CITY BULLETIN.

A GREAT PHILADELPHIA BREWERY.-The thousands of Philadelphians, as well as those throughout the country, who are in the habit of indulging their two or three glasses of ale daily, seldom direct a thought to the character of the article they drink, or take the trouble to investigate the process by which it is manufactured. A brief desby which it is manufactured. A piter description may not be, therefore, uninteresting to the reader and the public generally. In the extensive brewery of Messrs. Massey, Collins & Co., at the northwest corner of Tenth and Filbert streets, the manufacture of malt liquors is carried on to an enormous extent. These gentlemen have the largest establishment in the country.

The original building occupies a space of ground one hundred and fifty feet square, making six hundred feet front of solid buildings, seven stories in height, with vaults underlying the whole, twenty feet in depth. These are used for fermenting and racking the ale or beer, and are sufficiently capacious for storing ten thousand barrels This brewery was originally erected by the farmers of Chester and Delaware counties, and was afterwards purchased from them by the "Brewers' Association of Philadelphia." which Association subsequently disposed of the establishment to a gentleman named M. L. Dawson, a member of their body, and whose ancestors had been prominent brewers for a period of eighty years. Poultney & Massey, the predecessors of the present firm, in the year 1855 made great additions and enlargements to the buildings, and they again have been increased by the

The brewing apparatus, which is of the The brewing apparatus, which is of the latest and most approved description, has been put up within a few years past. These comprise large mashing tubs, capable of brewing nine hundred bushels of malt per day; boiling coppers, heated by means of steam pipes; large coolers, and refrigerators, and fermenting tuns, the capacity of the latter being forty-five thousand gallons. Attached to the brewery are malt beyond Attached to the brewery are malt houses, which are designed for the malting of one hundred thousand bushels of barley.

In addition to these vast arrangements, the present firm Messrs. Massey, Collins & Co., are now constructing another building, directly connecting with the original, on the west side, one hundred and fifty feet in length by ninety feet wide, and eight stories in height. Underneath this entire building are double vaults or cellars 25 feet in depth, surpassing in magnitude and depth any In addition to these vast arrangements surpassing in magnitude and depth any similar vaults in the United States. They are substantially arched with massive iron girders and brick walls, with equally solid flues extending from the bottom to the top of the building, The eight stories of this new apartment are to be used for the of this new apartment are to be used for the storage and malting of barley. Attached to them are six capacious kilns for drying pure poses, in which no wood is used, and they are perfectly fire proof. These arrangements for malting and drying are equal to any in this country, and are unexcelled by any in Europe. Elevators and conveyors are conveniently situated for the rapid disposal of the barley throughout the entire building the barley throughout the entire building, making it one of the most substantial and malt are converted from its original condi-tion by these men into Ales of different varieties and grades, Porter and Brown

This establishment was instituted over This establishment was instituted over ninety years ago, by William Dawson, Esq., and continued for years by Mr. M. L. Dawson, one of our most prominent and philanthropic citizens. The present firm, who have enlarged their sphere of eperations so extensively, are celebrated for the skill and cleanliness with which they manufacture their Pale and Amber Ales, Porter for draught and bottling, Brown Stout, XX Ale, &c., which find ready sale in the markets of our inland cities, and on our see coast. of our inland cities, and on our sea coast, from Maine to Louisiana, the West Indies and South America. Their capital invested is $1,500,000, and the annual proceeds exceed a million of dollars.

Preparatory to the process of brewing, the barley is converted into malt. This comprises steeping, couching, flooring, and kiln-drying. Great care has to be taken, and no expense is spared, to secure the best grain from Pennsylvania and edicining grain from Pennsylvania and adjoining States. The grain is first steeped in water contained in wooden or stone cisterns, which must be frequently drawn off and a which must be frequently drawn of and a fresh quantity supplied, in order throughly to cleanse the grain. When sufficiently saturated to admit of its being crushed between the thumb and finger, it is then drained of the water, and spread over a cement floor to the depth of six or eight inches, and left, with occasional turning, until it approach. until it sprouts. In this process of germination a peculiar azotized substance is evolved, which is called by chemists diastase, which acts as a powerful agent in converting starch into dextrine, and ultimately in o saccharine. The maltster continues to turn the barley at intervals, so as to produce a uniform growth upon the floors.

