INTERMURAL INTERMENTS. We are not unfrequently reminded of the impropriety and impolicy of interments within the built-up portions of the city, by reading in the local columns of the newspapers accounts of the breaking up of old grave-yards, the turning of their silent in the beautiful rural cemeteries around the city, where green grass, waving trees, sweet flowers and chirping birds give quite as much grace and beauty to the scene as are afforded by the

"Storied urn or monumental bust" which adorns the graves of the sleepers.

GIGANTIC IRON-WORK.

When Vulcan's workmen, the Cyclops, fabricated the thunderbolts of Jove, they probably thought they were doing a mighty thing in iron-working. At least the poets of all times have alluded to those mythological workers in iron as having done jobs that human skill and strength could never accomplish. But did the thunder-bolters of Olympus ever make a rifled cannon to carry a missile four or five miles, as we Yankees have done? Or did they ever build a New Ironsides or a Monitor ?

Human enterprise and skill have been greatly stimulated, in the past three years. by the gigantic war in America, where a single nation, divided against itself, is carrying on a war of more tremendous proportions than any of the wars in which three or four or half a dozen European nations have ever been engaged. Especially have enterprise, ingenuity and skill been stimulated in the use of iron as a means of offense and defense. Huge guns, huge shot and shell, and huge iron-plates for ships have been constructed in a way to amaze the old fogy war-making powers of Europe. The demolition of Fort Sumter by shots from a distance never dreamed of by European artillerists, and the shelling of Charleston from a far greater distance, have made the English, French and other governments of Europe to wonder. Even the London Times, which likes to sneer at all that is done on the Union side, is constrained to say that "in the calibre of its ordnance Europe is now, as it ever has been, far behind America. At Pittsburgh, in Pennsylvania, a 50-ton gun has just been successfully cast for the United States' Government. This monster piece of ordnance, which is stated to be perfect in its casting, is to throw a solid 20-inch shot weighing 1,600 pounds."

The paper from which we quote this confession of European inferiority in one line of iron war machinery, contains an account of the rolling of the first of a lot of colossal plates for an iron fort at Cronstadt. The work was done for the Russian government by the Millwall Iron Company. Each of these plates or bars weighs six tons, is tongued and grooved, and is guaranteed to be perfect in its soundness throughout. We shall do bigger things than this in America, when we undertake to build iron forts. But in the meantime, Russia takes the lead in that line of iron-work, while we excel all others in big guns of great range, and in iron-elad ships.

tenants out of the graves, and the selling of the ground for building or other purposes. Too often these disinterments are managed in the coarsest and most repulsive manner, the bones of the departed being thrown pellmell out of their graves, and, unless there are surviving friends to care for them, they are huddled promiscuously into boxes and carted off to some cemetery where ground is cheaper. But, under any circumstances, this general turning out of the "people of the city of the dead" is painful, and no delicacy of management upon the part of those who have in their hands the care of the details of the removal, can redeem the operation from its harrowing accompaniments. Occasionally the dead are left in their graves when improvements are made. to be summarily removed at some more remote period by the spade of the cellar-digger, or to be disturbed by the pick of the laborer who is engaged in digging trenches for sewers, or for gas or water mains, and clowns "play at loggats" with bones that were deposited in the earth with pious care by sorrowing friends, who expected that the departed would be left to slumber in quiet until the final summons shall sound. Experience has shown that all the occupants of city grave-yards hold their narrow homes by very uncertain tenures. The march of improvement will not consent to be impeded by the city cemetery, and progress will overthrow grave-stones as well as other earthly things that stand in its way, and it will turn the bones of the "forefathers of the hamlet" out of their graves without compunction.

