THE CASE OF LONG OF OHIO.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP THE FRIGATE MIN NESOTA.

FORTRESS MONROE, April 9-[Special to the Herald .- A most desperate and daring attempt to destroy the United States steam frigate Minnesota, Rear Admiral Lee's flag ship, off Newport News, was made this morning, which, while it did not materially damage the ship, caused considerable excitement among the officers and crew. The facts, as near as I can get at them, are as follows: Shortly before four bells were struck the lookout observed a small black speck approaching the Minnesota. Thinking that it was some floating spar, he watched it, and when it finally neared the ship he saw that it was a boat containing three men. he hailed them three times, and finally threatened to fire on them, to which they answered derisively, "Fire and be damned." The small boat boldly pushed on towards the frigate, and a few moments after an explosion, similar to the report of twenty pieces of artillery, followed. Officers and crew were tumbled out of berths and hammocks, and the movable farniture of the ship rolled about in a confused mass, while the noble vessel trembled in every joint as if to shake off the effects of a horrible shock of paralysis. As soon as order was restored inquiries were made by the officers as to the cause of the disturbance, and the above facts came to light. Orders were at once given to pursue the daring rebels who had run the gauntlet of our picket boats with their infernal machine; and when the Admiral's despatch tug, the Poppy, lying alongside of the Minnesota, was hailed and ordered in pursuit, the startling answer that she had no steam up was returned; and the other small tugs on picket were too far off to be of any use, as the rebel marauders quietly and rapidly disappeared in one of the many creeks abounding on the banks of the James river.

The only thing that could be done was to repair the damage inflicted by the torpedo, which was very trifling indeed, if we except a few bruised heads of the men by being tumbled out upon the decks. The commander of the tug was next put under arrest to answer for his negligence in not keeping steam up on his boat at all times, as required by the regulations.

XXXVIIITH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION. WASHINGTON, April 12, 1664. SENATE.—Mr. Wade (Ohio) introduced the House bill enabling the people of Nebraska to form a State Government. Mr. Foster (Conn.), objected to the bill, solely on the ground that the insignificant population of the territory had not clearly expressed a wish to be-come a State, and the proposed measure was a dictation to them on the part of Congress. Mr. Wade repiled that through their representa-tive in the other House they had expressed a de-site, as he supposed, to know and represent their desires. The subject was then had over. The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of the Naval Appropriation Bill. The amend-ment appropriating $184,600 for the purchase of lands at the Charlestown, Massachusetts, Navy Yard was adopted. THIRD EDITION. 3.30 O'Clock. BY TELEGRAPH, EUROPEAN NEWS.

Yard was adopted. House.—The House galleries, as on Saturday

The consideration of the subject was postponed The House resumed the consideration of the resolution to expel Mr. Long. Mr. Eldridge (Wis.) said this resolution was wrongfully brought here. The only object could be to stir up strife and ill feeling at a time when we ought not only to have good fellowship and kind feeling, but a union of sentiment. Referring to the constitutional provisions, he denied the right and power of the House to expel the gentleman from Ohio under the resolution. They could not expel him for his opinion's sake. The Constitution submitted no such question. A man could not be expelled for his opinion, but for acts. He disagreed with the gen-tleman from Ohio and also the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Harris). He had not come to the conclusion that Secession is a fixed and unalterable fact, and the alternatives mentioned by the gentleman from Ohio have not yet been presented to the country. It is possible, however, that they may be. He referred to the New York Times, which says Speaker Oolfax's zeal has outrun his discretion, and that his resoln-tion is neither right nor expedient—also, to the Evening Post, which says that Long's speech was a perfectly legitimate expression.

Evening Post, which says that Long's speech was a perfectly legitimate expression. If the war was conducted on a proper policy the seceeded States may be brought back; but carry it on for subjugation and you never can accomplish your purpose. You accuse the Democrats of sympathizing with the rebels, but you do not believe it. The charge is made for a wicked and party purpose, the said the Republicans are a revolutionary party ir opinions and practice, for in overthrowing the Constitution they overthrow the Union.

A similar attempt to blow up the Roanoke. our iron-clad, three-turreted Monitor, lying off Newport News, was made last November, by floating down an infernal machine, which at the time was duly described and illustrated in the columns of the Herald; but the vigilance and bravery of Commodore Guert Gansevoort who boldly met the advancing infernal machine with his small boats, and had it towed to the beach and emptied of the powder it contained, deprived the serpent of its fangs, although its sting could not have effected much or made any impression on the huge sides of the monster Monitor.

On the whole, the intended destruction of the Minnesota has a spice of the romantic about it, and this second grand failure must demonstrate to the enemy that they have by no means brought their inventions in the way of torpedoes to anything like a state of perfection. The whole affair is wrapt up in mystery, and no two persons attached to the Minnesota can be found to agree in their stories, and thus give a satisfactory account of the facts connected with it. There is great room for throwing blame on somebody for gross carelessness, and nothing short of an efficient and thorough investigation will ever reveal the true statement.
