XXXVIIITH CONGRESS.—FIRST SESSION. CLOSE OF SATURDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Highy (Cal.) from a special committee arpointed under the resolution of the House, of the 23d of March last, to investigate the charge made by the Hon. J. W. McClurg, a member of the House from the State of Missouri, against the Bon. F. P. Blarr, Jr., made a report exonerating Mr. Blair.

lair. I Mr. Higby moved that the report be laid upon Mr. Higby moved that the report be laid upon the table and be printed.
Mr. Rlair (Mo.) asked the unanimous consent of the House to make some remarks. He did not think this privilege should be denied, in view of the fact that he did not expect to remain in this House until the report and the cridance shall be proported. the report and the evidence shall be prissed.

Mr. Davis (Md.) said it was due that the gentleman should have an opportunity to be heard, and he expressed the hope that the privilege would be

ed. Blair, by unanimous consent being given, said Mr. Blair, by unanimous consent being given, said it had seen shown that when this forgery was committed upon him he was in the service of his country, in the trenches at Vicksburg, doing the best he could in his military capacity. When the charges were made through the newspapershe was again absent, and was relieved from the army. The reports circulated through the newspapers emanated from a man who is in the pay of the Treasury Department. The gentleman, or mentber rather (Mr. McClurg), had admitted that Bonner had made the publication, and, although the order produced by him had been pronounced a forgery, he had reiterated the charge with that gery, he had reiterated the charge with that reeness and vulgarity which characterize vul-

The Speaker replied that the rules required the gentleman to take his seat, and the Chair would enforce them.

Mr. Biair, after again apologising, said the member was not content to reassert the charge of his (Er. Blair) having violated the laws of the Government and thus prostituting the position he held, but he did it deliberately and with exaggerations in his efforts to criminale him on that occasion. He (Biair) was so indignant that he could not restrain his language, and for the use of which he how apologised to the Honse, but not to the member. These forged er altered orders had been photographed; he did not know whether at the Treasury Department or not. This was not the first time in the history of the worid that the fine arts had been prostituted to such base uses and ignoble purposes as disseminating counterfeits; but he could congratulate himself that the photographic art was applied for detecting prominent criminals and counterfeiters. This fact is apparent on visiting any police rogue's gallery. He intended to follow the suggestion, and enlarge on the idea, and republish the forged orders, adorned with pictures of the forgers, as specimens of their art. These dogs, Mr. Blair said, have been set on me by their masters. I have driven them back into their kennels, and I intend to hold their masters responsible. He (Blair) had asked for a special committee to examine into the abuses under the treasury trade regulations. It was said, as a reason for this movement, that the Secretary of the Treasury, but the treason why he now opposed the Secretary was that he had althorized the Mayor of Baltimore to declare that he was in favor of Chuse's appointment as Secretary of the Treasury, but the treason why he now opposed the Secretary was that he had authorized the Mayor of Baltimore to declare that he was in favor of letting the Southern States 'go in peace.'' That this was the Secretary in the Republican papers. Mr. Chase was opposed to the emiprorement of Fort Sunter, and opposed to the emiprorement of Fort House.

Mr. Blair replied that he thought he was in order, as an attack had been made upon him because of his opposition to frade regulations, and for this a public attack had been made on his personal character, just as it was in Fremont's case, when it was asserted that he had quarreled with Fremont because he would not give him a contract.

The Speaker again reminded the gentleman that be was not speaking in order.

Mr. Blair, resuming, said this attack was made for the same reason and same motive—viz, because

This called up Mr Julian, who said he had Mations had to do with contracts growing out of the war.

Mr. Stevens (Pa.) said the gentleman did him great injustice by a remark that he was the representative of Mr. Chase on this floor.

Mr. B'air replied that he was very sorry if he had done him injustice, and he resumed his remarks about "trade regulations."

Mr. Higby called him to order for discussing a subject not in the report of the select committee.

Mr. Mallory, (Ky.), said the gentleman from Missouri had the right to inquire into the motives which impelled the attack.

Nr. Higby said there was no proof that a Government official had forged the order, but that the friends of that gentlemen did it.

Mr. Higby said there was no proof that a Government official had forged the order, but that the friends of that gentlemen did it.

