

EVENING BULLETIN

SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1864.

THE ANACONDA RAILROAD.

The indignation of our citizens at the action of their representatives in the Legislature...

PRESIDENT VAUX.

We have every desire that Girard College should, fulfill its great mission, and we have faith in the excellent management of President Smith.

In the next page he says "an active, healthy, earnest, live condition was thus made to eradicate the systemless inertia which was about to settle over the destiny of the institution."

"The screws" have received several turns that were not very agreeable to us, who are wedded to the South, by interest as well as sympathy.

General Steele very properly ordered Mr. Woodruff and his family to be put outside the lines, "where they might secure protection from those with whom they so deeply sympathize."

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

"P. S. — Well, the deed is done and I am now a loyal citizen of the United States — if the taking of the oath of allegiance can make me one."

"Please place me right on the subject with my friends South. Tell them I am not less a sympathizer with them than heretofore, but feel mortified and chagrined at the necessity that compelled me to do so."

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

If some young orphan in Girard College would teach President Vaux the meaning of the word "eliminate," it would be a favor to the city of Philadelphia, which has been compelled to print his blunders in that particular word for several successive years, to say nothing of his bad grammar, nonsense and bombast in other words.

The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years. He has held many high positions, among which was that of United States Senator, previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

"Sprinkling blood in the face of the people." The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years.

"Shorty after the Confederate Government was put in operation, I was in the city of Montgomery. One day I stepped into the office of the Secretary of War, General Walker, and found there, engaged in a very exciting discussion, Mr. Jefferson Davis, Mr. Meminger, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Gilchrist, a member of our Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light. This Mr. Gilchrist, it appears, was a member of the Legislature of Alabama, and knew that the sentiment of her people was in favor of the Union.

Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen. They were discussing the propriety of immediately opening fire on Fort Sumter, to which General Walker, the Secretary of War, appeared to be opposed.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light.

What has been the terrible result? The blood of hundreds of thousands of the brothers of these leaders of anarchic rebellion crieth from the ground.

In the next page he says "an active, healthy, earnest, live condition was thus made to eradicate the systemless inertia which was about to settle over the destiny of the institution."

"The screws" have received several turns that were not very agreeable to us, who are wedded to the South, by interest as well as sympathy.

General Steele very properly ordered Mr. Woodruff and his family to be put outside the lines, "where they might secure protection from those with whom they so deeply sympathize."

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

"P. S. — Well, the deed is done and I am now a loyal citizen of the United States — if the taking of the oath of allegiance can make me one."

"Please place me right on the subject with my friends South. Tell them I am not less a sympathizer with them than heretofore, but feel mortified and chagrined at the necessity that compelled me to do so."

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

If some young orphan in Girard College would teach President Vaux the meaning of the word "eliminate," it would be a favor to the city of Philadelphia, which has been compelled to print his blunders in that particular word for several successive years, to say nothing of his bad grammar, nonsense and bombast in other words.

The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years. He has held many high positions, among which was that of United States Senator, previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

"Sprinkling blood in the face of the people." The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years.

"Shorty after the Confederate Government was put in operation, I was in the city of Montgomery. One day I stepped into the office of the Secretary of War, General Walker, and found there, engaged in a very exciting discussion, Mr. Jefferson Davis, Mr. Meminger, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Gilchrist, a member of our Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light. This Mr. Gilchrist, it appears, was a member of the Legislature of Alabama, and knew that the sentiment of her people was in favor of the Union.

What has been the terrible result? The blood of hundreds of thousands of the brothers of these leaders of anarchic rebellion crieth from the ground.

In the next page he says "an active, healthy, earnest, live condition was thus made to eradicate the systemless inertia which was about to settle over the destiny of the institution."

"The screws" have received several turns that were not very agreeable to us, who are wedded to the South, by interest as well as sympathy.