There is another consideration which is more important, practically, than any mere sentimental feelings in respect to the sanctity of the dead. It is claimed by the scientific, and generally admitted by all, that there are always poisonous exhalations which arise from a thickly-peopled cemctery. Our English ancestors were very chary of disturbing the plague-field in London, for fear of raising anew from the infected soil the terrible scourge that in 1665 made their metropolis a scene of terror and comparative desolation. We would do wisely by imitating the cautiousness fof the Londoners, not by fearing to open burial places a century after they have been closed up; but by putting a stop, either by legislation or by some other means, to intermural interments. The principal nations of antiquity required that all cemeteries should be located outside the city walls ; modern European communities observe the same rule, at the present time, and in the city of New York there are laws forbidding burials within a radius of several miles from the City Hall. Public decency, public safety, and the welfare of the city in regard to progress and improvement, demand that the same rule should be observed in Philadelphia. Let us have a law against burials in the city, and let us inter our dead, not in the heart of the noisy, 'dusty town, where sooner or later they must ! dusty town, where sooner or later they must "SALE OF VALUABLE FROM END AND be thrown out of their sleeping places; but BROWN STORE STORE NO. 216 ORSENTOR BTREET; HANDSOME RESIDENCES, GERMANTOWN tian Commission, we are happy to learn, has its plans laid, its men secured, its teams ready, and everything arranged far more perfectly than at the time of the Pennsylvania invasion and the bloody field of Gettysburg, to give instant relief where ver and whenever it may be needed.

And we are glad to learn also that a movement worthy of the cause is on foot to secure the means for this work upon a noble national scale. A subscription is proposed, with such assurances already made in advance, without solicitation, as to render it morally certain to succeed, with the expectation of its reaching half a million or more in the various cities of the North.

A meeting has been called for the purpose of bringing this matter tairly before the people this evening at the Church of the Epiphany. The em-inent and eloquent gentlemen announced as speakers at the meeting represent various denominations and different sections of the country. Rt. Rev. Bishop McIlvaine, of Ohio; Rev. Dr. Kirk, of Boston; E S. Tobey, Esq., a distinguished merchant, also of Boston; Rev. Mr. Durvea, of New York; Rev. Biskop Simpson and Rev. Dr. J. Wheaton Smith, of Philadelphia, most of whom have recently returned from work in the army under the auspices of the Commission, are to take part in the meeting.

Most heartily we commend this whole move-ment, and trust that our noble-hearted Philadel. phians will give it an impulse to-night that will not cease until the most sanguine expectations of the friends of the soldier shall be more than realized.

MUSICAL.

THE GRAND MUSICAL FESTIVAL, in aid of the Great Central Fair, will begin to-morrow evening at the Academy of Music, with Mr. W. H Fry s new grand opera of Notre Dame of Paris, the libretto by Mr. J. R. Fry, from Victor Hugo's celebrated novel. The rehear-als have proved most satisfactory, and with the splendid scenery and costumes, the huge chorus and orchestra, each numbering about one hundred, the opera will be the grandest stage spectacle ever witnessed in America. The leading artists are the best singers of English in the country, and from the excellence of their performance at the rehearsals, we predict for them a great success to-morrow evening. The next performance of the Festival will be on Thursday evening, when the magnificent oratorio of Judas Mac cabacus will be produced on a scale of equal grandenr with the opera. We remind our readers that the sale of tickets for single admissions to the grand opera is going on, and they may be obtained at the Academy and at Mr. J. E. Gould's, corner of Seventh and Ches tnut streets.

The price of tickets, with reserved seats, for the grand oratorios, is fixed at fifty cents to all parts f the house, except the amphitheatre, where it will be only twenty-five cents. At such prices, the Academy ought to be crowded to excess.

MESSES. CROSS AND JARVIS will give their ext classical concert in the Foyer of the Academy of Music on Friday next at 2 o' clock in the afternoon. This they are obliged to do because the building is engaged every evening for the Musical Festival. The programme is an excellent one.

GRAY'S PATENT MOLDED COLLARS

Have now been before the public for nearly a year. They are universally pronounced the neatest and best fitting collars extant.

The upper edge presents a perfect curve, free from the angles noticed in all other collars. The cravat causes no puckers on the inside of the turn-down collar-they are AS SMOOTH IN. SIDE AS OUTSIDE-and therefore perfectly free and easy to the neck. The Garotte Collar has a smooth and evenly a, ished edge on BOTH SIDES. These Collars ar- not simply flat pieces of paper cut in the form of a Collar, but are MOLDED AND SHAPED TO FIT THE NECK. They are made in "Novelty" (or turn-down style); in every half size from 12 to 17 inches and in "Eureka', (or Garotte,) from 13 to 17 inches; and packed in "solid sizes" in neat blue cartons, containing 100 each; also in smaller ones of 10 eachthe latter a very handy package for Travelers, Army and Navy Officers.
