[Written for the Phila. Evening Bulletin.] SABBATH READINGS.

ST THE REV. EDWARD C. JONES, A. M.

SELF-RENUNCIATION. The deity of man is self. The divinity to whom he bows instinctively is not God. With the Persian he may not, indeed, worship the sun, for his sensibilities are hardly refined enough, in many cases, to soar to so noble created object, and fix upon it his regards, but himself is the centre around which gravitate hopes and wishes and plans and endeavors. How will I be benefited by such a project? How will such an enterprise avail me? How much can I spare myself in prosecuting such a purpose, and still with all my sparing effect it? How much can I realize, and at how small a cost of mental, moral, or physical labor? How much can I add to my wealth or position or character by some slight of hand which in-volves simple cunning and policy without laying under requisition any manly exertion of the heart and nerve, limbs and brain. Such, such are questions which engross our thoughts and enshrine our souls. The great, I myself, the overshadowing unit which ignores all other existence—this, this it is which makes man the contracted thing he is by nature. The pro clivity to exalt and magnify himself while he depreciates others; this it is which divests him of the dignity which attaches to self-renunciation. But the question may be asked, if self is so closely enshrined in the temple of our devotion, can we renounce our claims? Can we lose sight of our idol in the clouds of oblivion? Can we rub out the mighty unit, and substitute the thousands of our fellow men? Can we so entwine our sympathies around others as to make their interests equate with ours? Can we stop off the little circumscribed patch of egotism and circumnavigate the world in fellowship? These are solemn questions, and should be carefully answered, and in answering them we are free to acknowledge that in one sense we cannot entirely forget self. The best of men must study his temporal interests and endeavor to advance the welfare of his family. This is enjoined upon him by the Almighty, and he who neglects by lawful means thus to advance his interests and those of his family, is a deliquent, nay, he is highly culpable. If such remissness in duty be self-renunciation, then the worthless, indolent and unthrifty man, who exercises neither brain nor hand, may plead his forgetfulness of self as a very noble trait of character. Selfrenunciation is strictly compatible with the study of our own personal welfare. To illustrate this: We may advance our welfare by honest means, and yet not retrench our interest in that of others. With an eve on our wants, we can still remember the wants of others. Forward to consummate our own enterprises, we can still co-operate frankly and freely with our neighbor in the furtheranc and maintenance of his plans. We can hush the clamorous organ note of self, so far as to hear the flute-like pleadings of our brethren who look to us for sympathy and aid. We can walk round the interests of humanity and survey the field of our obligation to the race. We can give up a little ease for some philanthropic exertion. The staff of the traveler and the bag of bread for distribution, may take the place of the rocking-chair and slippers and warm coal fire. We can sustain with one shoulder our own interests, while we withdraw not the other from assuming the weight of our brother's care. It is only this abnegation of self which takes man from his moral hermitage and gives him a throb or pulsation in unison with the beatings of the great heart of the race. It is only this which connects him in the chain of earthly fellowship as an integral link, supporting others, and himself reciprocally supported by others.

A man who has thus sacrificed the illegal demands of self, at the pure shrine of a higher divinity, will never look upon his fellows as mere puppets in the show, while he as the master-spirit manages them as he may please, and as best may suit his whims or his convenience. He will not use his fellows as mere stepping-stones to his own personal aggrandize-ment, while he hypocritically avows a profound interest in their welfare. He will be part and parcel with the race. He will love man as man. He will attach his heart to those who can add nothing to his stores by their patronage, or to his fame by their recommendation. Man as such will be invested with dignity in his eyes, hough the rags of the mendicant be his only overing. Nay, he will promote the welfare of he poor with more alacrity because they can make no return, except in their gratitude. And he coin of gratitude with him will never be elow par. He will acknowledge its relative alue as far above that of silver or of gold. To im there will be a bank of bullion in the tearrop of devotion, and the uttered prayers of hose whose pathway he has smoothed through fe, and the brotherhood of man will crown him with a badge of honor, though in his modest estimate of his own services, he would be the last to claim precedence or distinction for the little he has done in time. Honor will come to him by the operation of a fixed law in God's economy, and when his lips and hands are dust, his memory will be a blossom which will flourish in perennial fragrance, for the odor of goodness is undying and immortal.

