. Whaley (W. Va.) reported a bill supplementary to the pension act of 1862. It provides that the biennial examination of pensioners may be made by one surgeon only, if a duly commissioned examining or army or navy surgeon; and that all fees pend for specially ordered or blennial examinations shall be refunded by the district spent for paying pensions. Chaplains are allowed the benefits of this act, with the pension of a captain. Persons who have lost both feet are allowed $20 a month, and those who have lost both hands or eyes $20. All persons who have done duty in military organizations, but not regularly mustered in since March 4, 1861, are included in the benefits of the pension act; and in case of the death of a person entitled to an invalid pension his widow may receive a full pension from the date of the grant of such invalid pension.

Am Julian, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill amendatory of the Homestead law of 18 2. He explained that it provided that the prel minary steps, such as taking the oath, may be taken before the clerk of the county in which the applicant resides, and not requiring him to go before the register and receiver tamake the affidavit. measures.

Mr. Julian said this bill was similar to that passed by the Sanate, with the exception that reserved lands shall bring at least $1.25 per acre.
Further consideration was postposed till next Friday.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE. CLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS. SENATE.

Mr. Kinsey offered the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, our late fellow Senator, Major Harry White, whilst brayely following the flag of his country, and coardageously leading his soldiers in battle, to put down a wicked and unrighteous rebellion, was taken prisoner by the rebel soldiers and has thereby encountered the phyations, the miseries and horrors of Southern prisons—his family has been deprived of his care for their welfare, his aged parents of the solace and comfort of their ceclining years, and the commonwealth of his talents and ability in the Senate; and we being desirous to bear testimony to his patriotism, his valor and ability, therefore,

Resolved, That we sincerely sympathize with the family and relatives of Major Harry White in their bereavement; that we will gladly welcome the hour in which his prison doors shall be broken epen and he be permitted to return to them, and to this the scene of his forensic labors and triumphs, and that in his imprisonment the country has lost a brave soldier and a gallant officer, the community and enable citizen and the Senate a member eminently fitted to adorn and edity it.

Passed unanimously—yeas 33, nays 0.

Mr. Hopkins offered a resolution that the committee appointed yesterday to inquire into certain frands practised by military officers upon soldiers of their commands be instructed to continue their investigation to other persons not connected with military affairs.

After some discussion, participated in by Messra. Hopkins, Champneys, Olymer and St. Clair, on motion of Mr. Worthington the resolution was referred to the Committee on Judiciary, to report if they see proper. Mr. Kinsey offered the following preamble and
