HALF PILOTAGE TAX.—Mr. Editor:
The member of Congress who made the remarks at the meeting of the Corn Exchange Association concerning the high rate of pilotage and half pilotage taxes must be very ignorant of the laws of Pennsylvania relating to those subjects. It is a well-known fact that no vessel engage in It is a well-known fact that no vessel engaged in the Pennsylvania coal trade is compelled to take a pilot or pay half pilotage.

Government vessels are of course not required to emyloy a pilot or pay half pilotage if they do not engage one, and if they do employ one, they are only required to pay what they pay in all other States, viz., $5 per foot.

Coastwise vessels are not compelled to take a pilot or pay half pilotage outward bound.

As regards the high rate of tonnage, we have nothing to say, we do not suppose that the rates are higher than in any other city.

THE MINSTRELS.—Mr. Simpson's benefit last evening at the Eleventh Street Opera House drew the largest house of the season. A good bill is offered to-night. THE ARCH.—"Rosedale" was produced in almost unequaled style at the Arch last evening, and drew a very crowded house. The scenery was equal to anything the Arch has yet produced and the company played with great spirit. This evening, and until further notice, "Rosedale" will be played.

MILITARY ARRESTS.—The monthly report of Captain Dolan, Chief of Military Detectives and Patrols, in the District of Columbia, shows the operations during the month of March. Fortyseven officers, found away from their regiments and commands without proper authority, were ordered to headquarters under arrest, and 647 enlisted men were arrested and confined in the Central Guardhouse, while 25 deserters were arrested and turned over to Captain Scheetz.

RECRUITING COLORED TROOPS.—Since the assignment of Colonel S. M. Bowman as Superintendent of Recruiting for the United States Colored Troops in Mayland, the work commenced by his predecessor, General Birney, has been energetically pushed, and now within the space of forty days, two full regiments of 1,600 men each, the Thirtieth and Thirty-ninth, have been recruited and are now ready for the service.

GENERAL BUTLER'S DEPARTMENT.

FORTRESS MONROÉ. April 3.—The departure of Lieutenant General Grant from this place occurred this evening, he having been here now two days in close consultation with General Butler, and doubtless fully posted himself on all the affairs of this department.

Major-General W. P. Smith, who accompanied General Grant, remained here, and will in all probability be assigned to an important command under Major-General Butler. The position to be assigned to General Smith has not as yet been made public, but will be one of importance, and commensurate with his rank.

Judge Ould's mission to this place, as I intimated in my despatch of the 30th ultimo, was for the purpese of facilitating exchanges of prisoners between the United States and the rebels. During the two days of his stay at Old Point Comfort General Butler and he came to the most perfect understanding, and hereafter exchanges will continue on a fair and honorable basis.

Judge Ould returned to Richmond on Friday evening. At twenty minutes to five Major Mul-ford accompanied Col. Ould and Cantain Hatch

Judge Ould returned to Richmond on Friday evening. At twenty minutes to five Major Mulford accompanied Col. Ould and Captain Hatch on the steemer Silas O. Pierce to within a mile or two of Day's Point Lighthouse, where the rebel gunboat Roanoke was awaiting their arrival. The transfer of the commissioners from the Pierce was made at ten minutes to six P. M., and Major Mulford returned here shortly after seven o'clock.

Another terrific storm visited this latitude during the past four days, which, if not more severe than the equinoctial gale, was at least as much so, and the shipping, during this blow, has suffered fearfully. Accounts are already reaching us at this early day of numerous disasters. Among them are the loss of the steamer Fairhaven. This vessel left New York on the 30th ult, and although suffering greatly from stress of weather, reached Cape Henry Light at about eleven o'clock on the night of the listinst. where she ran ashore. This vessel was loaded with troops, having four hundred and greatly from stress of weather, reached Cape Henry Light at about eleven o'clock on the night of the light at about eleven o'clock on the night of the light at about eleven o'clock on the night of the light light at about eleven o'clock on the night of the light light at about eleven o'clock on the night was plated with troops, having four hundred and fifty men belonging to the 69th, 83th, 90th and other New York regiments, returning either from a furlough or coming to join as recruits. The night was pitchy dark and a monstrous sea running at the time; yet, in the face of all this, the chief mate and picked crew manned a boat and contrived to get a hawser ashore. A second cable was likewise fastened, and there being no hopes of getting the ship alloat, the passengers were compelled to swing themselves on shore by the aid of the hawsers.