SOLDIERS' CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE CHRIS

A noticeable feature of the daily contributions to the U. S. Christian Commission, is the amount received from the solders in the field Many regiments take up and send regular contributions, thus manifesting their int rest in, and appreciation of the work of the Commission. This morning a note was received, enclosing a draft for thirty dollars, from Captain J. J. Janeway, of the 14th New Jersey Volunteers. A few days ago the following note was received, which, thoughenclosing a comparatively small sum of money, is valuable as showing the spirit of those who compose the armies of the Union.

"OPFICE COMMISSARY OF SUBSISTENCE. U. S. A., COLUMBUS. OHIO, Feb. 20, 1831.—Geo. H. Suart. Chairman U. S. Christian Commission—SIR: Enclosed please find five dollars, which I send as a slight tribute of the interest I feel in the blessed work in which you are engaged. I do not consider it a contribution, but rather a slight equivalent for "value received," inasmuch as I have been permitted more than once to hold out in the face of skeptics and despisers, this, one of the fairest of these latter-day fruits of the spirit of Christianity among a free people. Bight cheerfully now can we accept the test, "By their fruits shall ye know them." With fervent prayers in behalf of yours, and all kindred efforts, I am, sir, "G. D. CARRINGTON,"

O. WANHORN, Sec. UNITED STATES CHRISTIAN COM-MISSION.—SUMMARY TO JANUARY

1, 1684.
Work now in Progress in the Army at Rest—Christian Commission Stations largely increased in Number—The Work Abundantly Prospered—Many more Stations needed to meet the wants of the Army—Unprecedented Call for Delegates and Supplies—Preparations for the Coming Campaign, with its Movements and Battles.

The Christian Commission depends mainly upon direct contributions, and must not be forgotten by Loyal Christian People.

INOREASING WANTS DEMAND IN-CREASED LIBERALITY.
Preceipts of Money, Stores, &c., to January 1, 1864, 51, 148, 063 94.

Number of Boxes of Stores, &c., shipped to the field or distributed at home, 16, 330.

Number of Delegates Sent, 1, 563.

Copies of Scriptures distributed, 568, 275; Hymn and Psalm Books, 502, 556; Kaapsack Hooks, 1, 370, 348; Library Books, 43, 163; Pamphlets, 155, 145; Religious Newspapers, 3, 316, 250; Pages of Tracts, 22, 830, 428, Silent Comforters, 4, 115.

The United States Christian Commission has seized the present golden opportunity of rest for the Army to extend its wirk for the good of the Work now in Progress in the Army at Rest seized the present golden opportunity of rest for the Army to extend its work for the good of the Soldiers.

STATIONS bave been multiplied, each with its chapel and store tents, free writing tables, and clothing, comforts and reading matter for gradient with the state of the state of clothing, comforts and reading matter for gratuitous distribution.

VOLUNTARY DELEGATES, in numbers greater than ever before, have been sent to preach the Go-pei at the stations and in regiments, batteries and camps without Chaplains, distribute reading matter and stores, and labor for the good of the Soldiers.

teries and camps without Chaplains, distribute reading matter and stores, and labor for the good of the Soldiers.

A PERMANENT FIELD AGENCY has been sufficiently extended to establish stations and superintend the work.

THE BLESSING OF GOD rests signally on all parts of the work. Many thousands have been sheered, benefited and saved. Still a large part of the Army remains unreached, and double the number, both of stations and delega'es, are needed to meet the urgent demand for them.

The Christian Commission offers to the people a perfectly reliable and wonderfully economical channel to reach the entire army in all its various fields. The money given goes in full measure, in benefits for body and soul, directly to the Soldiers; and stores also, immediately from the hands of delegates from home, who add words and deeds of kir dness to the gifts when bestowed.

Let the peor le give the Money and Stores, and the work will be done.

The large corps of Delegates now in the field will serve as a grand corps of relief when the armies shall move and battles be fought, and the greater their number the more prompt and effective will be the relief they shall render.

Let not the present work languish. Wait not for the cry of the wounded and dying before providing relief.

Send now and send abundantly both money and stores, and the soldiers' blessing each the stores.

HILTON'S CEMENT.—The Insoluble Comment of the Messrs Hilton Brothers is certainly the best article of the kind ever invented. It should be kept in every manufactory, workshop and house, everywhere. By its use many dollars can be saved in the run of a year. This Coment cannot decompose or become corrupt, as its combination is on scientific principles, and under no circumstances or change of temperature will it emit any offensive smell. The various uses to which it can be successfully applied renders it invaluable to all classes. For particulars see advertisements.