When the barley has sufficiently sprouted.

a stage determined by the sweet taste and the chalky appearance of the inside of the grain, it is dried rapidly, in order to retain the starchy matter, which, in a long growth of the sprouts and roots, would be wasted. This drying is done in kilns. Here the heat destroys the germ of the grain, expels the moisture, and converts it into a sweet and friable grain called malt. It is then passed through a cylindrical sieve, separating it from all stones, beans, straw, &c., and is subsequently crushed by rollers. When the brewing is commenced, the ground malt is conducted into a large vat, infused in heated water, and thoroughly mixed by a machine adapted for the purpose. There a machine adapted for the purpose. There it remains at rest until the starch is converted into sugar, and then drained into boiling coppers, additional water being sprinkled on the grain until the saccharine is extracted, which is ascertained by an in-strument called the Saccharometer.

In these boiling coppers the clear extract, or wort, is boiled with hops, for the purpose of imparting to it an aromatic, bitter flavor, and the property of keeping without injury. This accomplished, it is drained into shallow vessels, and cooled by an apparatus called a refrigerator, to a temperature at which the brewer wishes fermentation to commence. Thence it is conducted into a vat and mixed with yeast of a previous brewing, where the fermentation is carried on. This process continues from three to five days, during which the temperature of the fermenting body rises, and a rapid disengagement of carbonic acid takes place. To prevent the creation of too high a temperature, which would cause acidity of the worts, it is racked off from the fermenting worts, it is racked off from the fermenting vats into puncheons of one hundred and twenty to one hundred and fifty gallons capacity, where it purges itself of its yeast. The fermentation being now completed, and the ale or porter perfectly clear, the sediment or yeast which remains settles at the bottom. It is then racked off from the puncheons into casks of convenient size for use, or stored in large cedar vats for future conor stored in large cedar vats for future consumption. In this condition it is used as a beverage to an almost unlimited extent.

How an Arkansas Man Lost His Money.—A man named Waddell, from Arkansas, appeared at the Detective Office, yesterday, and complained that he had been swindled by a sharper. He was stopping at the Girard House, and on Tuesday even-ing was approached by a gentlemanly looking individual, who remarked, "I think I know you; where do you come from?" The reply was, "From Memphis," "Oh," said the other, "I used to live in Memphis! I thought I had seen you somewhere What thought I had seen you somewhere. What are you on here for?" The Arkansas man responded that he had come East to sell twenty thousand acres of land, whereupon his newly made acquaintance at once offered to to take fifteen thousand acres, if the price was not too high. Mr. Waddell said that he had promised ten thousand acres to a man in New York, and only had ten thousand acres to dispose of. The man promised to call again at eight o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour he was on hand, and the remainder of the experience of Mr. Waddell may be told in his own language, as he related it to Detective Brown. He said: lated it to Detective Brown. He said:
"He acted in a very gentlemanly manner, we got into a Chestnut street car and he paid my fare. Heasked me if I had plenty of money or if I wanted to borrow any. I told him I had enough to last me awhile in the east. We got out of the car and went to a place I believe they calt the Exchange. He said he had a bill to pay and went up stairs. He soon came back and said that he only had a $500 bill and couldn't get it changad until the bank couldn't get it changad until the bank opened. He asked me to change it. I said I only had $20 in greenbacks. 'Is that all' said he. I then thought of $60 in gold which I had, and gave it all to him. He went up that's and days it the public between the stairs and days it. stairs, and darn it I thought then I had lost my meney. I ran up stairs but couldn't find the man." "Didn't you know of these was the reply, "I have read about them in the newspapers, but darn it I thought I was too smart to be fooled in that way." The matter was then left in the hands of the detectives and it is berely possible that the tectives, and it is barely possible that the sharper may be arrested.

FRANKLIN INSTITUTE.—The regular monthly meeting of the Franklin Institute was held, as usual, last evening, in the lec-ture room of the building. After the usual preliminary business, officers were nominated for the ensuing year. The paper announced for the evening, by Professor Fairman Rogers, on the magnetism of iron ships and the means employed to correct their compasses, was then read. In this paper the causes of deviation in the compass needle, resulting from the various magnetic relations of ships, were fully discussed, and the mathematical expression by which their various effects could be combined and calculated, were developed and explained. nated for the ensuing year. The paper explained.

