

SABBATH READINGS.

BY THE REV. EDWARD C. JONES, A. M.
Notwithstanding in this rejoice not that the spirits are subject to the law of nature...

The disciples had returned from their errand of benevolence, and in terms of exultation told of the subjugation of evil spirits, as the pledge that their office was one of surpassing power through their participation of Him who had thus commissioned them to act.

When we consider the peculiar function of the priesthood of the gospel, we, of course, do not convey the idea that any Christian, by the charms of exorcism, can dispossess the devil from the occupancy of the heart or body of any mortal man.
