XXXVIIITH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. CLOSE OF YESTEBDAY S PROCEEDINGS.

SENATE.

The morning hour having expired, the West Point Academy Appropriation bill came up in or-der, the pending amendment being that of Mr. Anthony, providing for a competitive examina-tion under the direction of the Sectienary of War. Mr. Anthony's amendment was adopted by a vote of 20 to 15.

vote of 20 to 15. Mr. Hale offered an amendment providing that no cadet shall receive any part of the appropria-tion unless appointed in accordance with the laws of Congress

Mr. Doolittle (Wis.) offered an amendment pro widing that until the suppression of the rebellion the President shall be authorized to appoint fr m the unrepresented districts such deserving young soldiers in the armies of the United Stnies as he

"Bolders in the armies of the United States as he "may select." Mr. Davis (Ky.) would wish to have the amend-ment modified so as to make their appointment in-dependent of political bias, else young citizens of African descent might be selected. Messrs. Doolittle and tlark detended the Adma-istration from any political bias in the selection of military officers.

we uld never give a vote that would give power to the toovernment to dabble in stocks with gold Mr Puyn (N.Y.) said a few days ago the He use, by a decided vote, provided merely for anticipating the bayment of interest on the public octit. The Senate, it appeared, added an amend-ment authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell the surplus gold. The question was whether anything had occurred since the House took its vote to now induce it to change its ground? The idea that the action of the House caused rise in go d a few days ago was entirely unfounded. If they were then wrong they should now change their course, but not otherwise. By the act of 1862 the payment of the interest on the public debt and one per centum toward the sinking fund would take the surplus gold out of the Treasury. The only result of the measure, as it came from he Senate, must be mischief. His colleague, Mr. Stebbins, several days ago what not snaceed in con-vincing him that no matter what might be the extent of public debt, there was a sufficiency of resources to meet it. There was a limit to the credit of a government as well as to that of an individual. The limit must be reached; it must stop somewhere. He repeated, we ought not to go into the market to shave our own paper. He objected to placing the power proposed in the hands of any one man, and expressed the hope that the House would stand by the solitary prin-cuple it heretofore adopted, namely, enabling the secretary of the Treasury to anticipate the interest on the public debt. military officers. Mr. Davis charged that an officer of a New Hampshire Regiment had been dismissed from the service for voting the Democratic ficket at an election in New Hampshire. Mr. Olark said he had not heard of this.

tion in New Hampshire.
Mr. Olark said he had not heard of this.
Mr. Davis said it had been purlished broadcast in the newspapers, and never denied.
Mr. Davis said it had been purlished broadcast in the newspapers, and never denied.
Mr. Summer (Mass.) said the first General ap-pointed from Massachusetis was a Breckmridge Democrat-General Butler.
Mr. Davis would wish that God would deliver us from such Generals as Butler, for he was the meanest and most mercenary General ever sent to curse the earth. He could be bought and sold every day in the week. [Laughter.]
Mr. Wilson (Mass.) considered this a strange debate. He did not think that our generals re-ceived their appointments because of their support of the Administration, but as a matter of public policy. At the beginning of the contest the Admin-nistration desired to bring to their supp rt men of all parties, and in the first year of the wait it was all parties, and in the first year of the war it was much easier for a Democrat than one who voted for Mr. Lincoln. At the last session, out of 6.555 nominations which came before the Mintary Com-mittee, composed of four kepublicans and three nominations which came before the Military Com-mittee, composed of four Kepublicans and three Democrats, there was never a divided vole, and the same was the case at this session in the exami-1 ation of 2,000 cases. The Administration, in its military appointments, sought to do justice, with-out regard to opinion.

Ministry appointments, sought to do justice, with-out regard to opinion. Mr. Conness (Cal.) cited the State of California, whose six generals had been appointed, all of whom were Democrats; among them the present General-in-Chief and General Hooker. Mr. Howe (Wis.) said that Dem. crats were the last men to raise the cry of proscription against the present Administration, for we have had no Administration since the days of Wakhington which such a charge could not be as honestly urged as this zgainst this Administration. A more tolerant Administration we had never seen since the days of Washington. Mr. Howe referred to the fact of the Secretary of War having been a Democrat. Democrat

Mr. Saulsbury (Del.) said he would wish that the Senator from Wisconsin would relieve the Democratic party of the disgrace of ever having such a member as Edwin M. Stanton.

