THE GREAT CENTRAL FAIR, TO be held in PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 1864.
The undersigned, appointed as THE COMMITTEE OF THE FIRE DEPARTMENT, to supervise its interests in relation to the movement in add The Monestigned, appointed as THE COMMITTEE OF THE FIRE DEPARTMENT, to supervise its interests in relation to the movement in aid of the Great Central Fair for the Sanitary Commission, to be held in June next, respectfully ask the attention of the various Companies, and others interested, to the following suggestions:

First—It is proposed that the Fire Department place their entire apparatus at the disposal of the Ohief Engineer, to afford protection to the Fair Buildings against accident from fire, the Chief Engineer to detail each day the necessary number of Companies to perform the duty required.

Second—That the companies appoint Committees to collect money and salable articles for the benefit of the Fair, all articles thus collected to be labeled with the names of the donor and the Company through whose agency they were presented. If Companies can influence contributions of a day's labor to the Fire Department Fund, from any establishment or individuals, there is nothing in the rules governing the Fair to prohibit them from so doing.

Third—To properly decorate the space to be accompanied to the property decorate the space to be a possible to the property decorate the space to be a possible to the property decorate the space.

rules governing the Fair to prohibit them from so doing.

Third—To properly decorate the space to be allotted to the Fire Department in the Fair Buildings, that Companies place at the disposal of this Committee their banners, flags, and other paraphernalia, the Committee pledging themselves to attend to their proper distribution at the Fair, and their safe return to the owners.

Fourth—Officers of Companies are requested to communicate, in writing with the Chief Engineer, as to whether or not they intend to take part in the movement. Time being limited, it is desirable that, where action had not already been taken, Companies call special meetings, and promptly advise this Committee of the result.

Fifth—Should persons or associations not connected with the Fire Department desire to make donations, either of money or articles the same can be sent to either of the undersigned Committee, or to any Company in the Department, or to the office of the Chief Engineer, either of whom will give a proper receipt therefor.

THE WEST JERSEY FERRY COMPANY—NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF THE SANITARY FAIR.—The Committee having learned with much pleasure that at a meeting of the Directors of this Company, it was Resolved, That the gross collections of said Ferry, on TUESDAY, the 17th day of May next, shall be paid over to the New Jersey Department of the Sanitary Fair.

And further, that all the employes of the Company have generously offered their one day's labor in aid of the Sanitary Commission.

We therefore respectfully request the citizens of Camden and Philadelphia to lend their aid in swelling the receipts by a disuse of their Quarterly Tickets, and by a liberal patronage of the boats of the Company on that day, so as largely to increase their generous offer in this good cause.

TRIMMINGS,

EMBROIDERIES. The undersigned have been appointed to represent the constituencies of the above Department in the GREAT OENTRAL FAIR at Philadelphia, which will excel all preceding Fairs in the extent of its competitive displays of goods, and in the number of its prosperous visitors from the distributing and consuming classes.

They appeal to merchants, to manufacturers, and others, at home and abroad, to send at once, to any of the members of the Committee here named, such donations of MONEY, or goods, as they shall deem suitable, in aid of the object of the Fair.

There need be no fear that too much can be sent, as the Trade stand ready to purchase from the Department any excess of goods, while no guarantee is needed for the humane employment of all the funds entrusted to that noble Commission the results of whose labors are so noteworthy that they are carefully chronicled throughout the Christian world.

Donations through this Committee, will be delegated.

are carefully chronicled throughout the Christian world.

Donations through this Committee will be duly acknowledged in those leading American journals most likely to be seen by the respective donors. Due credit for the items and the aggregate will be given in the records of the Fair, and it is expected that the comparison with the achievements of other interests will not be other than creditable to those represented by this Committee.

To the credit of the trade, dealers in the above lines of goods should find no difficulty in arranging for the transfer for the benefit of their own department, of any engagement elsewhere, which should, however, be henceforth avoided.

Ladies of this Committee will call for the goodwill offerings of those cittzens on whose humanity they rely for tokens of remembrance for the brave men who sacrifice health and limb to preserve the property and lives of their neighbors at home. Let centributors who are ready, notify any of the undersigned to call or send for their gifts.

Contributors who make individual and collective donations to this cause are themselves, in effect, good Samaritans at battle-field and hespital, relieving our prostrate foces as well as succoring the gallant defenders of our advanced civilization who chance to suffer in the maintenance of the welfare of the country.

Editor of the Evening Bulletin:—I notice in the Evening Telegraph of the 13th inst., the remarks of Col. James Perot, our newly appointed Flour Inspector as reported in several of our City morning papers, which in my judgment, are well calculated to damage the character of Philadelphia flour in foreign parts.

I regret that Col. Perot has thought proper to commence his admininistration with so ill-advised and unjust a depreciation of the quality of this important article of our commerce.

Although the Telegraph has been pleased to refer in Javorable terms to the former character of my brands, the remarks of the Telegraph elicited by the speech of our new Inspector are rather calculated (unintentionally, I am sure) to sustain his assumption that the quality and character of Philadelphia flour, my own included, has depreciated in quality.

