HENATE—Mr. Wade presented a memorial, numerously signed, in favor of a protective tariff, which was referred to the Finance Committee. Finance Committee.

Mr. Sumner presented the petition of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of Missouri, in favor of universal suffrage.
Referred to the Special Committee on Reconstruction.

Mr. Sherman offered the following, and explained that the person named in the resolution had been appointed upon the recommendation of a member of the House from Kenucky, in preference to the son of Gen. J. Jackson, a Federal officer killed in the late war.

the late war.

Resolved, That James I. Wheeler, of Kentucky, now a cadet in the Naval Academy, and formerly in the military service of the so-called Confederate States, be dismissed from the Academy, and that no one shall be appointed as a cadet in the Naval or Military Academy of the United States, who shall have rendered aid or assistance to said

Referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.
Mr. Anthony presented a petition of certain naval officers who took part in the destruction of the Albemarle, asking for an allowance of prize money, Referred to the Naval Committee.

Mr. Anthony presented a petition asking that Congress enact that a copy of every public document published be sent to every ublic school in the country. Referred t Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. Sherman presented the petition of Ohio soldiers, asking for an equalization of bounty between those who enlisted early and those who enlisted late in the war. Referred to the Military Committee.

Mr. Cowan presented a petition praying for the retention of the Veteran Reserve Corps as a part of the United States Army.

Referred to the Military Committee. Mr. Sprague presented the memorial of manufacturers of sheet iron, bronze colors, salt, cigars, and other articles, stating that the import duty is so low as to operate against home manufactories, and asking for a remedy in increased import duties.

Mr. Sprague said he had introduced a resolution on this subject recently, merely as a resolution of inquiry; he had desired simply to give a voice of warning, which his own experience had taught him was necessary. He had no interest in any particular department of manufacture, but he knew that it was necessary to protect the manufacturing interests of this country. He did not believe that certain foreign na tions were entitled to the sympathy of the Senate, and when he saw petitions introduced here which came from men who were paid by parties in other countries, he could not help doubting the honesty of their purpose. All that he had to say of a pernature was that the criticisms and complaints of a certain New York paper and of a member of the other House was that it was plain to him the course of this newspaper, and of the party to which it be-longed, had been for four years inimical to this country.

Several petitions for a protective tariff were offered by Messrs. Howe and Cowan, and referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Wilson, from the Military Committee, reported favorably a bill in relation to the re-establishment of a National Military and Naval Asylum for the relief of totally disabled officers and soldiers of the United States Army.

Mr. Howard offered a joint resolution declaring that whereas it appears by the report of the Secretary of War, that Jeffer-son Davis and C.C. Clay are held in confinement, as having been concerned in the assassination of President Lincoln, and for the murder of Federal soldiers held as prisoners of war, therefore it be respectfully recommended that Jefferson Davis and Clement C. Clay be tried immediately, Objected to, and goes over till to-morrow.

Mr. Chandler called attention to a resolution offered by him on the 14th of December, 1864, directing the Secretary of State to make out a list of American vessels destroyed by British pirates in the employ of the rebel government. Since that time he said the bill had been presented, and the British government had refused to settle it. and not only so, but had refused to continue the controversy on the subject.

Mr. Chandler said the proper course for this country was absolute non-intercourse with Great Britain until this bill was settled. True, we might declare war and blockade British ports, and the world would applaud us, but non-intercourse was the best peaceful mode of redress. He believed that Mr. Seward understood that in the event of a war between Great Britain and any other nation, American pirates would destroy British commerce, just as in the ate war British pirates had destroyed American ships.

Mr. Chandler, at the conclusion of his remarks, offered a joint resolution declaring

Whereas, By the recent publication of the diplomatic correspondence this government and Great Britain are fully advised that the last-named government has refused to repair damages committed on American commerce through the agencies of her subjects during the late rebellion, and has declined to arbitrate and finally to further hear on the subject. Therefore nested to withdraw our Minister from the Court of St. James, and make proclamation of national non-intercourse, which is hereby declared to take effect after such proclamation shall have been issued.

Resolved, That the President is hereby re-

Mr. Chandler asked for the immediate consideration of the above, but Mr. Dixon objecting, it went over.

Mr. Nesmith offered a resolution instructing the Military Committee to inquire into the expediency of a law distributing brevet rank among those only who have served with distinction in the field, and who have been spoken of with commendation in official reports; also, to inquire into the expediency of providing for the appointment of a board to examine the qualifications of officers, which was passed.

Mr. Nye called up a bill to facilitate postal, commercial and military communication between the States, with an amendment from the Committee on Commerce providing that this bill shall not interfere with any contract now existing between the govern-ment and any railroad.

ment and any railroad.

