XXXVIIITH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION. CLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

SENATE -Mr. Harris (N. Y.) presented the remonstrance of 117 members of the New York Legislature against the extension of the Goodyear patent. Also, of Erastus Corning and others to the same effect. Referred to the Committee on Patents.
Mr. Brown (Mo.) presented the resolutions of Patents.

Mr. Brown (Mo.) presented the resolutions of the Union Merchants' Exchange, of St. Louis, Missouri, praying for the construction of ship canals around the upper and lower rapids of the Mississippi river, the improvement of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, the construction of slack-water navigation on the Illinois river, the construction of a ship canal around the Falls of Nia agais, and the improvement of the New York canals. Referred to the Committee on Commerce. Mr. Clark (N. H.) called up the Senate bill amendatory of an act relating to foreign comes and the coinage of cents at the United States Mint, approved February 21, 1831, which was passed The bill provides that the standard weight of the cent shall be forty-eight grains and one-tentio of an ounce troy, and shall be composed of 55 per centum of copper and 5 per centum of tin or zinc: and that there shall be, from time to time, coined two-cent pieces of the same composition, weighing 95 grains. The bill makes the one-cent pieces a legal tender to the amount of twenty cents. Prior to the passage of the amount of twenty cents. Prior to the passage of the bill, Mr. Clark said it became necessary on account of the high price of nickel.

Mr. Sumner (Mass.) introduced a bill to carry into effect the treaty between the United States and Her Britannic Maj. sty, for the final settlement of claims of the Hudson's Bay and Puget's Sound Agricultural Companies. It appoints a commission of Great Britani, to investigate and adjust such claims, and appropriates $5,000 in fall for the salary and expenses.

Mr. Wilson (Mass.) offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for information.

Mr. Wilson (Mass.) offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for information as to how many nine months' men have been raised under the militia law of the last session; how many of them were volunteers, and how many drafted. Whether the 505 bounds has been paid to the pine manufacture. were volunteers, and how many drafted! whether the $25 bounty has been paid to the nine months' men, and if not, why it has been withheld from any of them, and whether any bounty has been paid to any of the drafted men. Adopted.

Mr. McDougall (Cal.) submitted the following:

Be it resolved. That the occupation of Mexico, or the person indicated by him as Emperor of Mexico, is an offence to the people of the republic of the United States of America.

Resolved, That the movements of the Government of France and the threatened movement of an Emperor, improvised by the Emperor of France, demand of this republic, if insisted upon, war.

Mr. Harris (N. Y.) introduced a bill for the increase of the marine corps of the United States, which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs. It provides for the increase of the corps by the addition of one brigadier-general commandant, five captains, five heutenanis, fifty sergents, six corporals, tan diversity, and the content of the corps of the corps of the captains of the captains of the captains of the captains of the captains. mandant, five captains, fire leutenaits, fifty sergeants, six corporals, ten drummers, ten lifers, and one thousand privates. The officers to be appointed first by promotion and then by selection.

Mr. Sumner reported from the Committee on Slavery and Freedom a bill to prohibit the commerce in slaves among the several States, and the holding or transportation of human being, as property in any vessel within the jurisdiction of the Government. It punishes the misdemeanor of aiding such transportation among the States, by land or sea, by fine of $5,000 and imprisonment of five years, and confiscates any vessel ergaged in such transportation by sea.

The bill to promote enliatments being called up in order, the question being on the substitute of Mr. Wilson, to free the wife and children of recruits,

Mr. Willey (W. Va.) said he was very desirous Mr. Willey (W. Va.) said he was very desirous to vote for the amendment of Mr. Wilson, giving freedom to the wife and children of colored recruits, but in the indefinite form in which it was brought before the Senate, he was constrained to cast his vote for its recommitment to the Judiciary Committee. His objection to the amendment of Mr. Wilson was that it would lead to encless and distressing difficulties in the States where those slaves reside. He denied that the marriage relation amongst slaves was recognized in Virginia, and he believed the same was the case in Maryland. Under the amendment in its present crude state conflicts would arise with the State Courts, and much confusion ensue. It was for this reason that he desired that some means be devised to establish the identity of the persons freed by the bill that he voted for its recommitment. Another reason was that the Constitution contained a clause which forbids the taking of private property for public use without just compensation. He considered that the bill itself was founded upon the fundamental precept that there was property in slaves.