Mr. Blair replied that the gentleman was mistaken. He then proceeded to read from letters from the West, to show that contraband goods pass beyond our lines, and that not long ago five barrels of percussion caps found their way from Memphis to the enemy, and that the regulations are evil, and continually work evil. The power of the Secretary," one of the writers says, "is used for Presidential purposes, and the proceeds from the cultivation of abandoned rebel plantations are for sustaining Pomeroy's committee, and to carry on a war against the Administration which gave him his place." He read other letters to show the frauds connected with trade regulations, and one of them from New York charged that "the Secretary had given a permit to his son in-law, Senator Sprague, by which the latter will make two million of dollars. If there was any doubt of the fact, ask Mr. Wilham H. Aspinwall. Mr. Blair read a letter from Philadelphia, making comments thereon, to show that Jay Cooke had made immense sum- by his connection with Treasury operations. The Philadelphia Inquirer was principally owned by him, and he could well afford to establish a large number of newspapers in the interest of Secretary Chase. He did not think the friends of Chase want an investigation into trade regulations, and therefore he had volunteered to give them some facts. Whether the gentlemen here enter into an investigation or not, some future House would enter into it. Secretary Chase cannot escape, and he will be found guilty notwithstanding the present dodging of his friends. Mr. Blair said in conclusion, that according to the Secretary's own statement, Jay Cooke, in nine months, made four hundred and fitty thousand dollers with the present dodging of his friends. Mr. Blair said in conclusion, that according to the Secretary's own statement, Jay Cooke, in nine months, made four hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which, he repeated, enabled Jay Cooke to establish a great many newspapers in the interest of Chase, who had temporarily retreated because of the exposure of Pomeroy's secret circular, and who were now putting up Fremont, whose friends are going to hold a convention on the latter like the John Tyler convention, to help whip over the Union men, so that they may be enabled to say, 'if you nominate Lincoln, we will run an opposition candidate,'' the object being to cause the withdrawal of both Lincoln and Fremont and the nomination of Chase, who has not been in that ring.

nomination of Chase, who has not been in that ring.

Mr. McClurg (Mo) said the gentleman, who is no member, had no further occasion to attack the Secretary of the Treasury atlength, and to lug in other irrelevant matters. He had taken occasion to say that Bonner knew all the forgeries, which is not true, and in direct conflict with his testimony. I prefer to say what I have to say while the member is here; but if it is the wish of the House to go on with the tax bill, I will wait until some other occasion offers, believing that the member's character, if he have any, will not suffer by a few day's delay. I am sure mine will not.

[Crice from the Opposition side, "Go on! Go on now?]
Mr. Morrill moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union on the Internal Tax bill.
Mr. McClurg—I will yield to the wishes of the The Heuse then went into Committee of the Whole on the tax bill.

On various manufactures of iron on which a duty of 50 cents per ton was reported an amendation.

Mr. Cole (Cal.) moved to amend the bill by making the tax on wine three instead of five cents per gallon. He said the tax was excessive, as the value of the 'must' or new wine was only from tweive to fifteen cents per gallon.

Mr. Morrill said he was in favor of encouraging the production of native wines, but thought that as spirituous liquors had been heavily taxed, and in view of the fact that the tariff on foreign wines was to be largely increased, the articles could well bear even greater taxation. The tax on fors was raised to ten per cent. On custom-made arricles of wearing apparel, the tax was increased to five per cent.

On diamonds, emerales, pre ions stones and minutions thereof, and all other jewelry, a tax si on per cent instead of five was agreed to.
Mr. Merrill moved to increase the duty on cavendish, plug, twiss and manufactured tobacco, not cherwise provided for, to thirty cents per pound, which was agreed to.

Adopted.

Mr. Clymer offered a new section to the bill, appropriating lifty thousand dollars for the extension of the wises of the capitol, and providing for a sinking fund by imposing a tax of tendollars upon all private bills read in place.

Mr. Clymer said that although at the time the bill for the removal of the capital was introduced, he was inclined to favor it, yot circumstances have since rendered it evident that such a measure could not be accomplished. The cost of removing the capital, erecting new buildings, &c., would cost thise times as large a sum as was proposed to be apprepriated by the Councils of Philadelphit.

The present buildings are entirely too small for the accommodation of the various departments of the State Government. It is absolutely necessary to enlarge them to meet the increased wants of the Commonwealth, and the imposition of a tax often dollars upon private bills would rid the State of a large amount of unnecessary legislation, and at the same time provide a sinking fund for the purpose of making the improvements which are so greatly reeded.

Mr. Lowry moved to amend the section by
