

ADVICE TO THE WOMEN OF THE SOUTH.

Letter from a United States Officer to his Southern Sister.

The following letter was written last summer by a distinguished officer of the United States Army to a sister residing in the South...

Richmond, Va., June 14th, 1865. My Dear Sister, I have just read a letter of yours to me...

I know, my dear sister, that your letter was not intended for my eye, although you mention my name in it...

I am sorry to hear that the returning soldiers hate the "Yankees" as much as ever, and if you will take the advice of one who had some influence with you in former and happier days...

I believed at the commencement of this war, and believe still, that an original abolitionist was either a lunatic or a scoundrel, but I am not an abolitionist now only because there is no slavery to be abolished.

If the soldiers whom you abuse so roundly were withdrawn from your presence, you would be left in a state of anarchy and confusion which I dread to think of when I reflect that my mother and sisters would be subjected to all its horrors...

the uniforms of a once glorious government, pray all the harder that that government may be once more restored in all its integrity...

I do not expect, my dear—do convince you by my argument. Time and reflection and aid of experience are the only things which will do that...

Years hence, when you and I are in our graves and perhaps forgotten, posterity will look with wonder upon a happy and prosperous people going to work to murder each other for such a foolish reason...

I hope you will write to me, which you have not heretofore done, and spell "rebel" with one b, or rather do not spell it at all. I have seen so many of them, and under such disagreeable circumstances...

With love to all at home, I am Your affectionate Brother. Greeley on Garrison.

Mr. William Lloyd Garrison announces that The Liberator newspaper, edited by him for thirty-five years, will no longer be published. It is a singular and encouraging fact that this journal, never peculiarly prosperous...

It is, perhaps, too early to decide how much we owe to what has been rather ungenerally termed Mr. Garrison's plan of rigid adherence to a rather narrow path. People have pettishly called him a man of one idea, and so far as his life has had one dominating and incessant purpose...

It is interesting to us to find that Mr. Garrison believes the special task which he has early assigned to himself as good as accomplished. There may and must be other and new forms of wrong; but Mr. Garrison believes this special task of slavery to exist no longer...
