XXXVIIITH CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION: CLOSE OF TESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

SENATE.—Mr. Morrill, (Me.), from the Committee on Commerce, reported favorably on the bill to regulate the foreign coasting trade on the Northwestern frontier. bill to regulate the foreign coasing trade on the Northwestern frontier. Northwestern frontier. Nr. Collamer, (Vt.), from the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, reported back the House bill for the relief of postmasters who have been robbed by the confederate forces or guerillas, House bill for the relief of postmasters who have been robbed by the confederate forces or guerillas, and it was passed.

Mr. Collamer from the same committee, reported favorably on the House bill to establish a money order system, and the bill to establish a money order system, and the bill to secure the speedy transmission of the mails. He also introduced a bill relating to franked matter, which was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. On motion of Mr. Wilson, (Mass.), the Senate joint resolution to provide for the printing of the official reports of the operations of the armies of the United States was passed. It directs the Secretary of War to transmit to the Superintendent of Public Printing copies of all official reports, and of all telegrams and dispatches not heretofore published by order of either House of Congress, relating to the movements, engagements and operations generally of the armies of the United States which, in his judgment, the public interest may not require to be kept secret, commencing with the first day of December, 1860.

Mr. Morrill, from the Committee on Commerce, asked to be discharged from the further consideration of the bill which extends to the district courts the same jurisdiction over matters of contract or tort, arising upon steamboats er other vessels which is now possessed over seagoing vessels. He asked the reference of the bill to the Committee on the Judiciary, and it was so reterred.

Mr. Howe (Wis.) called up the bill to establish an assay office at Carson City, in Nevada, and at Some length in defence of Mr. Pollock, the superintendent of the Philadelphia Mint, who had written a letter in opposition to an amendment proposed by Mr. Nesmith, of Oregon, for establishing a mint at Dallas City instead of an assay office.

Mr. Nesmith bad formerly spoken in sharp ridicule or the superintendent's views on the subject. After some reply by Mr. Nesmith, the amendment for a branca mint was adopted, and the bill laid aside.

ment for a branch mint was adopted, and the bill laid aside.

The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of the bill to repeal the fugitive slave law.

Mr. Van Winkie (W. Va.) said that the remarks he would make, though not peculiarly applicable to the bill under consideration, would not be inappropriate. The burden of the war, in contributions of men and money, had been borne by the States North, yet they had escaped the ruin and devastation to which the Border States had been subjected. In the States nearest to the seat of war loyalty to the Union has a meaning which does not attach to it elsewhere. This remark was not intended to depreciate the sterling patriotism of the North, but to vindicate that of the Border States, by proving that the large majority of their people have remained constant under the most trying circumstances. For himself, he could not concede one jot or title to those who are in arms against us. But the day will come, in the pleasure of Providence, when every right-minded man will desire to take by the hand, in all cordiality and affection, those who have repented of the evil they sought to do unto us.

Mr. Van Winkle then proceeded to speak in dence, when every right-minded man will desire to take by the hand, in all cordiality and affection, those who have repented of the evil they sought to do unto us.

Mr. Van Winkle then proceeded to speak in condemnation of a class in the Northern and border States, who, while professing a horror of secession, and of love for the Union, are constantly denouncing those who are carrying on the war. Was it just, if errors had been committed, to accuse the Administration of unworthy motives? The Government may deserve rebuke, but need the rebuke be angry? He then proceeded to prove that West Virginia was legally and Constitutionally one of the United States, and controverted the ground taken by Mr. Davis of Kentucky, on this subject. He said the only question to be determined in order to establish the constitutionality of the erection of the State of West Virginia, within the jurisdiction of Virginia as one of the United States, was whether the Legislature which gave its consent to such erection, was the true Legislature of Virginia. He quoted Afficie fourth of the Constitution, which, according to Mr. Madison, permitted a new State to be erected within the jurisdiction of another State.

Mr. Van Winkle stated the circumstances that justified the reorganization of the Virginia State government, giving in detail a history of the secession movement which rendered it necessary. The loyal men of Virginia fully justified themselves in the eyes of mankind, and best maintained their State allegiance, when they adopted the only course by which their State could be saved to the Union. What might have been the consequences if the men of West Virginia had succumbed to the Richmond oligarchy? She had sent more than twenty thousand men to aid the Union cause. If the men had espoused the other cause, the confederate army, rejoicing in their additional strength, would have occupied the valley of the Onion including Western Pennsylvania, long before the first battle of Bull Run.

Mr. Van Winkle said he believed that the amendment t exercise the rights and privileges of citizenship in any State, nor could they obtain passports to foreign countries.