The modes of correction applied abroad and in this country were then described and their efficiency discussed. The report of the resident Secretary, on new inventions and discoveries, was then read, including among discoveries, was then read, including among other interesting matter, a description of the new magnesium lamp, manufactured by the American Magnesium Co., of Boston, which has been lately attracting the attention of our citizens by its brilliant displays from the front of the Chestnutstreet Theatre. The lamp was shown in operation, and its light compared with a powerful lime light, by actual measurement, when it was found that the balance was decidedly in favor of the magnesium light. After several interesting experiments with colored lights and resting experiments with colored lights and shadows, the meeting adjourned. SHOOTING CASE IN THE THIRD WARD, A man named Samuel Holt was shot last night about ten o'clock at Front and Catharine streets. It seems that Holt and four or five others had been out on a spree. FIRE.—This morning shortly before three o'clock a fire occurred in a three-storied brick building on Hamilton street, above Twelfth, belonging to the estate of T. B. McCormick, deceased, and occupied by several persons for manufacturing purposes. The principal occupant is Daniel Goodman, manufacturer of cotton laps. He had twenty bags of action covered in had twenty bags of cotton stored in an arched alley-way leading to the yard of the premises. The flames originated among this cotton and it was all burned. The fire struck a stairway and also worked through some windows into the second and third ALLEGED SHOP LIFTERS.-Before Alderman Toland, yesterday afternoon, a Ger-man named Rudolph Doneski, alias Dubosq, lias Fuller; Elizabeth Johnson, alias Mrs Campbell; Elizabeth Weaver, who says that she is a sister of Mrs. Cambell, and Jacob Lassar were charged with shoplifting. It seems that the three first-named defendents entered an importing house on Chestnut street on Tuesday. Doneski represented himself as from Richmond while he was looking at goods the women, it is alleged, concealed three pieces of fine silk valued at $600, under their came here to make purchases, e he was looking at goods loaks. The goods were soon missed and the accused were discovered in a Chestnut street car yesterday and were arrested by Officer Dailey. The stolen property was not recovered and is supposed to have been removed by Lassar, who left the home of the defendants on Tuesday and did not return until yesierday, when he was taken into custody. The prisoners were held for a further hearing on the 26th, and parties who have been robbed in a similar manner would do well to be present.

RAILRAOD COLLISION .- Every morning train, consisting of a locomotive and tender and two passenger cars, is run on the Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad, from Holmesburg to this city. This morn-ing, as this train was crossing the Reading Railroad, an engine on the latter was backe into it. Both engines were badly damaged. The tender attached to the Holmesburg train was knocked from the track and was upset. The tender of the Reading engine was forced under the first passenger car throwing the truck from beneath it. Both passenger cars were filled with people, but nobody was injured. Had eitner engine been running at full speed a frightful loss of life would undoubtedly have been the BABY DESERTION.-At Wharton and Hamilton streets, yesterday afternoon, a woman asked two little girls to hold her baby for a few minutes, and gave them ten cents. The infant was taken by the chil dren, but the woman did not return for it. The deserted one is a female child, about three months old, and was very nicely clad.

AUCTION NOTICE.-We would call the attention of buyers to the sale of fine wines, brandy, gin, whisky, and high grade Havana cigars, to be sold by Powell & West, auctioneers, at their auction store, No. 28 South Front street, to-morrow (Friday) morning, at 11 o'clock.

LARCENY.-A lad named Philip Russell was committed yesterday by Alderman Massey to answer the charge of larceny. It is alleged that he entered a coal office in the neighborhood of Twelfth and Willow streets and carried off a tin box containing a lot of valuable papers.

STEREOSCOPIC EXHIBITION.—This evening at the Reformed Presbyterian Church, Seventeenth street, above Race, a series of beautiful Stereoscopic views of Scriptural, Historical, and other views will be given, as will be seen by the advertisement.

QUARTER SESSIONS—Judge Allison.—
Robert Porter, convicted on three bills, charging him with larceny, by watching at Jay Cooke's office and stealing bonds from ladies, was yesterday sentenced to seven years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

This morning John Rousel was convicted of a charge of stealing a lot of coin belonging to Mr. Perry, U. S. Consul at Tunis. It will be recollected that the robbery took place at the Continental Hotel, during the