Mr. Howe would not wish to hurt the Senator's feelings by saying that the Secretary was now a Democrat of the proper type. Mr. Saulsbury-What you say will not hurt me. . Mr. Howe said if the Senator was hurt the best . Mr. Howe said he do not be fold with the bulk of the Democrats. Referring to Mr. Davis, Mr. Howe said he did not believe he was disloyal, but would be glad if he stood on the ground he occupied at the last session. Mr. Davis said there was once an Administra-tion, under that great man John Quincy Adams, during which there were only four removals, and those for neglect of duty. He conceded that in the beginning of this war there was a considerable degree of liberality exercised in the appointments. degree of liberality exercised in the appointments, and especially to the Democratic party. The President's inaugural and his first message

The President's inaugural and his flist message give as the grounds upon he was to conduct his branch of the government, and the two Houses of Congress passed concurrent resolutions, and upon this mutual basis the war was to be conducted. All the Northern Democrats now decare is that the President and his party have abandoned the principles laid down by them, and have taken the opposite course. He considered himself a better Union man than the Senator from Wisconsin, Mr. Howe. He believed that since the organization of the radical policy of the Administration nine-tenths of the appointments have been made of men opposed to the policy of carrying on the war set forth in the Crittenden resolutions. He believed those who favored such a policy the only true Union men. He did not believe this Government would be preserved by the overthrow of the cardinal prin-preserved by the overthrow of the cardinal prin-ciples of the Constitution. No man who enter-tained that the grand principles of the Constitution could be negatived was a good Union man, and yet such men had the audacity to stand here and interest on the public debt, and one per cent. toward the extinction of the principal. This was a wise provision, for it gave us strength and abi-ity to go into the market to borrow. He repeated it was unwise and unprecedented to authorize the Government to shave its own paper, and allued to the gold flutter in Wall street, r ading in this connection from a private letter written by a firm supporter of the Republican party, to show the evil effects which would result from this meanse and staing that the bill as, it originally passed the House, authorizing the Secretary to anticipate the payn ent of the public interest, would be sufficient and not interprise interest, would be sufficient and intelligent from not in gold speculating ci-ques. No matter how the Secretary may act there will continue to be speculating gold. If the selfs out, gold will go down, and speculators ony it, and the sime speculators will then put up its price. To authorize the power now proposed was the first step toward repudiation, and he would never give a vote that would give power to the to expressed to dable in stocks with gold Mr Pruyn (N. Y.) said a few days ago the House, by a decided vote, provided mereiv tor trial at his own request, and not, as previously reported, for having failed in his examination. He could not appear before the examining com-mittee on account of ill health.

At this time a paper was presented by Rev. J. F. Chaptan, with his nume attached to it, charging Rev. Elijah Miller with conduct unbe-No action was taken on the matter, but it is the

a three of the ballot was taken, and the tellers' retired to count. A setter from Rev. J. T. Gracey, missionary to India, from this Conference, wis then read. Mr. Cox (Ohio) said when the proposition antho-rizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell gold was first brought before the House, he and his iriends objected to its consideration. It was then charged by the Tribune that they were in the inter-est of stock jobbers. If so, the gentieman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boutwell) was in the same company. He was infavor of the proposition to authorize the Secretary to anticipate the payment of the interest on the public debt, if that was ne-cessary to reduce the amount of gold now in the treasury, and because that would be legal. But he was opposed to authorizing him to sell the gold. The price of gold was not affected by the legisla-tion here, and it might go up or down for a time without power on their part to control it. They might as well legislate in gravitation or hydrosta-tics as to attempt to overrule the laws of trade. They might affect, temporarily, the market, but gold, atter all, would seek its proper level. The guards to prevent speculation had been brushed away by the Senate. He opposed conferring the auth rily contained in the Senate amendment. He opposed it as a man jealous of power. It would give to the Secretary of the Treasury and serve delegates, and the tellers retired to count them. The Rev. T. J. Thompson presented the follow-ing as a minority report of the Committee on the Division of the Philadelphia Conference: Whereas, The General Conference of 1:50 did au-thorize the Philadelphia Conference to divide it-self at any time price to the next session of the General Conference and form a new Conference; and wherear, there is a strong conviction in the minds of many of the people on the Peninsula that a Conference for their territory, bounded north by the Pennsylvania State line. will promote the in-terests of the church within their bounds; there-fore auth rily contained in the Senate amendment. He opposed it as a man jealous of power. It would give to the Secretary of the Treasury abso-lute power to control the interests of thirty-mil-lions of people. He hoped the House would ad-here to its original position, and not listen to the clamors of stock jobbers and brokers as they are re-choed from the Senate, but send up a straight-forward measure, as commended by honest men of the land.

