Borne on the evening wind across the crimson twilight, O'er land and sea they rise and fall, O Bells of Lynn!

The following important petition has been presented to Congress: To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assem-bled:—The undersigned, appointed to represent the Yearly Meetings of the Religious Society of Friends, composed of the members of said society, residing in the States of New York, Vermont, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Minnesota Wisconsin and Michigan, having met, in the City of Baltimore, to consider the present condition of the recently liberated slaves in our country, believe it to be our duty respectfully to address this memorial

It is, as a religious body, under a solemn sense of our responsibility to God and duty to our fellow men, and not in any sense as political partisans, that we address you. We feel that it is cause for reverent gratitude that the terrible and devastating civil war, which has prevailed in our beloved country, has been brought to a close; that the authority of our excellent Government has been preserved, and its blessings continued to us; and that the system of slavery has been abolished.

Whilst rejoicing at these results, it is our earnest desire that, as a nation, we may not forget the lessons of the past; but that all the actions of our Government, more especially those which bear upon the poor or the defenceless, may be conceived and executed with especial reference to the command of ourSaviour, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."—
(Matthew vii. 12.) The faithful observance in the past, of this injunction, which is binding upon all Christians, would have saved the lives of multitudes of our fellow citizens, and millions of treasure. Its faithful observance in the future will not only heal existing differences, but insure the happiness of our citizens and the honor and dignity of the Nation: for "righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."-(Proverbs xiv. 34.)

We are induced to express this desire from facts respecting the condition and treatment of many of the Freedmen, various parts of our country, which justify the belief that, under the name of freemen they are in some respects worse off than in slavery. There were some than in slavery. There were some important alleviations to the evils of that condition. They, like other branches of the human family, are creatures of habit; and under that system were, in a great measure. elieved from care for the future, and became, like children, dependent upon others, and deficient in those habits of industry and economy which are necessary to provide against the vicissitudes of civilized life. Under their new condition they are thrown upon their own resources, with none persenally interested in their welfare or in that of their children. Without property, or right to occupy even the rude "quarters" in which they formerly lived-ignorant and improvident-surrounded by hostile law and unjust prejudice—many must perish, unless sufficient provision be promptly made for their protection and relief. In expressing this belief, we have no doubt that an impartial history of the race, both in this and other countries, will show that, with the advantages of education, and opportunity to practise the arts of civilization they are abundantly able, not only to support themselves, but to contribute their full proportion to the general welfare and prosperity of the nation. In Maryland, where emancipation was effected by statute law some time before the President's Proclamation, about forty schools were established by the "Maryland Association for the Moral and Intellectual Improvement of the Colored People" of that State. Of these about one-fourth have been within a few months, broken up; meeting and school houses have been burned, and teachers assaulted and driven away. the States recently in rebellion, they are subject to wrongs and outrages, from which they have no redress under existing laws. slavery. Your memorialists therefore submit, that, as the Government, "for its own purposes," changed their condition and deprived them of the care incident to it and upon which they depended, it has become bound, by every consideration of justice and honor, to assume their guardianship and to prevent them from suffering by th change. We are glad to see the subject so forcibly urged upon Congress by both the President and Secretary of War. In the opinion of your memorialists this sol-emn duty will not be accomplished by the mere adoption of the late amendment to the Constitution, which provides for the abolition of slavery. Much of the real and personal property in the parts of the country in which these "wards" of the Government live, is, by reason of the rebellion, subject to forfeiture; and the lives of many persons to the penalties of treason. And if it be desirable to restore this property to those who have incurred its forfeiture its forfeiture, and to proclaim a general amnesty on their behalf, it is not less desirable to fulfil the obligations of the

their slaves, and whose unrequited toil ac-cumulated much of that property. If it be a self evident truth—of which we have no doubt-that the just powers of the Government are derived from the consent of the governed, in order to secure them the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, it must be equally evident that any system of laws under which the rights of a large portion of the people are disre-garded, is inconsistent with that republican form of government which Congress is bound to guarantee to every State. the rule of Christian action above referred to, all these rights would be cheerfully ac corded, so far as we should desire them for ourselves; and whilst the elective franchise should be regulated by the sound discretion | On No. 122 V

Government towards the people who were of a majority of the people concerned, we believe that all political distinctions on account of color are not only contrary to this rule, but subversive of the great principles which lie at the foundation of our government. Under the same rule, a course of justice and kindness will be pursued towards them, and full opportunity will be given, and every assistance afforded, by the dissemination of education and intelligence to enable them to rise from the state of ignorance and degradation in which slavery

In the past this nation has enjoyed the bounties and mercies of the Almighty. These have often been publicly acknow-ledged by the highest officers of the govern-ment. We are still the recipients of His favor, and expectants of Hismercy, both now and in the great hereafter. We are assured, in solemn language, that what measure we mete will be measured to us—(Mark iv. 24.) How then can we ask or expect His mercy if we refuse to accord justice to our fellow men, who are children of the same Almighty parent, and alike the objects of His love and mercy!