The landing on the beach of Cape Henry—bleak and barren as it generally is—was made more so at this time, and the roaring of the surf and howling of the wind added but little consolution to the ship wrecked soldiers. Of course all the effects of the men, in getting them ashore, were lost; and as soon as anything like order could be restored the march towards Norfolk was undertaken. It must be remembered that from Cape Henry to the city of Norfolk, the distance is thirty miles, through woods and sand. The rain came down pitillessly, and finally, after great hardships, the majority of the soldiers arrived in town last night.

On the same beach where the above-named vesel went ashore, a barkentine, name unknown, lies also hard and fast aground, the schooner Fanny Bell was foundered, and the captain and two saliors of this vessel are missing, and supposed to have been drowned. The steamer reported by the Fulton, and to whose assistance Capt. Ainsworth sent four steamers from here, proved to be the propeller Thomas A. Scott. The vessels sent out from here have returned, but found no trace of the missing ship.

FROM POINT LOOKOUT.

[Correspondence of the Baitimore American.] Point Lookour, MD., April 4, 1864.—During the past cold weather the supply of wood was very limited, and the officials here having-discovered that a large quantity was cut and corded up on Smith's Point, almost opposite this on the other side of the Potomac, determined to seize and other side of the Potomac, determined to seize and appropriate it to public use; so last week they despatched several barges under the protection of the gunboats Jacob Bell and Yankee. They found the wood under the protection of some rebel soldiers, and at once opened on them with shell, which had the effect to scatter them, and our troops landed and succeeded in getting the wood without further molestation. The firing of the gunboats created quite an excitement on the Point.

Seventy-five more rebels arrived here on Thursday morring from Fortress Monroe. They were some of those lately captured by Gen. Graham, in his expedition to Gloucester county. They represent times very hard in the South, and that the Southern people are getting heartily sick of the war. They say, however, that tremendous exertions are being made by the rebels to hurry on troops to Lee, believing that Gen. Grant will soon move forward towards Richmond.

The rebels that have enlisted in the United States army from the camp are about being erganized into a regiment. We understand that Major Diamond, now commanding the men, will be the Colonel. They number some 600, and from past experience they have proved that they can be trusted, having been encamped for the three months past outside the lines without one deserting. Many of them are East Tennesseeans. Who were compelled to take up arms against the Government.

Two United States naval officers have been recruiting from the post on the Point, and have succeeded in getting a number to enlist in the navy from the rebel camp. All those that had signed the books to work on public works have been transferred to the navy. There were some also enlisted who had their names down on the books for exchange on last Wednesday. Twenty-five of the latter went out in one body.

We learn that the Government is about extending the military telegraph to this point. Seventy-five more rebels arrived here on Thurs-

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Heraid.]

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 4.—A brief visit to the Army of the Potomac has resulted in the discovery of nothing new. It has rained there seven out of the last ten days, and the camps are in a most horrible condition. The army was never before so disagreeably situated. The roads are utterly impassable in many places, and the possibility of a movement for several weeks is out of the question. It will take at least four weeks of the most approved sunshine to se dry the ground as to allow any part of the army is nearly perfected, and the troops are becoming reconciled to the new order of things.

An accident upon the Warrenton branch of the Orange and Alexandria railroad this morning, in consequence of the displacement of a switch, reconsequence of the displacement of a switch, resulted in the demolition of three cars, the summersault of the locomotive, the serious scalding of the engineer, and the delay of the Washington bound train.

The story circulated a few days since, that the sutlers had been ordered out of the army, has not a word of truth in it. No such order has been issued.