Mr. Foot spoke in favor of the bill, and argued that Congress had a constitutional right to pass such a measure, quoting from several authorities on the subject. He held that the right to result that the right to regulate commerce between the several States belonged to Congress as much as the right to regulate intercourse between the United States and foreign nations, or between the United States and the Indian tribes.

Mr. Morrill (Me.), at the conclusion of Mr. Foot's speech, moved to take up the bill to regulate the elective franchise in the District of Columbia. The bill confers the right of suffrage upon all male persons of twentyone years and over who have resided one year in the District before the election, and prescribes the punishment for interfering with the exercise of the elective franchise in the case of any person or persons.

Mr. Davis (Ky.) said he proposed to debate the bill, and asked that it be postponed till to-morrow.

Mr. Trumbull (Ill.) said the Freedmen's Bureau bill was the order of the day for to-morrow, and he should insist upon taking it up at that time. Mr. Davis moved to postpone the bill until.

to-morrow. Carried. Mr. Wilson (Mass.) called up the bill to amend an act entitled "An act to incorperate a national military and naval asylum for the relief of the totally disabled officer and men of the volunteer forces of the United States.' United States."

It provides that Ulysses S. Grant, and others named in the bill, are hereby constituted and created a body corporate in the District of Columbia; that the said corporation shall have authority to procure for early use suitable places and sites for military asylums for all persons serving in the war of the rebellion, not provided for by existing laws, who have been or may here-after be disqualified from procuring their own maintenance and support by reason of wounds or sickness contracted in the

On motion of Mr, Grimes (Iowa), the bill was so amended as to make it apply exclusively to persons discharged from the

On motion of Mr. Wilson, the further consideration of the bill was postponed till to morrow, and the Senate, at 3.15 o'clock, proceeded to the consideration of Executive business, and soon after adjourned.

House Mr. Ancona (Pa.), offered a resolution, which was agreed to, that the Committee on Mileage be directed to bring in a bill fixing the rate of mileage so as to equalize the compensations of Senators and Representatives in Cengress. On motion of Mr. Kelley (Pa.) it was re-

The bill of the House to facilitate postal and military communication be-tween several States having been returned from the Senate, by request of the House, Mr. Washburne (Ill.) moved that the vote by which it passed be reconsidered, with a by which it passed be reconsidered, with a view to having it committed to the Committee on the Judiciary; and that they be authorized to report at any time.

the motion. Mr. Stevens (Pa.) introduced a resolution that the Committee on the Judiciary be in-structed to inquire into the expediency of so amending the act of January 24, 1865, relating to the test oath, as to allow attorneysat law to practise their profession without taking the said oath, on equal footing with all other professions. He said that the act in question was passed during the war, by which attorneys were prohibited from practising unless they could take an oath that they were not engaged in the rebellion. Since the war a large number of men engaged in the legal profession are trying to make a living, but are prevented from doing to by this law. He did not see why they should be subjected to a provision not applied to other professions, and hence the propesed

The House adopted the resolution. Yeas

As the charge was that public property, bought by the United States, had been stolen for their private advantage. wished before the falsehood had traveled further, to say to the House and the coun-try that at the time it appeared the Committee on Appropriations were considering the propriety of additional expenditures for the Executive mansion, and were making an examination as to the alleged disappearance of the property, and the result of it was that, after the examination of numerous witnesses, not a solitary article ever paid for by the money of the United States was found removed by the occupants of the was found removed. the White House. On the contrary, the only instance which may have furnished the foundation for the slander was, that one arti-cle used in the family, having been held by cle psed in the lamily, having been held by the widow as precious, being the object of President Lincoln's admiration, she asked that it might be taken away by her as private property. The matter was stated to the officer in charge. The Commissioner of Public Buildings reported to the Secretary of the Interior, who said he could not be-lieve any one could object to her taking the memento associated with the memory of her husband. It was worth about one hundred and fifty dollars. With this ex-ception not a solitary article had been re-moved, and he asked the Associated Press, and the manhood and magnanimity of the House not only to crush the slander, but the slanderer of a woman deprived, as she had been, of a husband murdered while in the service of his country.

Mr. Higby (Cal.) inquired in what paper Mr. Higby (Cal.) Inquired in what paper the article appeared.

Mr. Kasson replied that he heard of the slander through the New York Herald, which had noticed the statement in Ben Wood's paper, the Daily News. He wished further to say as to the charge of a large number of boxes having disappeared from the White House, that these boxes were small, and had been used by the lady of that mansion in which to enclose bonquets that mansion in which to enclose bouquets of flowers as presents to her friends, which she had a right to make.