It is with diffidence that we venture to urge this subject before Congress; yet we cannot disregard our own duty in this respect. We doubt not that is the desire Congress to do its whole duty on behalf of our country, in order to merit the approba-tion of our common Father, who holds the universe as in the hollow of His hand, and who can bless or blight our endeavors, and there is none to call in question or arres

His judgments! It is our prayer in behalf of all the mem bers of Government, that they may be endued, by our Heavenly Father, with wisdom and strength to perform, with fearless reliance upon conscious rectitude, the great duties which devolve upon them. BENJAMIN TATEAM

Glanders in Horses.

Dr. Robert McClure, V. S., delivered a lecture on Tuesday evening at the Veterinary College. His subject was "Glanders in Horses." He said that glanders is a disease dating from the time of Xenophon, or 400 years before Christ, and we are assured by Hippocrates (ruler of the Horse) that confirmed glanders was incurable, and that it was known by the name Proflucium Atticum. Veterinarians recognize two varieties of Equinia in the horse, viz: Equinia mitis contracted from horses having grease-Paronychia Equi-Equinia Glandulosa, a dangerous disease and readily communi-cated to man. Glanders is unknown at the tropics and at the poles and is not seen where struma is unknown. It is a domestic disease. The assignable causes are many; among which may be enumerated starvation, filth, debilitating diseases asstrangles, catarrh, lung-fever, or indeed any cause that debilitates the system, resulting in an altered condition of the blood—that condition being a matter of dispute amongst pathalogists for the last century; one party contending that it was a blood poison and another a ferment, but it has been decided that the latter condition is the case, and has been proved by the recent experiments of Prof. Giavanni Pell of Milan, upon dogs by first producing Zymotic disease in 70 days and neutralizing the ferment by the adminstration of an alkaline sulphite, arresting the process of fermentation upon the principle of adding a preparation of lime to a barrel of cider to arrest the vinous fermentation. These ments of Professor Polli enable the veterinary surgeon to extend his usefulness, and the domestic physician to snatch many useful life from an untimely grave. How many brave men have stood the storm of battle—been wounded in the late war—ad mitted to the hospital, with perhaps shattered bone amputation is performed the case does well for a few days. The kind hearted surgeon soon sees a change; appetite gone, the rigor supervenes, till it is too plainly seen that the pus has been absorbe rom the stump, producing a ferment in the blood, with death soon to follow. The discovery of the distinguished Italian Professor, in the hands of the surgeon, changed the scene from death to that of life So, likewise, with the veterinary surgeon, en abled to preserve the life of a useful animal to its owners, thus materially adding to the prosperity, happiness and wealth of this great and prosperous people. Glanders are recognized by ulceration of the lining membrane of the nose;—the formation of pustules and commonly situated in scptum nasi. These pustular eruptions soon ulcerate and discharge pus of a sticky, greenish color, rapidly drying up when spread over the nostrils and sinking in water, owing, as is supposed, to too much albumen and no oil or pus-cells. There is one phenomenon never absent in this disease, and that is the enlarged lymphatic gland under the jaw: hence the com ders. The lecturer stated that there were many wrong ideas entertained not only in regard to the contagious nature of the dis ase, but also in regard to its incurability and even fatality. The glanders is no more contagious than the discharge from the nose of a horse with catarrh, as the pus of catarrh, if introduced into the circulation, will produce glanders, thence catarrh often terminates in glanders, because of this absorption. This is readily understood when it is said the "case is running, or bordering on glanders." Horses with glanders will live and work for years; which has caused dissatisfaction with local laws prohibiting the use of glandered horses. The curability of this disease depends on whether the animal is in good condition when attacked and free from tubercles of the lungs. These being favorable, a cure in any case car readily be effected. Fresh specimens of sections, taken from an animal, placed at the disposal of the lecturer, for the purpose of illustrating the lecture, were exhibited to the audience, showing the morbid change that had taken place within the lungs, throat and membrane of the nose. At the close of the lec-ture, the Doctor showed the manner of generating nascent hydrogen, for the pose of detecting the presence of the alka-line sulphate in the secretions of animals under its effects, for the purpose of cure of glanders. WRIGHT'S COUKING FLAVORS.