He demed that they could be made citizens by the act of Congress, or by the clause in the Declaration of Independence, which declared "all men are created equal," as our sires certainly did no intend to say that an unnaturalized Frenchman, sojourning in England should enjoy the same political rights as a native born.

Mr. Howard (Mich.) moved an amendment to the bill, providing that no person found in any territory, or the District of Columbia, shall be deemed to have been held in service, or be enslaved under the act of 1793, and that the fourth section of said act be repealed.

The further consideration of the bill was postponed, on motion of Mr. Conness (Cal.) to Wednesday next, at one o'clock.

Mr. Sherman (Ohio) reported the House bill to provide a national currency by the pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof, with amendments; the only important one being the striking out of the provision relative to taxation by States of the capital, circulation, and business of banking associations, and the substitution of the following amendments.

In lieu of all other taxes, every association shall In lieu of all other taxes, every association shall pay the United States Treasurer, in the months of January and July, a duty of one-half of one per cent. each half year, on and after January, 1864, upon the average amount of circulation; a duty of one-quarter of one per cent. each half year upon the average amount of deposits; a duty of one-quarter of one per cent. each half year upon the average amount of capital stock beyond the amount invested in United States bonds, and in case of default in the payment by any association, the duties may be collected as provided for the collection of United States duties of other corporations; or the Treasurer may reserve the amount out of the interest due on the bonds deposited.

The return of the average amount of notes, de-est due on the bonds deposited.

The return of the average amount of notes, de-The return of the average amount of notes, deposits, and stocks beyond that invested in bonds, is required to be made under oath, within ten days from the 1st of January and July, under penalty of $90 for each default, to be collected either from the interest on bonds, or, as collections are made from other corporations, at the option of the United States Treasurer; and the duties shall then be levied according to the amount of notes in circulation, and deposits and further capital, to be ascertained in such manner as the Treasurer may deem best. It is provided that this section shall not be con-strued to prevent the market value of the shares of such associations being included in the valuation of the personal property of any individual or corpo-ration in the assessment of taxes under Sate ration in the assessment of taxes under Sate authority at a rate no higher than is assessed on other capitals in the hands of citizens of such State, and provides that there shall be no exemption of the real estate of the association from State or municipal taxes. or municipal taxes.

Mr. Fessenden moved to take up the Army Apation bill, which was carried. Senate went into Executive session, and The House of REPRESENTATIVES.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Internal Tax bill.

At one o'clock the Committee had acted on all the general provisions of the bill, comprising for y-given sections.

Mr. Washburne (Ill.) offered an amendment providing that the stocks of inquors on hand be taxed 50 cents per gallon. He said he did not propose to discuss at length his proposition, because it had been treely debated when the subject was before the Committee of the Honse. It was merely carrying out the principle heretofore adopted by Congress. Under the law passed some time ago, foreign liquors were taxed, and were now passing a Mir. Stevens (Pa) said he hoped this subject would not have been brought up here again to agitate the House and the country. It had already been settled by this House and there should be no retroactive tax. There was an incongraity, it was radopted, with regard to the tax on foreign spirits, but a bill had, he believed been introduced in the Sena'e to reperl the law, which would, no doubt, prompt repeal, the Secretary of the Treasury had he hoped this crusade would cease, and this bill be promptly passed and not put in a shape which through the remainder of the session. We had lost $4,000 (Eto by the course hereofore pursued on this subject. Mr. Washburne (Ill.) offered an amendment providing that the stocks of liquors on hand be taxed 50 cents per gailon. He said he did not propose to discuss at length his proposition, because it had been freely debated when the subject was before the Committee of the Honse. It was merely carrying out the principle heretofore adopted by Congress. Under the law passed some time ago, foreign liquors were taxed, and were now passing a Mr. Stevens represent the honse and the country. It had already been settled by this House and there should be no retronctive tax. There was an incongruity, it was true, in the bill which had been previously but a bill had, he believed been introduced in the passed. He understood that, anticipating its prompt repeal, the Secretary of the Treasury had never riven any orders to enforce the collections. He hoped this crusade would cease, and this bill would keep it lingering between the two Honses through the remainder of the session. We had lost $4,000 000 by the course heretofore pursued on this subject.

Mr. Washburne remarked he did not wish to go into a principle and the did not wish to go into a principle and the did not wish to go into a principle when the subject into the service of the United States.

Mr. Stevens replied that his language was not personal

Mr. Wilson said that the gentleman had charged dishonesty on all who opposed the bill.

Mr. Mableisch (New York) would not say that the judgment of the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the militia were now not say that the judgment of the gentleman from Pennsylvania did not maintain a position better than any other State to give her a preference. Seme of her militia were not mustered into the service of the United States.