General Steele very properly ordered Mr. Woodruff and his family to be put outside the lines, "where they might secure protection from those with whom they so deeply sympathize."

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

until he had given satisfactory evidence of his earnestness and his honesty.

A WORD OF CAUTION. The enthusiasm with which all classes of our community are preparing for the Great Central Fair is likely to render an occasional word of caution very desirable.

A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

It is clear to all discerning minds that as a nation we have not lived according to our profession. The Declaration of our Fathers, good in the sight of Heaven and grateful to the down-trodden of the world, has only rested with us as a people to make us ashamed.

Are we then worse than other nations—a people of false pretences? We think we must admit it, and more, that we can never be the chosen people of the Almighty unless we are born again.

A HOUSE OF CORRECTION WANTED. Among other excellent recommendations made by the Mayor in his annual message, is that in regard to the establishment of a House of Correction, in which may be confined the juvenile offenders who infest our city.

The following communication comes to us anonymously, but probably the writer has reasons for not disclosing his name.

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

If some young orphan in Girard College would teach President Vaux the meaning of the word "eliminate," it would be a favor to the city of Philadelphia, which has been compelled to print his blunders in that particular word for several successive years, to say nothing of his bad grammar, nonsense and bombast in other words.

The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years. He has held many high positions, among which was that of United States Senator, previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

"Sprinkling blood in the face of the people." The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years.

"Shorty after the Confederate Government was put in operation, I was in the city of Montgomery. One day I stepped into the office of the Secretary of War, General Walker, and found there, engaged in a very exciting discussion, Mr. Jefferson Davis, Mr. Meminger, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Gilchrist, a member of our Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light. This Mr. Gilchrist, it appears, was a member of the Legislature of Alabama, and knew that the sentiment of her people was in favor of the Union.

What has been the terrible result? The blood of hundreds of thousands of the brothers of these leaders of anarchic rebellion crieth from the ground.

In the next page he says "an active, healthy, earnest, live condition was thus made to eradicate the systemless inertia which was about to settle over the destiny of the institution."

"The screws" have received several turns that were not very agreeable to us, who are wedded to the South, by interest as well as sympathy.

land containing hay and other property belonging to the government, and of a foundry for shell and shot at March Chunk.

It is clear to all discerning minds that as a nation we have not lived according to our profession.

Are we then worse than other nations—a people of false pretences? We think we must admit it, and more, that we can never be the chosen people of the Almighty unless we are born again.

A HOUSE OF CORRECTION WANTED. Among other excellent recommendations made by the Mayor in his annual message, is that in regard to the establishment of a House of Correction, in which may be confined the juvenile offenders who infest our city.

The following communication comes to us anonymously, but probably the writer has reasons for not disclosing his name.

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

If some young orphan in Girard College would teach President Vaux the meaning of the word "eliminate," it would be a favor to the city of Philadelphia, which has been compelled to print his blunders in that particular word for several successive years, to say nothing of his bad grammar, nonsense and bombast in other words.

The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years. He has held many high positions, among which was that of United States Senator, previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

"Sprinkling blood in the face of the people." The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years.

"Shorty after the Confederate Government was put in operation, I was in the city of Montgomery. One day I stepped into the office of the Secretary of War, General Walker, and found there, engaged in a very exciting discussion, Mr. Jefferson Davis, Mr. Meminger, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Gilchrist, a member of our Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light. This Mr. Gilchrist, it appears, was a member of the Legislature of Alabama, and knew that the sentiment of her people was in favor of the Union.

What has been the terrible result? The blood of hundreds of thousands of the brothers of these leaders of anarchic rebellion crieth from the ground.

In the next page he says "an active, healthy, earnest, live condition was thus made to eradicate the systemless inertia which was about to settle over the destiny of the institution."

"The screws" have received several turns that were not very agreeable to us, who are wedded to the South, by interest as well as sympathy.

General Steele very properly ordered Mr. Woodruff and his family to be put outside the lines, "where they might secure protection from those with whom they so deeply sympathize."