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Times.]

BUENOS AYRES, S. A., Friday, Feb. 12, 1861.—
The drought of which I wrote you before has not yet ceased, though there have been in a month two general rains. The ground is baked hard, and in some places cracked open. The surface is like burned ground. Some districts are almost descried by the search after better pastures leagues and leagues away. The loss to the country this year may be computed by millions.

The political peace of this country is most seriously threatened. There is a faction opposed to the location of the Federal Government, or capital, here, and also there is opposition to anything like Federal authority. The old question of the right of a General Government to coerce a refractory State is to be decided in South as well as in North America. The election for members of the Legislature will take place on next Sunday, and fears are entertained that it will be a fearful day. The military are gathered to this city, and military law will rule the day for the preservation of peace. It is not yet known to what measures the Opposition will resort to carry their purposes, but the crowd to be held in check by this national military is composed of desperate men, and they have but little fear of the soldiers. For the first time in its history the American Church will be closed on account of an election.

A French dally here states that the crown and purple intended for the coronation of President Lopez, as Emperor of Paraguay, have arrived in this city. They are said to be the same used in the coronation of the Emperor of Hayti, Faustin I. Preparation for this step has been going forward for a long time, though many have denied it who have means of knowing. Yet you can depend upon it. The coronation is not distant. An empire is soon to nestle in the very heart of South America.

GLORIFTING SIN.—Some persons who have less sense and good taste than liberality, are making arrangements to have a grand display on the occasion of the inneral of the poor girl who was murdered at the Continental Theatre, on Saturday night. There is to be an exhibition of her corpse for an hour or two before the time fixed for the interment, and there will be a silver mounted coffin with other costly trappings of woe. There will, of course, be a great crowd of jostling, eager people, prompted purely by mere morbid curiosity, and those who go to gaze, and who have but limited ideas of principle and propriety, will come away impressed with an idea that a poor creature who died in a full career of a life of wretched sinfulness has suffered martyrdom and is receiving the ness has suffered martyrdom and is receiving the award of it at the hands of the living. The murdered girl is entitled to the pity of all, particularly in view of her unfiness for the awful charge which she was called upon so suddenly to undergo; but there was nothing in her life, character or death to entitle her to special posthumous honors. While charity would draw the veil of forgetfulness over her in ner to special fostimons months. While charity would draw the veil of forgetfulness over her zinful life, and give her poor remains a decent but quet and urobtrusive burnal, a vulgar fondness for display drags her character before the world and at once advertises and excuses her sinfulness, with the pomp and show of ar expensive funeral. New York once made a grand public parade on the occasion of the obsequies of a murdered prizefighter. Philadelphia has usually shown a more relined taste in such matters, and it would have been much better at this time to have quietly consigned the remains of Maggie Baer to the earth, and left her sins and the excuses for them to a tribunal above; while earthly justice determines upon the crime of her murderer.

HIGH TIDES.—The heavy rains and the strong northeast winds which have prevailed for several days lately have caused very high tides in the Del-aware. At high water yesterday and to-day many of the wharves were overflowed.

Stormy.—The weather to-day is particularly dismal. Snow, sleet and rain abound, and a cheerless Northeast wind adds to the disagree-ableness of the day. THE OPENING OF THE NEW YORK SANI.

TARY FAIR.

From the Tribune of this morning we glean the following interesting description of the proceedings in New York yesterday, incident to the opening of the Great Sanitary Fair:

Since the magnificent reception which the city gave to the Prince of Wales on his arrival in New York, a finer display of the Milltary Department than that of yesterday has not been witnessed by our citizens. At about 10 o clock the military organizations began to assemble at their various head quarters, and between 11 and 1 o'clock offerent regiments might be seen forming into line in head quarters, and between 11 and 1 o'click off-ferent regiments might be seen forming into line in Grand and Broome streets, Washington place, and on Broadway, preparatory to their final as-sembling on Fourteenth atreet. As the soldiers came out, the crowd of persons, attracted by the stir and glitter of uniforms, increased in point of numbers, until Broadway and Union Park were nearly filled long before the time for the parade. The greater part of the regiments, however, formed into position on Fourteenth street. Here the scene was truly imposing.

was truly imposing.

