The Mayor and the Sunday Liquor Within a few weeks a number of clergy-men addressed Mayor Henry, urging him to enforce the law against the sale of intoxi-cating liquors on the Sabbath. In answer the Mayor recites the various acts of Assembly touching this subject, ang states that according to his construction of the law he has no such power as the petition suggests. There are but three statutes relating to the Sabbath. The first is that of 1705, but the provisions of this act do not permit the Mayor or the policemen to exercise the authority therein conferred upon constables. The second statute is that of April 22, 1794, which enacts that if any person shall per-form any worldly employment or business on the Lord's day, works of necessity and charity only excepted, and be convicted, such person shall for every offence pay four dollars, to be levied by distress, and in case of refusal or neglect to pay, or goods cannot be found on which to levy, the party shall be imprisoned six days in the house of correction; provided that the prosecution shall commence within seventy-two hours after the offence is committed.

The serving of all legal process on Sunday, except in cases of treason, felony or breach of peace, is forbidden by statute. The violation of the Sunday law is a misdemeanor, but unless accompanied by noise or disorder it is not an actual breach of the peace. Such is the language of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in the decision of a case arising under this law. The remedy for its infraction is by complaint within seventy-two hours thereafter, before a justice of the peace, who, upon due evidence, may impose a fine of four dollars upon the offender; but only one penalty of four dollars can be incurred by any one offender for all the acts, however numerous, performed during any Sunday in the exercise

The third statute is the act of 26th of February, 1855, which makes it unlawful for any person to sell, trade or barter in any spirituous or malt liquors, wine or cider. on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday; or for the keeper or keepers of any hotel, inn, tavern, ale-house, beer-house, or other public house or place, knowingly to allow or permit any spirituous or malt liquors, wine or cider, to be drank on or within the premises or house occupied or kept by such keeper or keepers, his, her or their agents or servants, on the first day of the week, and imposes a penalty of fifty dollars.

The third section enacts that— "In addition to the civil penalties imposed by the last preceding section, for a violation of the provisions of the first section of this act, every person who shall vio-late the provisions of that section shall be taken and deemed to have committed a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof in any criminal court in this Commonwealth, be fined in any sum not less than ten, nor more than one hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of not less than ten, nor more than sixty days, at the discretion of the court." The Mayor of Philadelphia having no jurisdiction in civil suits, can entertain no prosecution under any of these statutes for the penalties thereby imposed; but he may, by act of the 28th of March, 1860, upon affidavit before him, issue warrants for the arrest of parties selling liquor on Sunday, and upon satisfactory evidence, bind them over for trial before a criminal court, and with the return of the transcript from his docket, his official duty in these cases ends. The Mayor, therefore, thinks that it is apparent that there is no power vested in him or in any magistrate to close up or prevent access to a tayern or other drinking place on Sunday. And that upon such day no policeman can lawfully be sent to visit these resorts, or to arrest persons committing misdemeanors by setting at naught the restrictions of the law.
