PRESS CLUB LECTURES. Mr. Garrison on "National Guilt. Retri

bution, Redemption."

Mr. William Lloyd Garrison delivered a lecture on the subject given above, last evening, at the Academy of Music, under the auspices of the Press (Club. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Casper Souder, President of the Club. The speaker said:

While we are rejoicing at the overthrow of the refellion and the bright prospects that are new before us, let us look back at the iniquitous system that gave rise to the rebellion. Before the secession of the South there had never been a time that ste had not the reins of the Government in her own hand and the dictation of the national policy. Did she not say she would not remain with the North if she were not allowed a carte blanche to fix her terms upon, preferring to reign in hell rather than serve in heaven, and siming at universal dominion? What was left undone by the North to stimulate the augmentation of the slave system, and to conclude that they could have their own way in all things? How obsequiously they were courted and fattered whenever they chose to put foot on Northern soil. They were represented as high-toned and honorable men, who had been libeled and slandered by fanatics. He said, in the presence of God and of Andersonville, that they were just as true Christian and honorable gentlemen before the war as that event proved them to be. Abolitionists were held up as disturbers of the Peace. Why should not the claveholders of the South, in view of the different way in which they and the Abolitionists were treated, heve holders of the South, in view of the different way in which they and the Abolitionists were broad to fire upon the national flag with impunity. It was not the first time the flag had been insalted. James Buchanan on his knees asked permission of the South, even in the Fort Sumter, instead of sending down an army to compel obedieve a. (The speaker here went into a resum? of the first jime the flag had been in solved to sending down an army to compel obedieve a. (The speaker here went into a resum? of the first jime the flag had been in solve to Mr. William Lloyd Garrison delivered a lecture or do they remember the battles of vicksburg, Gettys burg, &c. &c. For more than twenty years he had been in favor of For more than twenty years he had been in havor abolishing capital punishment; but, if it does not han Jefferson Davis until he is dead, dead, dead, then i will be recreant to its trust. [Great applause.] But i it falls in its duty here, let the gallows be forever aboliabed. [Applause.] Where is Henry A Wise? Absolutely asking pardon of the tailor Andrew Johnson and saying that he is ready to become a radical Abolitionist!

and saying that he is ready to become a radical Abolitionis!

The South is reaping as she sowed, and it has been fulfilled in her days as in the days of old: "They shall be destroyed, for their idols have forsaken them." This is the work of the Lord of Hosts. And the North has also received her retribution, and the sound of lamentation is heard through all her borders, and the mourners go about the streets. Let us rejoice that out of the chaos of misery shall come freedom. "I will bring Isra-I again to his habitation, and his soul shall be astisfied upon Ephraim and Gilead."

The Presidential election in 1884 was the turning point in 'our nation's destiny. There never was an event which was so remarkable for appeals made to the conscience, honor; patriotism and virtue on the one hand, and appeals to the basest passions on the other. This was noticeable all over the country. The lines were fairly drawn between the moral and immoral. Mr. Lincoln's re-election derived its significance and importance from the character und position of the mighty mass which gave him their suffrages.

The Government was stable beyond all precedent. The Government was stable beyond all precedent, The Government was stable beyond all precedent, and the Administration of Lincoln had a moral sustainment never enjoyed by any other, not excepting that of Washington. As an Abolitionist I am fully vindicated by this grand national verdict. More than thirty years ago I said in milon with slaveholders, morally politically, or physically, and the people of the South rushed to their meetings and declared the Union must and shall be preserved, megning the old slave Union, and they so resolved that Should stand forever; but God, from Heaven, said. "Judgment will I send upon the land." Your covenant with death shall be annulled, and forthwith as a potter's vessel is broken in pieces the Union was sundered, and the North and South clashed together, and the old slave-holding Union went down norever.

Thank God we have liberty through the length and breadth of our land. I am fully vindicated by results as an Abolitionist. The national banner is washed of its stains of blood, and liberty is secured to every one beneath its folds. Victor Hugo, in 1819, said within a very few years America will repudiate slavery with horror. The light of the Nineteenth century is enough to destroy it. What—drive it from before Homer and adopt it at the hearth of Franklin? No! The United States must either renounce slavery or liberty. They will never renounce liberty. At that time the prediction seemed impossible. But the prediction has been fulfilled in God's own way and at his own appointed time. My vocation as an Abolitionist is ruined, and most happy am I to no more be obliged to enter into controversy with my fellowmen. Better to be always in a minority of one with God, and frowned upon by the powers that be, than to have the enter on a multi-tude crying, "it is the voice of a God."

I am congratulated on every hand at the wonderful change which has taken place in public sentiment. Six years ago no city, or town, or village, would have voted in favor of destroying slavery. Now there's nol frages.

The Government was stable beyond all precedent, and the Administration of Lincoln had a moral sus-mark carried with it a truth which speaks for itself. The speaker then related some other instances of personal experience, showing the change of sentimen which has occurred in our land within a very few which has occurred in our land within a very few years.

In discussing the question of redemption he urged the policy in making haste slowly in the matter of reconstruction. He insisted that the South, although silenced, was not convinced, that the old spirit of hattred to freedom and free institutions still actuates the people, and that with the copperhead minority of the North to co-operate with them, the Southern States and people would be troublesome and dangerous enemies of the republic if admitted too suddenly to the erjoyment of the political rights they had forfeited. He desired that they should undergo sufficient probation ito secure their good behavior when admitted.