Recorded, That the two Conferences hold their next session together Mr. Thompson desired his report to be laid on the table, which was so ordered. The motion made on Saturday, to strike ont the preambles to the resolution in regard to the new chapter on slavery, was at this time renewed. Rev. P. Coombe said it is those great historical facts which have produced the thanks expressed in the preambles. He was entirely opposed to striking them out. A motion was made by Rev. John Thompson to lay the preamble on the table, and carried. The tellers then reported the votes for reserve delegates to be 165; necessary to a choice 55. No one re-ceived the required number, const quently no one was elected, neither was there any further ballot-ing done. The Conference then, on motion, ad-journed. The amendments of Messrs. Doolittle and Hale were adopted, and the bill passed. Mr. Fessenden called up the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation Bill. After a debate on an amendment of Mr. Summer to create a Minister an amendment of AIR. Summer to create a Minister Plenipotentisry at the Court of Belgium, without action, the Senate adjourned. HOUSE OF REPERSENTATIVES. Mr. Broomall (Pa.) offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Committee on Print-ing to inquire into the truth of the statement that the Congressional Globe is published at a loss to its proprietor, and what means are necessary to be taken to continue the publication of that valuable work.

On motion of Mr. Pendleton (Ohio) a resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on the Judiciary to inquire whether further legislation is necessary to enable the civil courts to review the proceedings of military commissions and courts martial, in order to secure to persons the benefits of the amendment to the Constitution which provides for trial by jury or indictment. Mr. Cox (Ohio) introduced a bill, which was referred to the Judiciary Committee, to prevent officers of the army and navy, and other persons engaged in the military and naval service of the United States, from interfering in elections in the States. States.

Mr. Rice (Maine) introduced a resolution declar-ing slavery to be the progenitor of social and poli-tical evil, and therefore elavery should be entiredy ex-tinguished. At his own instance it lies over. Mr. Kelley (Pa) offered a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Printing, providing for printing ten thousand copies of General Meade's report of the battle of Gettysburg, to-gether with the accompanying reports, for the use of the House. Mr. Schenck (Ohlo) offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Committee on Rules to inquire into the propriety of so amending the rules as to require members to vote when the yeas and nays are called, unless specially excused by the House. Mr. Rice (Maine) introduced a resolution declar-

the House. On motion of Mr. Miller (N.Y.), it was resolved that the Committee on Miller (N.Y.), it was resolved that the Committee on Millery Affairs be instruct-ed to inquire into the expediency and necessity of increasing the cavalry force of our army by imme-diately raising fifty bouesand volunteers for that arm of the service, and that the committee have leave to report by bill or otherwise. The House passed the bill for the payment of