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

THE SPRING TRADE. WHAT TO WEAR AND WHERE TO GET IT.

The opening of Spring always gives a fresh impetus to trade. Business, which usually languishes during the last of the winter months, takes a fresh start in vitality with the blowing of the sap in the maple and the blooming of the crocus.

It is clear to all discerning minds that as a nation we have not lived according to our profession.

Are we then worse than other nations—a people of false pretences? We think we must admit it, and more, that we can never be the chosen people of the Almighty unless we are born again.

A HOUSE OF CORRECTION WANTED. Among other excellent recommendations made by the Mayor in his annual message, is that in regard to the establishment of a House of Correction, in which may be confined the juvenile offenders who infest our city.

The following communication comes to us anonymously, but probably the writer has reasons for not disclosing his name.

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

If some young orphan in Girard College would teach President Vaux the meaning of the word "eliminate," it would be a favor to the city of Philadelphia, which has been compelled to print his blunders in that particular word for several successive years, to say nothing of his bad grammar, nonsense and bombast in other words.

The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years. He has held many high positions, among which was that of United States Senator, previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

"Sprinkling blood in the face of the people." The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years.

"Shorty after the Confederate Government was put in operation, I was in the city of Montgomery. One day I stepped into the office of the Secretary of War, General Walker, and found there, engaged in a very exciting discussion, Mr. Jefferson Davis, Mr. Meminger, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Gilchrist, a member of our Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light. This Mr. Gilchrist, it appears, was a member of the Legislature of Alabama, and knew that the sentiment of her people was in favor of the Union.

What has been the terrible result? The blood of hundreds of thousands of the brothers of these leaders of anarchic rebellion crieth from the ground.

In the next page he says "an active, healthy, earnest, live condition was thus made to eradicate the systemless inertia which was about to settle over the destiny of the institution."

would be measuredly relieved. To get hats that are worthy of the name, it is only necessary to visit either of the establishments named below.

- W. F. Warburton & Co., Chestnut street, above the Post Office. C. Oakland & Sons, Continental Hotel. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS.

CURTAINS, &c. Like adversity, Spring has its "sweet uses" besides the general revivification of nature.

THE GREAT ANTI-FAIR OF PHILADELPHIA. It is proposed to hold in Philadelphia during the month of June, for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission, a Fair, which, it has become evident, will be in many respects the most remarkable festival our city has ever witnessed.

It would be well to remember, before going further, that there are still many clear-headed people who are weary of the country, in addition to the heavy tax paid for carrying on the war.

"I saw a specimen of the following remarkable passage: The educational system, the internal or household policy, the home influences, the moral teachings, the individual training, the essential progresses in the scope, capacities, constituents and usefulness of the institution, in its dual character as an orphan establishment and a college."

If some young orphan in Girard College would teach President Vaux the meaning of the word "eliminate," it would be a favor to the city of Philadelphia, which has been compelled to print his blunders in that particular word for several successive years, to say nothing of his bad grammar, nonsense and bombast in other words.

The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years. He has held many high positions, among which was that of United States Senator, previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

"Sprinkling blood in the face of the people." The Hon. Jeremiah Clemens of Alabama, has been prominent as a Democrat in the Southwest for over thirty years.

"Shorty after the Confederate Government was put in operation, I was in the city of Montgomery. One day I stepped into the office of the Secretary of War, General Walker, and found there, engaged in a very exciting discussion, Mr. Jefferson Davis, Mr. Meminger, Mr. Benjamin, Mr. Gilchrist, a member of our Legislature from Lowndes county, and a number of other prominent gentlemen.

One's blood runs cold as such evidence of the deliberate rancidness of the leaders of the rebellion comes to light. This Mr. Gilchrist, it appears, was a member of the Legislature of Alabama, and knew that the sentiment of her people was in favor of the Union.