In his opinion, the most effectual way of accomplishing the downfall of slavery was by a vigorous prosecution of the war. One thing was cert-in, the rapid advance of our armies into the insurgent States would obliterate every vestige of slavery. He referred to his own State as an example, and also to Missouri. Arkansas had crossed the Rubicon, and Louisiana, was waiting on the shore, while Tennessee and North Carolina were beginning to feel the pressure of that public enlightened sentiment on this subject which demands its extinction in Maryland, and Delaware would soon follow in her wake.

Every great victory obtained in the field is of more value than hundreds of emancipation proclamations and volumes of confiscation acts. We were engaged in the stern reality of war, and in proportion as we prosecute it vigorously will slavery be put down. He approved of the amendments to the Constitution now before the Senate to promote this object, though he would have the subject postponed until the next Congress, because he believed many of the States in rebellion would be then represented in Congress by loyal men who would gladly vote for the measure. He would gladly himself vote for these amendments at any time, believing they were demanded by every consideration of justice, by the history of the past and far greater one.
In his opinion, the most effectual way of accom-time, believing they were demanded by every consideration of justice, by the history of the past and the hopes of the future, by the blood of the slain, by the genius of American liberty, by hatred of tyranny, by love of freedom, and by the voice of the people. of the people.

Mr. Howard obtained the floor on the bill to prevent military interference with elections, for one o'clock to-morrow.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Rogers further opposed the bill.

Mr. Alley (Mass.) made a report from the Committee on Conference, on the disagreeing amendments to the bill for carrying the mails from the United States to foreign ports; which was adopted. The principal point in controversy was adjusted by authorizing the Postmaster General to suspend so much of the eighth section of the act of August 31. 1852, as authorizes the conveyance of letters

United States to Ioreign ports; which was adopted. The principal point in controversy was adjusted by authorizing the Postmaster General to suspend so much of the eighth section of the act of August 31, 1852, as authorizes the conveyance of letters etherwise than in the mails, as in his opinion the public interests may require.

Mr. Davis (Md.) called up the bill heretofore reported by him from the Select Committee on the Rebellion, to provide a republican government in States overthrown or usurped by rebellion. In his argument he said the constituents of gentlemen would judge by their votes on this bill whether they believe the cause of the rebellion, namely, elavery, shall be rooted out, and whether they think the pending measure is one adequate and proper to accomplish that purpose. It proposed the exercise not of an arbitrary power, but a power within a fair construction of that part of the Constitution which imposes the duty of securing republican government to the States. Secession was not domestic violence within the meaning of the Constitution, nor was it invasion. There could be no government within the United States which repudiates the authority and Constitution of the country. When a mailitary government is suppressed it is time to think of another. Therefore the Constitution declares the right of republican government shall exist, and what is opposed to republican government shall exist, and what is opposed to republican government shall obe put down. What is the condition of the rebellious States? Not one of them has been brought under the undisputed supremacy of the United States. There is not a State in rebellion whose soil is not pressed by rebels in arms. There is no portion of the rebel States where peace is so far restored that our military power can be withdrawn for a moment without instant insurrection. There is no rebel State from which our troops can be withdrawn and the people therein trusted. One-tenth cannot control, five-tenths nowhere exists willing to control those who are opposed a good-natured hope. What, then, are we to do? We must not erect a dovernment on shifting sands, to be supported by our arms, and for the prople to turn against us when we are driven away or withdraw. It was to erect the throne or Chaos and to let him sit there and reign supreme. Three modes had been proposed to settle the question; one to prohibit slavery everywhere. This was right, and went to the root of the evil; but it was doubtful whether three-fourths of the States could be secured to pass suph arms the secured to pass t was doubtful whether three-fourths of the States could be secured to pass such an amendment to the Constitution. The next was the amnesty proclamation. Congress is not pledged to its support, but only the Executive. The Government proposed by it is something as unknown to the Constituti B as the rebel Government itself, which refuses to recognize it. If the proclamation is not varid the eath is not of legal sanction. The eath adds nothing to the validity and force of that proclamation. It provides Governments shall not contrave the Proclamation of emancipation, which means that freedmen shall not be re-enslaved, while slaves shall so remain. It does what the Constitution of the old States do, and recognizes the existence of slavery. Therefore, the constitutions of the old States do not contravene the proclamation of freedom. It was merely a justicial constitutions of freedom.