So far as my brands, viz. 4 Wm. B. Thomas

So far as my brands, viz: 'Wm. B. Thomas Premium,' 'Red Stone Extra,' 'Wm. B. Thomas Stra,' and 'Wm. B. Thomas Superfine,' are concerned, they do not require, nor do they receive any appreciation by any endorsement they may receive from an Inspector, they have an established reputation for excellence and uniformity of quality, wherever American flour finds a market, and are purchased on their known and wellestablished merits. nothing that Col. Perot could say therefore can Nothing that Col. Perot could say therefore can add to, or diminish their popularity or value; but it is widely different with brands that are unknown, and these constitute nine-tenths of the flour that reaches the port of Philadelphia, and which, compared with that offered for sale in either of our sister cities, is equal if not superior in quality.

either of our sister cities, is equal if not superior in quality.

The remarks of the Inspector is only calculated therefore to drive purchasers for foreign account to New York and Baltimore, where they can obtain flour according to his statement, of higher character, annd also to divert consignments from this port to other cities.

Mr. Perot proposes to remedy this deficiency, which he says exists in the quality of Philadelphia flour, by some new rules in regard to inspections. If he succeeds in this, he will be able to do more than any former inspector has been able to accomplish, although often attempted, and which I believe cannot be done under our present system of compulsory inspection, in which the inspector is under the control of the receiver rather than the purchaser. purchaser. THE AITACK ON PLYMOUTH, N. C. (Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.)

FORTHESS MONNOE, April 20, 1864.—Au assault on Plymouth, N. C., with a force variously estimated at from five to ten thousand men. was made by the rebels on Sunday afternoon, while General Wesselis's troops were at dress parade. The alarm was first given by a little boy, who was outside of our line, and who came running in to the pickets with the startling information that the "rebels are coming." Almost immediately picket firing commenced; but our outposts were driven in by overwhelming numbers. A squadron of the 12th New York cavalry was sent out to meet the rebel advance guard. After a short but serious engagement the enemy's cavalry was repulsed with great loss. A lieutenant of the 12th New York cavalry was kelled and several men several wounded. ndvance guard. After a short but serious engagement the enemy's cavalry was repulsed with great loss. A lieutenant of the 12th New York cavalry was killed and several men severely wounded.

Preparations for a desperate defence were made by the veteran General Wessells, commanding the district, on a large scale. The troops were assembled without delay, the forts all manned, and in this stare the advance of the rebel horde awaited.

The storming of Fort Gray, situate some two miles from Plymouth, on the Rosnoke river, was momentarily expected, and as General Wessells miles from Plymouth, on the Rosnoke river, was momentarily expected, and as General Wessells expected this rebel movement to be merely a cover to allow the Kinston rams to come down on our flect, Captain Flusser, commanding the navail squadron on the Koanoke, was called into conneil by the General, and it was decided to send several garbonis up the river. Accordingly the Miami (flagship), with Captain Flusser on board; the Ceres, Whitehean and Bombshell, at once got underweigh, and before remainer fort Gray were fired on from the shore. Our amboats returned shot for shot with interest, and some made the neighborhood too hot to hold the rebels, however, made a determined attack of Fort Gray, and in no less than three several assaults they were repulsed in the most gallant and determined manner by Captain Brown, commanding the fort.

Immense singulater of rebels was made by our brave garrison of Fort Gray. The gunboats materially assisted the siege guns of the fort, and poured their broadsides into the rebel column repeatedly, making huge wind zows in their ranks. This engreened was only capabled in the graphics and their broadsides into the rebel column repeatedly, making huge wind zows in their ranks. This engagement was only equalled in its execution, and slaughter by the green battle at Malvern Hill, where the navy poured such raking volleys of grape and shell into the enemy retired, and up to twelve o'clock, on Sunday night, when my informant lett, everything was quiet.

Another attack was expected by Brigadier-General Wessells, and, to be untrammeled by all possible contingencies that might arise, he at once ordered all the non-combatants, women and children, to leave the town. The guards were doubled, the gams shotted and cast loose, while the gunboats lying off the town made similar preparations to shell the woods beyond Plymouth on the first signal made of a hostile approach. Captain Flueser remained above Forr Gray, as reliable intelligence was brought to him that the rebel rams from Kinston had really come out, and were expected to make an attack on his fleet. The casualties on cur side were very right. The officer above mentioned, a lieutenant of the 12th New York cavalry, and a naval officer, were killed, also some five or six privates of the cavalry and garrison at Fort Gray. A few wounded were brought to the General Hospital at Plymouth, and properly cared for.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY—QUICK WORK.—A man

HIGHWAY ROBBERY-QUICK WORK .- A man named Timothy Kane, from Cumberland. Md., arrived in the city last night by the Baltimore cars. He get into a cab and the driver was to take him to a lodging place. John Madden, who was realist the driver, got into the carriage as a passenge. When the chaise got to Thirteenth and Christian streets, a man who was on the box got down and asked Madden for his fare, and he paid it. Money was then demanded from Kane. He handed the man a ten cent note and said that he thought that would be sufficient, as he had gone but a short distance. More was demanded in such a rough manner, that Kane, who has been in this country but a short time, got frightened and jumped out of it. e cab. Madden then seized him by the coat and it.
