A histree FROM THE INVENTOR OF THE TORFEDO BIGMENOND, Feb. 8, 1561.—Dear Wife: Lwrote you yesterday a short letter, by a Mr. Adams that lives at harrisburg, six miles below houston. Mr. dunn leaves for Texas to-morrow. It is with the greatest reluctance that I remain, but, after mature judgment, I think it my duty not only to the country, but to you and the children. I am certain the sacrifice I make in remaining here entitles you to special attention. Wee will get all the assistance from the Government wee want and have no doubt of our success. In fact, wee have presented the only feasible plan to the Government which they all agree to it if success attends us the result will be great. You must not be hackward about asking them for money it is their duty to give it to you because they will be reimoursed and share the profits with me. They may think that I am over-particular, but I am not, and if ther is any failure in my request I shall quit and return home. My mind must not be troubled with matters of this wind:

I am taking on myself a greatise of the commence of the commen promises the redemption of New Orleans and the Mississippi River. I am taking on myself a greatreponability, one that requires all my abilities. In these times there is no such a thing as chariver benevolence, at least on this side of the river everybody has gone mad with speculation, and patriotism is at an end. Thousands of women and children are in a state of destitution, their protectors having gone to the army, very like with the understanding that those left at home were to clothe and feed their familys during their absence, which understanding has long since been forgotten. My opportunitys have been very good to see the state of things as they really are, having traveled over the different States several times that are now in our possession. The people are hadly demoralized; the scidiers in the army will equality demoralized; the scidiers in the army will equality demoralized; the scidiers in the army will be unfit for civil life, at least a large portion of what are left of this awful and bloody tragedy.

The contest this spring will be a bloody one. The Government is placing all in the army as though the crisis were at hand which I am satisfied of myself. I believe we will win, but at what a larful cost. God help the widows and orphans, he Government has never made any provision or those that must necessarily come to want, in these word in the heads of those that must necessarily come to want, in the check of the fault of our soldiers, and if the nation is lost the blood of it will be on the heads of those that made the laws and executed them. It is not the fault of our soldiers, braver men the world neversaw.

The army as a general thing are in very good spirits, but the people are very desponding; however, a little success would soon regulate that the state of our currency is a very perplexing question. As yet, there has been no laws have shown anything the world may have shown anything to the tractement of the fastir very foolishly, and we found out all about it before it developed enough to be seri

A TORFEDO STORY.

MOBILE, Ala., March 3, 1861.—My Dear Wife.—Your very long and truly welcome letter of the 12th of January reached me a few days since, and it really seemed as though the good old times had returned, to receive two letters from you in such quick succession, this one and one sent by Warren Adams, both coming to hand within two weeks of each other:

"I write this to send by Bob Dunn who leaves here Saturday morning, for home, and for once in here Saturday morning, for home, and for once in my life I wish I was another and that other lucku my life I wish I was another and that other lucky Rob Duan. I remember well your remarks about his outwitting in getting the first chance to return to Texas, but I assure you that in this case no extra amount of wit was brought into requisition by him to gain this (to him) desirable end

I wrote to you when Bob left for Richmond, and hinted (for then I did not dare do more) at the object of his mission thither, and now, having a more trustworthy conveyence for my letter; can talk you more fully of the matier, and in doing so will explain to your satisfaction why it was mutually agreed between ourselves that Singer and myself shall remain on this side of the river and Bob return to Texas. Discovering that our business (so turn to Texas. Discovering that our business (so far as making further contracts was concerned) was about drawing to a close, and that but very few of us could render ourselves useful to the Government by going across the Mississippi, wat once concentrated all of the inventive genius in our parts. for the purpose of getting up something new, that would carry destruction to the Yankees, make money for ourselves, and at the same time be of great service to the Confederacy.