cognizes the existence of slavery. Therefore, the constitutions of the old States do not contravene the proc amation of freedom. It was merely a judicial question. The time had come when we should not only disarm rebels, but strike the fetters from the slaves, and thus remove the cause of the rebellion. This the bill under consideration proposed to do, and to give republican Government to States which have been overthrown or usured by rebellion.

Nir. Heaman (Mich.) argued that the rebellions States have crased to have an existence under the Constitution, that when the local government censes Federal authority may be substituted; that while he approved of the Amnesty proclamation as a slep in the right direction, it was inadequate to a safe reconstruction; that the proclamation did not provide for an amendment of the Constitutions of the second States, thus leaving the institution of slavery in existence, nor did it provide for any amendment of the constitutions and laws excluding traitors from the exercise of the elective franchise. The remaining nine-tenths might overthrow the one-tenth, and thus defeat the President's plan, there being no legally provided means to prevent it. The reconstruction of these States was in the nature of admitting new States, but this belonged to the legislative and not to the executive department.

He also argued that there was nothing in the proclamation inconsistent with the provisions of the bill, as the latter was intended to carry out the

He also arxived that there was nothing in the proclamation inconsistent with the provisions of the bill, as the latter was intended to carry out the design of the former, differing only in the extent to which the power should be exercised, and making the object to be secured more effective and permanent. He took the ground that none of the rebellious States should be readmitted unless they provide by an organic law that slavery shall be lorever prohibited, for this was the cause of the rebellious, and there would be no permanent peace so long as it was suffered to exist. The Constitution of the United States should be amended in this particular, in order to give freedom the national sanction, and to remove the cause of the troubles which now oppress the country.

The House, at 4 o'clock, adjourned.

Mr. Loughlin moved to refer the resolution to the Committee on Gity Property.

Mr. Slokley hoped that the reference would be made. Last summer the selling of confections at the Park had been tried as an experiment, and had proved to be a success. He was satisfied that if action is taken soon, a large rent can be obtained for the mansion.

Mr. Creswell stated that he had been informed, on good authority, that the sales of confections, last summer, amounted to $7,000.

The motion to refer to the Committee on City Property was not agreed to.

A lengthy discussion ensued, occupying about two hours, and various motions were made and voted down.

Mr. Briggs moved to strike out the clause prohibiting the sale of confections on Sunday. Not agreed to.

BOARD OF TRADE.—A stated meeting of the Excentive Council was held on Monday evening.

A communication was received from the Montreal Board of Trade, accompanied by voluminous statistics of the trade of this country from 1854 to 1863, and intending to exhibit the advantages of the Reciprocity Treaty, in their opinion, as bearing upon the interests of the United States.

A further communication was read from the New York Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by a lengthy memorial to Congress, on the subject of granting mail subsidy to several contemplated transatiantic steamship lines from that port. It not being deemed a proper time to introduce this matter while the country is laboring under a heavy war expenditure, the consideration of the subject was postponed for the present.

The Committee on Lights and Harbors were instructed to memorialize the Legislature adversely to the passage of a bill now before that body, asking, on behalf of the pilots, an increase in the rates of pilotage to and from this port.

cision of a doubtful majority. They wanted a Union with peace, but when war ensued they preferred disunion. It was an extraordinary fact that in the Southern States, where a great revolution was inaugurated against their wishes and votes, not a sword was drawn by them. It was a revolution without a martyr and without a confessor, excepting the immortal Pettigrew of South Carolina. We hear of the people being exhausted and anxious for peace. True they were anxious for peace, but they want peace with independence. They are not for peace and Union.

There was no responsible authority for saying that any portion of the rebellious States are willing to accept the terms of peace which our political opponents offer them. Governor Seymour has said that peace could be procured on reasonable terms. It was only with that gentleman a wish—of piletage to and from this port.
