XXXVIIITH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION! CLOSE OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

SENATE .- Mr. Harris reported, from the Juli. ciary Committee, a bill for the collection of taxes in insurrectionary districts, with amendments striking out the provision authorizing grants of forty acre lots to soldiers, and that empowering tax commissioners to set aside sales deemed to be nnfairly made.

tax commissioners to set aside sales deemed to be infairly made. Mr. Anthony submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to the bill for the relief of Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, which proposes to retire Justices of the Supremeand Dis-trict Courts at the age of seventy, if they des re it, giving Supreme Justices from four to six thousand dollars, according to the length of their official service; and three-fourths of that salary to District Court Justices, provided such salary shall not be less than two thousand dollars in cases wherein the service has exceeded fifteen years. The joint resolution to amend the Constitution came up as the prior or cer. Mr. Johnson said we have heretofore kept four millions of slayes in bondage, and as one of the consequences of that bondage they had been kept in a state of almost absolute ignorance. This was a thing of worch the world's history afforded no parailel. Whether this was for weel or for states-men it consider was on weel or for states.

Consequences of an ease boundage they had neen kept in a state of almost absolute ignorance. This was a thing of wurch the world's history afforded no parallel. Whether this was for weal or for woe, the future must decide. The only question for statesmen to consider was whether this measure of emancipation was right, independent of its consequences—it those consequences are such as to render it expedient at this time.
The men who fought through the revolution, and recommended the adoption by the American people of our Constitution, though that slavery was not only an evil, but an evil of the highest character. The history of those times would bear him out in the assertion that if the men by whom the Constitution was framed and the people by whom it was adopted had anticipated our present troubles, they would have provided a constitution is not eremote period, to revoke the clause permitting slavery.
The provisions in the Constitution protecting slavery ware adopted upon political and material reasons, and not upon grounds of morality or religion, and because they believed it would be difficult to have a Union at all without slavery.
Whether they were right or wrong, it is impossible to say now. If they had voted to adopt our Constitution without the recognition of slavery, would regret it. He entertained the same opition of slavery, would regret it. He entertained the same opition of slavery, and not upon grounds of morality for moting this meaver, he was not departing from his earlier convictions, and would appeal to the Constitution itself in justification of the vote he should give for the measure. He would not inquire whether slavery had produced the war or not. The war was not on us, and slavery had produced mischief, and unless the measure before the senate should be adopted, there could be no permane.

Senate should be adopted, there could be no per-manent peace. Mr Johnson, at length, proceeded to controvert the ideas that the asolition of slavery could be ac-complished either by direct legislation or the exer-cise of the war power by the President. He be-lieved that the rebells still owed allegiance to the United States, and were to be proceeded against as traitors under the Constitution, and any other idea would be monstrous. He believed that there were hundreds of thousands of citizens in the insurrec-tionary districts who were inst as devoted to the would be monstrous. He believed that there were hundreds of thousands of citizens in the insurrec-tionary districts who were just as devoted to the Union as any member of this body. Their obe-dience to the de facto government was to a power they could not resist, and their obedience was no crime. He claimed that the war power was in the hands of Congress, and the power of President was derived from his right as Commander-in Chief. This being the case, no flave could be manumitted unless by proclamation, unless the proper physical force accompanied it. We must get the slaves hefore we can manumit them. He contended that the very presmble to the Con-stitution, which stated that its objects were to es-tablish justice, promote tranquility and promote the general welfare, and that first of all liberty might be preserved, gave full warrant for the pro-posed amendment. Was there no justice in put-ing an end to human slavery? Was slavery doing no injury to the tranquility of the country ? Was it not against the general welfare and against all ideas of human liberty? In conclusion, Mr. Johnson said our sole consideration should be to bring the war to a successful close and chould be to

Johnson said our sole, consideration should be to bring this war to a successful close and secure the restoration of the Union. He believed the Union would be restored, and we would have our Na-tional and State Governments without human bondage. Mr. Davis's amendment, that no negro or person whose mother or grandmother is or was a ne-gro shall be a citizen of the United States, or be eligible to any civil or military office or any place of trustor profit under the United States, was reof trust or profit nuder the United States, was re-jected—yeas 5, nays 33. Mr. Powell proposed to insert at the end of sec-tion one the following: 'That no slave shall be emancipated by this article unless the owner there-of be first paid the value of the slave or slaves so emancipated,' which was rejected—yeas 2, nays

Mr. Saulsbury obtained the floor, and the Senate adjourned. HOTEB OF REPRESENTATIVES. Mr. Rice (Mass.) asked for the Committee on Naval Affairs leave of absence for ten days, from Thursday, in order to visit the West for the pur-pose of examining several sites for a navy yard on the Missispipi and its tributaries. By a personal inspection they could report more inteiligently. Mr. Stevens (Pa.) opposed the request. The first duty of members was in the House, and it had recently been difficult to keep a quorum here for the transaction of business. The committee, after visiting pleasant places, would return hardly im-proved in capacity for business. The most the committee could do would be to taste the waters and try their different qualities and aptitude for and try their different qualities and aptitude for mixing. [Laughter]. Besides, it had been sug-gested there were guerillas out there, and might be railroad, accidents. [Renewed laughter]. There might to some propriety in the Committee of Ways and Means visiting the West, to see how much taxation that country would bear.

and Means visiting the West, to see how much taxation that country would bear. Mr. Bice (Mass.) said they should like to have the gentleman accompany them, but the Naval Committee din not ask leave of absence if public interests here would suffer by it. Mr. Washburne (III.) believed there could be no doubt with those best acquainted with the subject that Cairo or Mound City, Illinois, afforded the best facilities for a navy yard on the Missispip, and it required no committee of Congress to visit these places to make this fact patent to the country. country. Several other gentlemen participated in the con-versation, when the request was laid on the table. The Honse went into Committee of the Whole on the National Banking bill. The committee agreed to amendment offered yesterday, by 59 against 54, that nothing in this act shall be construed to pro-hibit the taxing of banking capital for State and municipal purposes, provided the taxes shall not be higher than the rate imposed by the States on the same amount of moneyed capital in the hands of individuals. of individuals. Mr. Brooks submitted three additional sections two of which he said came from all the banks of New York, with perhaps the exception of one: First, an amendment providing the coin received by every association shall be retained up to a cer. by every association shall be retained up to a cer-tain point; Second, an amendment designating the ways and means for winding up the associations when they desire; Third, forbidding these banks from being turned into savings banks. These amendments were severally rejected. Mr. Holman (Ind.) offered a substitute for the bill, repealing the National Bank act now in exis-tence, and giving the institutions three years in which to close their affairs. This was disagreed to --yeas 44, nays 63.

which to close their affairs. This was disagreed to -yeas 44, nays 63. The Committee then rose and reported the bill as amended to the House. Mr. Stevens offered a substitute, substantially the bill as amended, but fixing the rate of interest at seven per centum, and omitting the clause giving privilege to States to tax capital stock. Mr. Stevens acceded to the suggestion of Mr. Brooks, that the amendments made to the bill by the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union shall be printed before further action on the Subject.