On account of the many organizations to be assigned to their proper places some delay was naturally caused in getting ready for the final march, and it was some time after the hour appointed when the column started. The appearance of Broadway during the march through it, with the flags waving above from the hotels and principal buildings, and the immense throng pressing along the walks with the advancing troops, was truly magnificent. It seemed as if it was one vast river of human beings, which had formed in Union Square and was ellptying into City Hall Park.

Gen. Dix commanded the United States troops, and General Sandford the Volunteers and State Militia. Gen. Thomas Francis Meagher was on the ground in the formatien of the line, and acted temporarily on the staff of Gen. Dix. The line of troops, as it stood when completed, extended from the corner of Second avenue and Fourteenth street to Tenth avenue, or, indeed, quite to North River. Gens. Dix and Sanford reviewed the troops by passing up and down the line, and the event had an admirable appearance, and at precisely 3% o'clock the whole procession began to move. Their route lay through Second avenue and Stuyvesant place to Astor place, thence to Broadway, and down Broadway to Duane street, over to centre and so down to the City Hall, where the Mayor and Common Council received them in review. was truly imposing.

The parade over, we pass with the throng up town, wending our way toward Palace Garden. It is yet early, and the doors have not been opened to the select 6 600 who purchased the privilege of assisting at the inauguratory exercises, at the price of $2 a ticket. But already the lady attendants were arriving, and taking their places in the booths to which they were assigned.

At 8 o'clock the ceremonies of Hail Columbia by the military hand statuaged in the gallery. The Start At 8 o' clock the ceremonies of inauguration commenced with the playing of Hail Columbia by the military band stationed in the gallery. The Star-Spangled Banner was then sung by Misses Colburn and Molton, the Mendelssohn and Harmonic Societies, led by Mr. Berge, joining in the chorus. The Committee in charge of the music consisted of Mersrs. Henry Camp and J. F. Tebly.

The Rev. Dr. Wm. Adams then offered a prayer. The Army Hymn was then sung by S. C. Campbell, accompanied by the choral societies and the band.

Pennsylvania on Sunday last lost two of her most estimable citizens. One was the Honorable John Banks, some years since a member of Congress, subsequently the President Judge of the Berks County Courts, and since that time an eminent lawyer of that county. He, within a brief period, in the prosecution of his legal duties attended the session of the Supreme Court in Philadelphis, and soon after his return contracted a severe cold and at an early hour on Sunday morning he breathed his last. His fame as a lawyer was not confined to the district in which he practised, and hundreds of friends throughout the State will read with sorrow the notice of his decease, The other, Mr. Edward M. Lyile departed this life at his residence. in this city. An uncle of the brave General William H. Lytle, who fell at Ohickamanga, he was endowed with all the noble traits which marked that lamented hero. Keenly as his loss will be felt by those in our own city, who were fortunate enough to know him, and who can but look back with pleasure to the hours of enjoyment they experienced in his society, in the western part of Pennsylvania and in Ohio, where from longer residence he had become better known the tidings of his decease will be received with poignant grief.

DEATH UNDER SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES.—
On Friday night a soldier was discovered lying insensible in the yard of a private residence in York.
Information was given to the officers of the Army Hospital, and sometime afterwards the guard removed him to the Hospital, where he expired next morning. Before he died, sufficient information was obtained from him to ascertain that he was a member of the 76th Penna. regiment, named Levi Sune. who was in this borough on furlough having member of the 76th Penna. regiment, named Levi Sipe, who was in this borough on furlough having re-enlisted. When picked up, his watch and a small amount of money were found on his person, but his beauty money, which he usually carried about him, was missing, which fact led to suspicious of foul play. A subsequent examination of the stomach showed traces of poison, and that oregan was accordingly removed for a thorough analyzation of its contents.—Fork Pennsylvanian.
