AN OLD FRIEND IN A NEW DRESS.

es Here's a Health to Them That's Awa'." [Lines by Robert Burns, altered and adapted to suit the present times, by James E. Mur-doch, and dedicated to David Gibson, Esq., of Cincinnati, Ohio—one who so truly appreciates the songs and sentiments of the genial Bard of Scotia, and whose rich and ringing voice gives such thrilling expression to their spirit and words. With an apology for the liberty taken with the original song—a liberty which nothing but a truly loyal object could justify.]

Here's a health to them that's awa', Here's a health to them that's awa',
And here's to them that's awa';
And who would na wish guid luck to our cause,
May bever guid luck be their fa'!
It's guid to be merry and wise,
It's guid to be honest and true,
It's guid to support Columbia's cause,
And bide by the jackets of blue.

Here's a health to them that's awa', And here's to them that's awa'; Here's a health to "Auld Abe," the chief of the clan.

And may his band never be sma'.
May liberty meet wi' success;
May prudence protect her fra' evil;
May traitors and tyranny tine* in the mist,
And wander their way to the devil.

Here's a health to them that's awa'. Here's a health to them that's awa';

And here's to them that's awa';

Here's a bumper to Chase—he, the Western laddie,
That made greenbacks as guid as th' law;

Here's freedom to him that would read,
Here's freedom to him that would write;

There's nane ever feared that the truth should be heard,

But they wham the truth wad indict. Here's a health to them that's awa', And here's to them that's awa'; Here's Rosecrans and Grant, and wha would them daunt

We'll build in a hole in the wa';
Here's woman that's true at the heart,
Here is man that is sound at the core; May he that would turn his button and cost, Be turned to the back of the door.

Here's a health to them that's awa'. Here's a health to them that's awa',
And here's to them that's awa';
Here's Abr'am Lincoln, a chief that's na winkin',
But bred with an axe in his paw;
Here's friends to the stripes and stars,
Here's friends that stand by them at need;
And wha would betray his country's cause,
May hang by the neck till he's dead.

Here's a health to them that's awa',
And here's to them that's awa';
Here's a health to our Uncle, to good Uncle Sam,
His soldiers and sallors so braw;
May cruel war soon be over,
And peace to our land come again;
May law and unity triumph,
And banish all sorrow and pain.

XXXIIITH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION:

WASHINGTON, March 19, 1864. The Senate was not in session to day.

House. — To-day was set apart for speech making.
Mr. Arnold (Ill.) addressed the Committee on the subject of reconstruction. Freedom, he said, was the corner-stone, and Lincoln, the architect of national unity, without slavery, and the construc tion the magna charta, securing liberty to all, as the aim of the Administration. The fearful error of uniting free and slave States must not be re-Mr. Arnold discussed first the relations of the

Mr. Arnold discussed first the relations of the rebel States to the national government. Secondly, the duty of the Executive; and thirdly, the duty of Congress. The status of the rebel States is that of traitors and public enemies, and they may be treated as such. The Executive must govern the country as commander of the army, until Congress provides some other government, or the people themselves organize local State governments and are admitted to the Union.

The President, by the Amnesty Proclamation, invites the co-operation of Congress on restoring national unity. To have unity, the cause of our divisions, slavery, must be removed. Remove slavery, and "Yankee Doodle" will again resound through all Dixie's land.

Mr. Arnold replied to Mr. Brooks's declaration that slavery is dead. It is not dead, but in a dying condition, and needs a few more blows from the rail-splitter of Illinois to end its existence. Let rail-splitter of Illinois to end its existence. Let us have immediate emancipation, and amend the Constitution, prohibiting slavery forever.

