IRISH EMIGRATION AND FEDERAL RECEBUITING.

[From the London Daily Times, March 22]
There are certain points upon which it seems as useless to lecture our Irish tellow-subjects as it would be a shoal of herrings. One of these is the necessity rather than the mere propensity which urges them to the first stages of social organization. The Irishman, must marry; he must belong to a faction; he must be in a coaspiracy, and he must drill, with a yiew to joining a brigade, whether for French service, or Roman, or simply for service at home when the opportunity shall occur. Perhaps if we look into the matter philosophically, we have no such great reason to complain that there is still included in the population of these isles so gregarious and manageable a race. The Irishmen who entered the Federal service on board the Kearsage have been very genity treated. Pleading guilty, they were let off with a reprint mand, and with an explanation of the law by the judge and the attorney-general, intended for a pluge and the attorney-general, intended for a more than a recruiting officer. There are, he observes, more than a hundred thousand believe what an Irishman would be likely to learn from a recruiting officer. There are, he observes, more than a hundred thousand he observes, more than a hundred thousand he observes, more than a hundred thousand he observes and proved the accasion to publish a few facts over and proved the occasion to publish a few facts over and proved the occasion to publish a few facts over and proved the occasion to publish a few facts over and proved the occasion to publish a few facts over and proved the occasion to publish a few facts over and proved the occasion to publish a few facts over and proved the observes, more than a hundred thousand he observes, more than a hundred thousand he observes and proved the fact of the hundred thousand that these men would perhaps like to see foreign parts, or to have a few adventures or get their passage to America gratis, but the truth is, a Yankee is quite as

MISS EMILY SHAW'S & GREAT OF THE GREAT OF TH

OORRESPONDENCE.

PHILADRIPHIA, April 2d, 1861.

MISS EMILY SHAW: Raving heard how highly your "Readings!" have been appreciated in New England and elsewhere, we beg leave to solicit your kind offices in aid of the Funds of the Private and Public School Department of the Great Central Fair. We will be much gratified if you will favor the project by naming an early convenient day, when we may have the pleasure to announce that you will give our citizens the privilege of hearing your Recitations or Readings. With sentiments of regard, we are

Very respectfully, your obedient servants, Edward Shippen, C. J. Stille, J. T. Thomas, Constant Guillou, Saml. J. Reeves, Edward Hopper, Jos. B. Townsend.

LA PIEERE HOUSE, April 4th, 1864.— Edward Shippen, Etq., Charles J. Stille, Esq., Jos. T. Thomas, Esq.—Dear Sirs: I acknowledge, with pleasure, the invitation politely extended to me by yourselves and other genitemen of Philadelphia to give a Reading in aid of the School Department of the Great Central Fair.

I assure you I am most happy to have the opportunity to cast my mits into the Generous Fund your Fair will doubtless contribute to the Sanitary cause, and will set apart Friday evening, April 3th, for the proposed Reading.

Yours sincerely,

EMILY SHAW.

TESTIMONIALS.
Miss Shaw's Readings have been the subject of high encomiums, as will be perceived by the following Testimonials from those most qualified to indee year.

lowing Testimonials from those most qualified to judge, viz:
From Dr. Oliver Werdell Holmes, Boston.
Miss Shaw has much grace and dignity, a very sweet, sympathetic voice, a fine enunciation, and, to my ear, an almost faultiess pronunciation. I found so little to criticise, that I feared I must be wanting in the eye which detects faults.
From Bev. Jno. Weiss, Watertown.
Miss Shaw possesses power enough for imitating the popular exaggerations of some famous readers, but too much sense and simplicity to give it that main natural in tone, gesture, and expression, while she preserves every dramatic or tender element of the author. There is no lack of energy and passion which Shakspeare or Browning reshaded, and the true grace of woman clothes the Miss Shaw has been kindly namitted to refer to

OFFICE OF THE

GREAT CENTRAL FAIR

SANITARY COMMISSION. PHILADELPHIA, 1307 CHESTNUT STREET,

The Committee on Finance and Donations of the Great Central Fair, appeal for contributions in money, to those of their fellow-citizens who do not ose sending to the Fair the products of their skill and industry. By far the larger portion of the money received on the occasion of the Fairs held for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission in Cincinnati, Boston, and Brooklyn, was derived from direct donations in eash, and not from the proceeds of the sale of articles exposed. What the Sanitary Commission needs to afford relief to the sick and wounded soldiers is money, in large amounts and from all sources. We call, then, upon all bankers, corporations, capitalists, persons living upon incomes, professional or otherwise; in short, upon all who will not be represented in he Fair by their productions, to imitate the example of those who will, and to contribute liberally in MONEY for this great object. In New York, although their Fair is not to be held for two weeks, contributions of more than $200,000 in cash have been already received, a single department of trade, that of dry goods, having made up more than half that sum. Brooklyn and Cincinnati have each contributed as much in money, and certainly the wealth. liberality and patriotism of Philadelphia can hardly be considered as less conspicuous than that of these communities. Contributions will be thankfully received by any of the members of