The result was, that I got up the plan of an iron-clad torpedo-boat that all who saw it admitted was equal to the task of destroying any war ship now affoat. To carry out our plan, and get our new boat under headway, it was necessary first to lay the whole matter before the authorities at Richmond-get their approval of the scheme and authority, together with money and material to build her. Secondly, after this was accomplished the boat would have to be constructed manned and ased. In order that the first part of our work should be properly begun, we deemed it best after consultation to send Dunn to Richmond, and through the influence of Wigfail and others, get the matter before Congress—and authority procured from it to carry out our plans. This part of the business Dunn was well smited for, and has succeeded in accomplishing what we desired, all of which he will explain to you. Next came Singer's quities and knowledge of machinery, and for this part of the work no one was, at hand but Singer and myself. This was the programme agreed upon, and as Singer nor myself could go home, and feeling it was necessary some one should be there to take care and look after our families, we agreed that after Dunn had finished his part of the work, he should go home. Having thus given yours, out and its mow in a state of happy indifference. Having its fixed up at Richmond to our satisfection, then all of us will go across the river, so that I am now in a state of happy indifference faction, it is well—if not, we go home, which is better.

Since we have been on this side of the river we so that I am now in a state of happy indifference faction, then all was about drawing to a close; and that but very few of us could render ourselves useful to the Government by going across the Mississippi, we at once concentrated all of the inventive genins in our parts, for the nurpose of cetting no something

THE GREAT CENTRAL FAIR FOR THE SANITARY COMMISSION TO BE LELD IN PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 1861. TO THE WOOLEN AND COTTON MANUFACTURERS AND WOOL AND COTTON DEALERS.

We address the Manufacturing interests of this Siate, and the adjoining States of New Jersey and Delaware,—interests representing the basis of our great commercial prosperity, in a cause that presents no ordinary appeal to the sympathies of all hyal and patriotic men.

Again and again has the President called upon the people, and again and again have they nebly responded. The roll of the drum was heard in our midst, and our streets have re-echoed to the tramp of armed soldlery, and to-day nearly one million of armed soldiery, and to-day nearly one million of resolute men, forsaking home, family and business, are battling with dangers, privations, disease and all the untold horrors of war, for the honor of the old flag and in defeace of the republican go vernment established by our fathers, that we may in greater security pursue the pleasant paths of peace.

It did not amount to zaything; they conducted the affair very foolishly, and we found out all about it before it developed enough to be serious. The disaffected troops are scattered and the ringleaders arrested without any commotion, very few, in fact knew anything of it. Three of the instigators are to be shot. All the rest were led into the plot by these in the hope that it would bring on peace. You need not fear my getting into any populia, excitement. THE COMMITTEE ON FINE ARTS OF THE GREAT UENTRAL FAIR for the Sanitary Commission, respectfully and earnestly request all our citizens, and partietic persons elsewhere, having fine works of art in their possession, to forward, without delay, a memorandum of their in ended contributions, to John Sartain, Esq., the Secretary of the Committee, 728 Sansom street. The works of art thus solicited comprise oil paintings, water-color drawings, marbles, bronzes and original models in clay or plaster, or other material. In the collection of water-color drawings alone it is the hope of the Committee to present a very full and brilliant exhibition, as we are known to have in our city a very large number of such drawings, which it is hoped will be generously placed at the disposal of the committee by the owners.

A Gallery will be erected on Logan Square of such material as wilt ensure the safety of the pictures placed in it. In order to make proper arrangements for the reception and disposition of the various works of art contributed, the Committee must have early knowledge of their approximate number and character.

It is the desire of the Committee to make the Gallery of the Fine Arts one of the most marked features of the great Central Fair, and the public is, therefore, earnestly appealed to to fill, by their generous contributions of pictures and other works of art, a Gallery of larger dimensions, it is believed, than any ever erected in this country. The Committee hope to make our exhibitions in every respect one of great attraction and interest.

Although circulars have been largely sent to persons known to possess works of art, and many responses have been received, this method of attracting public attention is used as a reminder to all, and particularly to these who may not have received circulars, of the needs, hopes and desires of the Committee, and of the short time remaining in which to collect and properly arrange the contributions. THE BLESSING OF GOD rests signally on all parts of the work. Many thousands have been cheered, benefited and saved. Still a large part of the Army remains unreached, and double the number, both of stations and delegates, are needed to meet the urgent demand for them.

The Christian Commission offers to the people a perfectly reliable and wonderfully economical channel to reach the entire army in all its various fields. The money given goes in full measure, in benefits for body and soul, directly to the Soldiers; and stores also, immediately from the hands of delegates from home, who add words and deeds of kirdness to the gifts when bestowed.