Mr. Spaulding asked whether the injunc-

mr. Spatialing asked whether the injunc-tion of secrecy had been removed from the proceedings of the committee?

Mr. Kasson replied he had deemed that a member of the committee might make the statement, so that no credit might be given o the slander in the absence of truth.

Mr. Spaulding—Did the gentleman speak for the committee or for himself?

Mr. Kasson—I spoke for myself, but as a man to defend the reputation of a defendance of the spoke for myself.

Mr. Stevens—What the gentleman stated were his own conclusions, but I do not state what are the conclusions of the committee. Mr. Kasson—I presume the gentleman does not mean to say the result of the committee is different from what I state.

Mr. Stevens—I do not propose to say anything further than that the statement deemed improper, as the gentleman is not the voice of the committee.

Mr. Kasson—I made the statement as one person engaged in the examination.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill proposing to extend suffrage in the District of Columbia, by striking out the word "white" wherever it appears in the laws and ordinances.

Mr. Kasson (Iowa) replied to the speech

Mr. Kasson (Iowa) replied to the speech Mr. Kelley, heretofore made, arguing that the language of Mr. Madison, as quoted by the gentleman, did not allow the teaching that Congress Lave the right to regulate the qualifications of voters in the States. He repudiated this as the declaration of Mr. Madison. Mr. Kasson caused to be read from the Federalist the views of Mr. Madison to how that this dangaguage rower was son, to show that this dangerous power was not conceded to the general government. He repeated that it was never intended by Mr. Madison and the framers of the Con-stitution that Congress should prescribe the qualifications of voters for members of the Legislature or of Congress. Mr. Kelley (Pa.), in reply, quoted from the language of Mr. Madison to show that should the people of any State by any means be deprived of the right of suffrage, it was judged proper the evil should be remedied by the general government, etc.

Mr. Kasson replied that was the repetition of the assertion the gentleman made the other day, and he would say prima facie it was absurd to decide that the Constitution.

it was absurd to decide that the Constitution under the word "manner," had the right to prescribe the qualification of electors when it said the qualifications to vote for members of the House shall be those required for voting for members of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures.

Mr. Kelley promised to produce the authority to show that Mr. Madison did maintain that Congress has the right to determine the question. determine the question. Mr. Kasson was glad the issue had taken shape and was well defined.

Mr. Kelley replied-Then you take issue with Mr. Madison 7 Mr. Kasson asked why the gentleman quoted Madison unless he intended to inwith Mr. Madison?

dorse that authority?

Mr. Kelley said he was for the Constitution in all its length and breadth, as understood by Washington and Madison, and was for it with all the powers which they naintained were essential to its perpetuity. He was for the Constitution, with the power inhering in Congress to regulate suffrage so as to give to every citizen of the country the right to exercise it within the limitation of twenty-one years of age, and a citizen either by birth or naturalisation.

Mr. Kasson in reply, said that he was for the Constitution as it is, and he reasserted that Congress have no right to prescribe who in Iowa shall vote for members of the most numerous branch of the Legislature. If suffrage were made universal in some portions of the country, there would be no security for the permanence of our institu-Look at countries where mixed races have exercised the right of suffrage. tablishing it.
As to the District of Columbia, there are two classes of blacks—one the old residents and the other the new comers. Suffrage ought to be given to them by degress, based on intelligence. He was in favor of the Jeffersonian and Lincolnian principles, that suffrage should be based on intelligence and on the gallantry of those who fought for their country. He was opposed to the ex-tension of the right of suffrage to everybody, and he was opposed to the pending bill be-cause it did not exclude rebels, and because it proposed to give the right to the negroes who have recently immigrated to this District without any restriction. He believed the majority of this House were opposed to universal suffrage without restriction in the District of Columbia. Mr. Johnson (Pa.) rose to a point of order, saying the hall was very dark, especially in the galleries, and it ought to be lit up. The Chair said that was not a point of order.

Mr. Price (Iowa) replied to a portion of his colleague's (Mr. Kasson's) remarks, about negro suffrage in Iowa. That issue was distinctly made in that State, and it was carried by sixteen thousand majority.

Mr. Kasson responded, justifying his course in Iowa, and saying he was in favor of qualified negro suffrage, and declaring that he had nailed his colleague's misrepresentations to the counter. Mr. Price replied, saying he could bring proof in justification of all that he had as-

The colloquy was conducted with much spirit, involving political events in Iowa.
Without coming to a question on the bill before it, the House adjourned.