The House passed the bill for the payment of nearly one hundred and ninety-three thousand collars to the Ohippewas, Ottowas and Pettowata-mies, residing in Michigan. Mr. Washburne (Ill.) offered the following: Whereas, Congress has, by the passage of the late Revenue bill, approved the principle of taxing stocks of liquors on hand, by taxing all foreign liquors on hand, therefore, Resolved, That the Committee of Ways and Means, in the next Revenue bill, be instructed to incorporate therein a prevision to tax all stocks of 1e-cubed from the Senate, but send up a straight-forward measure, as commended by honest men of the land. Mr. Alley (Mass.) would vote for the amendment of the Senate, believing the interests of the government and country would be promoted by its adoption. Although it might not do much, yet it would be the instrment of doing something to check gold speculation. By giving the Secretary of the Treasury the power to sell, gold might be reduced ten or fifteen per cent. No one exercised power more wisely or more pridently than the Secretary of the Treasury. If he had not confidence in the honesty of that officer he would have some doubt as to the propriety of the measure, but having confidence in him, and believing that in his hands the authority would be productive of great good and no evil, he was willing to confer it. In the remarks delivered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fernando Wood), who was detained home by sickness, it was said we are on the eve of repudiation. If we tax the people as we should, we shall secure the confidence of the gentleman was father to the thought. There was only one measure we will have to rescrities. Mr. Huburd (N. Y.) said he held in his hand a letter from a genuleman from that officer be would to a very large extent raise the price of gold. He was in favor of the bill as it passed the House, and appealed to gentlemen pause before they conferred upon the Secretary of the Treasury the authority to sell the gold as now proposed.

of the Treasury the authority to sell the gold as now proposed. Mr. Bontwell (Mass ) said thus far the Secre-tary of the Treasury has not publicly committed himself to the passage of this measure. He was not opposed to giving the Secretary of the Treasury anthority to sell gold beckuse he was not willing to trust him, but he was opposed to granting this power because they have no power to grant it. He believed they had no moral right to grant it. He should think it unwise in the highest degree to an-thorize its exercise. They should consider the question with reference to the prolongation of the war, for in time of peace they could act with a better understanding and with more certainty. He had learned that when a merchant had money, not required for immediate wants, instead of going into market and investing it in stock, he would an-sticipate the payment of his obligations, and thus establish his credit, and so it should be with go-vernment: and in the bill proposed by him, and principle. He did not fear to intrust any man with such power as the Senate amendment pro-posed unless on the grounds of necessity, and there was no such necessity at the present time. Mr. Alley (Mass.) inquired of his collearne vas no such necessity at the present time. Mr. Alley (Mass.) inquired of his colleague whether he did not believe the mere fact of the passage of the bill would not have the effect of thecking gold speculations, even if the power proosed to be conferred on the Secretary should not posed to be conferred on the Secretary should not be exercised. Mr. Bontwell replied the chief element which entered into speculation was uncertainty, and this measure of the Senate introduced a new ele-ment of uncertainty. How could gentlemen dis-regard the pledge of the public faith setting apart the coin to the payment of interest and the gradual liquidation of the principal of the debt by con-verting the gold to general uses. The Secretary would have to confide to another the sale of this coin, and he did not know whether such agent would be trustworthy or not. Mr. Stevens asked whether the Secretary has not now to trust agents with the custody of the gold.

gold. Mr. Boutwell replied it was different as to sell-gold. Mr. Bontwell replied it was different as to sell-ing gold, for when it was to be sold that fact would become known, and thus speculators would profit by it in advance. He further indi-cated his opposition to the Senate amendment. Mr. Hooper (Mass.) thonght his colleague (Mr. Bontwell) entirely mistaken when he said they were about to divert the coin from the purpose for which it was reserved. The bill as originally in-treduced provided for conferring on the Secretary of the Treasury authority to sell any surplus gold not necessary for the payment of interest on the public debt and for other purposes. Since he spoke the other day he had made a more careful examina-tion of the condition of the Treasury. There was now on hand twenty-two millions of dollars in coin, and according to estimates, after paying nearly twenty-one millions; so after paying what is required by law, twenty millions so the same is required by law, twenty millions may be dis-posed of between now and July without impairing the obligations of the Treasury. He trusted the House would concur in the amendment of the Senate. Mr. Stevens said, as other gentlemen desired to Ments when concur in the amendment of the Senate. Mr. Stevens said, as other gentlemen desired to speak, and as, if the House adjourn now, this sub-ject would come up as unfinished business to-morrow, he made that motion.
