the resolution.

Mr. Fessenden said that the committee, on consideration, thought that 50 per cent. increase was too great, and therefore had proposed to amend by reducing the increase to 33½ per cent. The committee were of the opinion that when the new tariff bill is passed it will not, on the average, put up the duties higher than 33½ per cent., and therefore it would be impolitic to make the temporary rate higher than that.

higher than that.

Mr. Sherman said he had disagreed with the committee in their recommendation. The proposed increase of 50 per cent, was not on the value of the goods but on the existing duties. Therefore the House rate would be but 15 per cent additional really, and the rate of 33% per cent. proposed by the committee but 10 per cent. additional, so that there was only a real difference of 5 per cent, between the two propositions. He thought that the additional iax of 50 per cent, was not too high. He was opposed to the exemption of foreign goods in bond or transitu from this increase on duties; instead of decreasing he would increase it to 100 per cent. He favored the bill as it passed the House.

Mr. Chandler opposed the amendment, and said the would rather vote to increase than to diminish the tax, believing that it was necessary in these war times.

Mr. Feesenden wished to wash his bendest the

Mr. Fessenden wished to wash his hands of the war times.

Mir, Fessenden wished to wash his hands of the policy of levying increased duties on goods already imported, and if the Senate wished to stop importations they had better increase the rate to 50 rateer than 33½ per cent., but unless that was the object we had butter keep the rates as nearly uniform as possible. We should not legislate as if our only object was to get money, but should regard the general weltare of the country at the same time. In the last sariffact we had excluded goods in warehouses and in transitu from its operation, and the business of the country had now been adjusted on that principle, and it seemed to him to be in the nature of a courtract. If we made this change it would take goods out of the country, and we would thus lose all the duties.

After remarks by Messrs. Clarke, Collamer, Johnson and Davis in support of the Senate amendments, and by Messrs. Chandler and Hale in support of the original House bill, the first amendment, decreasing the tariff to 33½ per cent. on the present duty, was adopted—yeas 19, nays 17.

The amendment exempting goods in bond and transitu was adopted—yeas 19, nays 18.

The resclution as amended was then reported to the Senate, and a eparate vote ordered, on motion of Mr. Sherman, on the amendment as adopted—yeas 19, nays 21.

The House joint resolution in its original form was then passed:

Be it Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, That until the end of sixty days from the passage of this resolution, fifty per cent of the Rates of duties and imposts now imposed by law on all goods, wares, merchandise and articles imported, shall be added to the present duties and imposts now charged on the importation of such articles. Provided, That printing paper, unsized, used for books and newspapers exclusively, shall be exempt from the operation of this resolution.

The Senate then adjourned.

We will drive out of circulation two hundred millions of State bank circulation, and supply its place with two hundred and fifty millions of National bank circulation, largely in excess of what is now issued. The financial credit can be obtained only by crushing out redundant note circulation. His amendment was adopted.

Mr. Arnold said that the passage of the amendment would largely increase the revenue. There was no class that could better pay the tax, as they issue three or four times the amount of their capital stock.

Fenton appealed to Mr. Farnsworth to withdraw his amendment, as the subject involved he wide scope of the merits of the two bank sys-ems. Let it come before the Power than the pro-Let it come before the House in a separate otherwise the passage of the bill will be de-

Mr. Griswold (N. Y.)-regretted that Mr. Farnsworth had introduced his amendment to suppress State banks, as it was calculated to retard the passage of the bill, for which the people were looking with intense interest. ith intense interest.

Mr. Spalding (Ohio) favored the amendment. Every man saw clearly we could not sustain a national currency and State bank currency at the same time. Mr. Farisworth's amendment to the section in relation to banks and banking was again read, as follows: That every person and associa ion or corporation issuing notes or other obligations: calculated or intended to circulate as money, shall pay one-fourth of one per cent. each month on such amount, or which, having been issued, remains in circulation.

This was agreed to by a vote of 52 yeas to 51 nays. On motion of Mr. Helmes the section was further mended so as to impose a tax upon the average amount of capital stock, omitting the words beyond the amount invested in United State

On motion of Mr. Yeaman (Ky.) the tax is not to be imposed on any bank in process of liquidation.
Mr. Hooper offered an amendment making the tx on incomes ten per cent. after one year. This, after debate, was rejected.

The committee then rose.