Mr. Arnold deprecated divisions among the friends of the loyal cause. With Lincoln as President, Chase in the Treasury, and Grant commanding our armies, success is certain. As to the Presidency, the people have already settled that question. Lincoln is the choice of the people, be-Presidency, the people have already settled that question. Lincoln is the choice of the people, because they recognize in him the apostle of liberty. Mr. Wilson (Iowa) spoke in support of the proposition heretofore introduced by him, to amend the Constitution, by declaring that slavery, being incompatible with free government, is forever prohibited in the United States, and involuntary service shall be permitted only as punishment of crime and that Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation. It was long the custom, when slavery made its imperative demands, to appease it by giving a new lease of life. We were the slaves of the slave power. Slavery having in its possession the dispensation of patronage, there was a cringing for its tayors; it made incessant, unrelenting war on the principles of government and the objects for which the Constitution was originally framed. Slavery touched and defiled everything, and they had submitted tamely and cowardly, while it was working death on all that is loved and desirable in life. The fact that public copinion is now against slavery, is the result of slavery overleaping itself. However public opinion may have been formed, thank God, it is formed, and is never to be surrendered. We must add strength to public opinion by doing our duty. We was now talk shout freedom and write it in our strength to public opinion by doing our duty. We may now talk about freedom, and write it in our may now talk about freedom, and write it in our national Constitution never to be erased. He believed such amendment was desired by the true and loyal people of the country. He argued the propriety and necessity of the measure, assuming that slavery is incompatible with a republican form of government, and that an insulting, reckless and deprayed despotsem was at war to maintain the revolting doctrine of the right of property in man. We must establish justice on the tomb of slavery, which is the destroyer and not the promoter of domestic tranquility. We cannot have peace till we secure liberty to all who are subject to our laws. o our laws.

Mr. Wilder (Kansas) maintained that it was not a war against insurgents, but against States, and therefore it ought to be conducted according to the laws prescribing belligerent rights. He stated his and was in favor of military occupation of those States until the people could safely resume selfgovernment.

The House at three o' clock adjourned.

A NAVAL EXPLOIT.

The Providence Journal publishes the following extract from a letter, dated Beaufort, N.C. March 7th, 1861, received from an officer of the blockading squadron, off Wilmington, N.C.:

"The Monticello has also arrived. She is commanded by Lieutenant Cushing, who has distinguished himself on several occasions, and received the command of the Monticello for his services in the Nansemond River. He has just performed a feat of dariog hardly equaled since the war began, and very much resembling the Barton and Prescott affair in our bay. He pulled into the river with two boats, passed Fort Caswell, and went up the river above Smithville, which town is some four or five miles above the fort. He then turned round and came dow to the town from above, as if from Wilmington. He passed within ten yards of a sentry on post on a wharf, but the soldier was asleep or drowsy. He then effected a landing near some salt works. Cushing crept up on his hands and knees to the fire and captured two darkies, who agreed to act as guides. He then landed again at the town, and with a seaman, an officer, and his guides, went directly to the General's house. On the opposite side of the street were barracks, containing a thousand men. He opened the door, passed up stairs and found that the General was not at home. The officer then told him to come down, as a row was going on. He hastened down and found that an officer had left the house in his shirt, and taken to the woods in the rear of the town. Another officer stood with a chair in the corner of the room. Oushing closed with him, threw him down and put a revolver to his head; the fellow became tranquil. Cushing then struck a light and told the officer to dress. He did so, and they took him to the boat and escaped clear. Now the point, where, to my mind, nerve of the tip-top-most order was displayed, was, in letting the officer dress, and waiting for him to do so when they were perfectly aware that another (the Adjutant-General) had escaped, and might at any moment bring an army about their The Providence Journal publishes the following extract from a letter, dated Beaufort, N.C. March fring an army about their ears. Luckily, he had fied to the woods without speaking to a soul, thinking that the Yankees were in possession. The General made it a habit to sleap in that house every Monday night, but this night was detained at Wilmington. We learned this from the blockaderunner Mary Anna. The people of Wilmington are greatly askamed of the occurrence, and a repetition would be dangerous. Cushing afterwards learned that about the time the rebels got fairly on the alert, and had telegraphed to the forts, he was passing them in the darkness.

The officer captured was Cantain Kelly, Chief passing them in the darkness.

The officer captured was Captain Kelly. Chief Engineer of the military works about Wilmington. I send you enclosed a ten dollar bill, which Cushing got irom him at the present rate of exchange, I for 28. As a sort of memorial of the pluckiest thing done this war by a navy officer, it is worth keeping. The Cushings, of that family, are all brave. One brother died at Gettysburg in the most gallant manner. He had distinguished himself before at Antietam. Had he lived, he would have been made a Brigadier. Another brother is with Grant."