He offered as amendment that none of the money that the propose of the United States.

Mr. Stevens showed from the report of the Adjurtant General of Pennsylvania and the green as a preference. Seme of her militia were not mustered into the service of the United States.

Mr. Ganson replied that this language wa sure the gentleman from Pennsylvania that his sure the gentleman from Pennsylvania that his was not a factious opposition. He had, when the former bill passed, given notice that when a bill was reported he should introduce this amendment. He wanted to obtain a vote of this House upon this subject. The gentleman remarked that we had lost $4,000.000 by the former discussion and action of this House on the matter. He would inform that gentleman and the country that we lost $20,000,000 by not insisting upon the proposition of the gentleman from New York, Mr. Fernando Wood.

Mr. Stevens remarked he would do the gentleman and the country that we had been supplied to the stevens of the gentleman from New York, Mr. Fernando Wood.

ando Wood.

Mr. Stevens remarked he would do the gentleman the justice to acknowledge that he did give the notice he mentioned. He also recollected the gentleman had introduced a resolution instructing the committee on Ways and Means to bring in a bill providing for a tax on stocks on hand, which was not adopted. He believed that such a tax was a violation of the solemnly pledged faith of the country. The gentleman said we lost $20,000, country. The gentleman said we lost $20,000, country. The gentleman said we lost $20,000 to the rejection of this tax. The largest estimate he could make of the amount which could have been derived from it, if all had been collected, was $4,000,000.

mate he could make of the amount which could have been derived from it, if all had been collected, was $4,100,000.

Mr. James C. Allen (Ilt.) remarked he was opposed to the amendment of his colleague. In the discussion which heretofore took place on this subject, the country had been satisfied, except his colleague and two or three other gentlemen, of the impracticability of the measure. If this amendment was adopted, the principle involved would open up a discussion which would keep us here until the first of January.

Mr. Fernando Wood expressed his hope that Mr. Washburne's amendment would be adopted.

Mr. Broomail (Pa.) was opposed to this question of retaxing spirits when up before. He knew no reason why this was persisted in with regard to whiskey, excepting it was whiskey, and this he did not consider a sufficient reason. What he wanted was to offset Illinois against Illinois. He then sent up and had read by the Cierk the address of representative Lovejoy to the House laid before them during the previous discussion of the subject.

Mr. Morrill (Vt.) said he regarded this as a mis-

Mr. Morrill (Vt.) said he regarded this as a mis-Mir. Morrill (Vt.) said he regarded this as a mischievous proposition. It could not pass the Senate. It was very important that this bill should be promptly passed, in order that it may take effect before the first of May, so as to operate upon the income tax. There is a certain sort of symmetry in the bill as it stood. In order to continue that symmetry it would be necessary if the gentletry in the bill as it stood. In order to continue that symmetry it would be necessary, if the gentleman's principle was adopted, that the additional tax should be applied to spirits which should be manufactured herenfter.

Mr. Washburne's amendment was rejected by s

Mr. Fernando Wood offered the following as a

Mr. Fernando Wood offered the following as a new section:
And be it further enacted, That so much of the seventh section of the act of Congress of March 7th, 1864, to increase the internal revenue, &c., as levies a tax on spirits imported prior to March 7th, 1864, be and hereby is repealed, and that the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to refund to persons paying the same all moneys thus exacted on spirits, the original entry of which was made prior to said March 7th, 1864.

He said the law of March last levied a tax of forty cents per gallon on all imported liquor on hand, while notwithstanding his efforts to include domestic liquors, the latter were exempt There was no justice in this. Why should importers who have sent forward orders to Europe for goods predicated upon the tariff and tax bills existing at the time orders were given, be made to bear not only the additional tax imposed before their arrival, but indeed liable to have taxes imposed long after their arrival, while dealers in domestic liquors were to be exempt! You refuse to tax domestic spirits on hand, but do not extend the principle to foreign liquors on hand. It appears to me that importers have strong equities on their side.

At the suggestion of several gentlemen, Mr. Wood withdrew his amendment for the present, giving notice he would offer it at a future stage of the proceedings. notice he would offer it at a future stage of the proceedings.

During the proceedings on Mr. Washburne's ameridment, Mr. Grinnell moved to insert the words 'since great are the charms of cheap whiskey.'' [Langhter.] He also unsuccessfully moved to increase the tax from $1 to $1 50 per callon. Mr. Law (Ind.) offered an amendment, reducing

Mr. Law (Ind.) offered an amendment, reducing the daty on all beer, lager beer, ale, porter and other similar fermented liquors, from 31 to 50 cents per barrel. The tax proposed was too high, and he debated the question as one of morals, as well as revenue, for the use of such fermented liquors diminished the use of spiritnous liquors.