The Speaker laid before the House the following To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives: 1 have the honor to transmit herewith an address to the President of the United States, and through him to both Houses of Congress, on the condition of the people of East Tennessee, and asking their attention to the necessity of some action on the part of the Government for their relief, which address is presented by a committee of an organization called "The East Tennessee Relief Association." Deeply commiserating the condition of these most loyal people, I am unprepared to make any specific recommendation for their relief; the military is doing and will continue to do the best for them within its power.

Their address represents that the construction of a direct railroad communication between Knoxville and Cincinnat, by way of central Kentucky, would be of great consequence in the present emergency. It may be remembered that in my annual message of December, 1861, such railroad construction was recommended. I now add that, with the hearty concurrence of Congress, I would yet be pleased to construct the road, both for the rimportance.

(Signed) To the Honorable Senate and House of Representa-tives: 1-have the honor to transmit berewith an

The Speaker also laid before the House the following message from the President:

Causisins, Consul of the United States at Vienna, recommending the purchase by the United States of the invention of Dr. Auer, Superintendent of the Imperial paper mills and printing establishment of Austria, to make "paper and linen out of corn husks and deaves. Referred to the Agrimant Committee."

Mr. Chandler (Mich.) from the Committee on Commerce, reported adversely upon various bills, resolutions and memorials, among them the memory of the convention of commercial men of the improvement by Congress of the navigation of the Ohio river.

Mr. Fessenden, from the Committee on Finance, reported, with amendments, the House joint resolution to increase for sixty days the present duties from printing paper. The amendments reduce the increase on the present rates of duty to 33½ per centum, exempt goods in bond or in transitu, and strike out the clause exempting unsized paper used for books and newspapers from the operation of the resolution.

Mr. Fessenden said that the committee, on consideration, thought that 50 per cent. Increase was too great, and therefore had proposed to amend by reducing the increase to 33½ per cent. General Schenck has not applied to withdraw his resignation; but when General Grant was made Lieutenant-General, producing some change of commaniders, General Blair sought to be assigned to the command of a corps. This was made known to Generals Grant and Sherman, and assented to by them, and it e particular corps for him designated. This was all arranged and understood as no wremal withdrawal of General Blair's resignation, and revoking the order assigning him to the command of a corps, were not consummated at the War Department until last week, perhaps on the twenty-third of April, instant.

As a summary of the whole it may be stated that General Blair holds no military commission or appointment other than as herein stated; and that it is believed he is now acting as Major-General upon the assumed validity of the commission herein stated, and not otherwise. There are some letters, notes, telegrams, orders, entries, and perfans other documents, in connection with this subject, which it is believed would throw no additional light upon it, but which will be cheerfuly furnished if desired.

April 28th, 1864.
Mr. Schenck explained that he was elected to Congress while engaged in the military service, and he had considered for several months whether he would take his seat here or not. At last the time approached when it became necessary he should come to a decision. He related his c.n. versation with the Secretary of War and the President on the subject, and these gentlemen said the matter could be arranged so that he could return to the military service. He tendered his resignation on the fifth of December last, accompanying it with a request that he should be relieved from command. He did not now claim to be in any sense in the military service, his resignation having been formally tendered and accepted.
The President's message was, on motion of Mr. Dawes, referred to the Committee on Elections.
The House resumed the consideration of the amendments to the tax bill. Many were agreed to consideration of the amendments to the tax bill. Many were agreed to repeal the act of March, taxing Foreign liquors on hand.

Mr. Schenck made a few remarks, in addition to his former statement, to the effect that he drew his pay up to the 5th of December as a Major General, or to the time his resignation took effect, and did not begin to draw pay as a member of Congress until the 7th of December, when he took his seat. Mr. Dawson withdrew his objection to the introduction of the resolution.

Mr. F. Wood for the public good, renewed the objection. It was inopportune to offer it.

Mr. Schenck said, I call the member to order, I have the floor by consent of the House.

Mr. Wood—I objected to the introduction of the resolution and not to the remarks of the member. If he is not civil he will not be allowed to proceed.

The Speaker said Mr. Schenck had obtained the unanimous consent of the House to make a statement.

Mr. Washburne (Ill.) offered the following as a substitute: That all spirits of domestic production and held for sale on the 1st day of May, 1864, and upon which no tax shall have been paid, shall be subject to a duty of 50 cents per gallon, and all such spirits on hand and for sale on which a prior duty shall have been paid, a duty of 30 cents per gallon.