The amendment was rejected by a vote of 32 yeas against 74 nays.

Mr. Jas. O. Allen moved to reduce the tax to 60 cents, contending that this would yield larger revenue than at $1.

Mr. Morrill (Vt.), said when the duty was levied on these articles, the brewers throughout the country only demanded they should be placed on an equality with other spirits. We have raised the duty on spirits, and if that on beer, &c., was proportionately raised, we would now put on the latter a tax of $2 50 on each barrel.

Mr. Pike moved to make the tax $2 per barrel.

An amendment was added providing beer, ale, porter, and all other similar fermented liquors in bottles shall pay no lower rate of duty than the proportion of $1 a barrel. The committee have thus far acted upon seventy-five of the one hundred and seventy-three sections.

taken up as a special order.

Mr. Dawes (Mass.) declared his friendship for the measure, but believing this was not a favorable time for its consideration, he moved that it be postponed till the second Tuesday in December

Mr. Arnold (Ill.) recognized the gentleman as a carnest and sincere friend of the measure. Having consulted with its friends and conferred with the Illinois delegation, he was compelled, very reluctantly, not to oppose the motion of the gentleman from Massachusetts. He had hoped that this Congress would have authorized this great national improvement to be commenced as another tional improvement to be commenced as another link to hold the Union together.

Mr. Stuart (Ill.) also alluded to the fact that the delegation from that State had, in view of our present national affairs, come to the conclusion that it were better to postpone the bill till the next session.

The motion of Mr. Dawes was agreed to.

The bill reported on Saturday by Mr. Washburne, from the Committee to Encourage Emigraburne, from the Committee to Encourage Emigration, was passed.

Mr. Jenckes (R. I.), from the select committee on the subject, reported a bill to establish a unform system of bankruptcy. He moved that it be postpened till the the 4th of May. Objection being made to this motion, at his instance the bill was recommitted and ordered to be spirited and made to this motion, at his instance the bill was recommitted and ordered to be printed.

On motion of Mr. Stevens (Pa.), the House went into committee, Mr. Pomeroy (N. Y.) in the chair, on the bill to pay the expenses in calling out the militia of that State to repel the invasion.

Mr. Cox (Ohio) offered a substitute, with various amendments, so as to make it provide for Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, West Virginia and Kansas, in calling out militia and minute men to repel rebel raids, and appropriating $15,000,000.

Mr. Stevens said that all the States apart from Pennsylvania, similarly situated are been paid, and he hoped that the House wo do justice to those who advanced the money to Pennsylvania to defray the expenses. He had trusted that the claim would have received a fair, honest and candid consideration, but he was inclined to regard the substitute of Mr. Cox as intended to defeat the bill. Mr. Stevens caused a letter to be read from the Secretary of War, recommending an appropriation of $700,000 as justly due, and this was endorsed by President Lincoln.

Mr. Cox disavowed the imputation that he had offered his substitute to embarrass the bill. He did not desire to prejudice Pennsylvania's claim, and he hoped the gentleman would do him justice.

Mr. Stevens replied that with that explanation he withdrew the remark concerning the gentleman.

Mr. Stevens explained that the militia were un. Mr. Stevens explained that the militia were under Federal officers. It was dishonest to refuse to pay the claim. Many persons in Pennsylvania had not only been robued but bankrupted by the raid. Pennsylvania had been treated worse than any other State, after all her sacrifices.

Mr. Witson objected to the character of the gentleman s remarks. He did not recognize the right of that gentleman to talk in that way to any other member.

Mr. Dawes (Mass. ) did not think the bill should be opposed on the ground that the militia were not must-red into the service of the United States. It was most certain they were in the service. Mr. Miller (Pa.) said the imputations thrown upon the justice of the claims of that State were unworthy of the representative who made then Pennsylvania, the Keystone State, asked no Pennsylvania, the Keystone State, asked no defence as long as she had no opportunity of unfolding her own records. The people of that State have never been slow to do their duty, and have failed in no particular. She was prompt to respond to the call for troops in behalf of wrom this bill was intended. He did not believe, as had been asserted, that this government is on the verge of bankruptcy. The cebt of the country in the fature was the least of its troubles. By way of depreciating the service of Pennsylvania, it was said New York and New Jersey had hastened to protect the borders of Pennsylvania. After conceding all the patriotism and magnanimity due to those States, he claimed that they defended themselves when they defended Pennsylvania, for if Lee had penetrated to the heart of that State the seat of trouble would have been transferred to those States.
