the young and dashing Prince Jerome when he was in Philadelphia, sixty or seventy years ago, shining with lustre reflected from the brilliant career of his illustrious brother. The Prince married Miss Patterson, of Baltimore, returned home, broke with his wife at the dictation of his imperial brother, became King of Westphalia and finally shared in the general scattering of the Bonapartes after the battle of Waterloo. While in Philadelphia, the future King of Westphalia made his home at the old Indian Queen Hotel, in Fourth street, above Chestnut.

A resident of Mont-gomery county met the boy on the street in the charge and the street in the Duke to his house, where he was most hospitably entertained. They were kindly received and passed some days there. Soon afterwards, they set out on a tour of the United States, for which General Washington prepared, for their use, an Itinerary. They traveled on horseback, each of them carrying in a saddle bag what was required in clothes and other articles. They afterwards made an excursion to the Eastern States. They finally, left America in the early part of 1798. Montpensier died in England, in 1807, aged 32 years, and was buried in Westminster Abbey. The youngest brother, Beaujolais, an amiable youth who was universally beloved, died at Malta in 1808, ... The Duke of Orleans, after many vicissitudes, became King of France in 1830. Charles X having been compelled to relinquish the throne. He assumed the name of Louis Philippe. He was compelled to leave his throne and kingdom, in February, 1848, and take refuge in England, where he died in August, 1850, aged 77 years. When Mr. Cass, was U. S. Minister at Paris, Louis Philippe related to him the principal events of his life, and particularly the incidents of his sojourn and travels in America. These are given in an article prepared by Mr. Cass, and published in the Democratic Review of May, 1840. In this he says, 'The first quarters which the king occupied after reaching Philadelphia, were the lower part of a house belonging to the Rev. Mr. Marshall, and adjoining a church.' &c. The late Mr. Jas, Arrott, of this city, was then a youth, who had just before come here from Scotland. He was a frequent visitor at Mr. Marshall's house, and distinctly remembered the Duke of Orleans being there. In a letter addressed to his parents in Scotland, dated December 7th, 1796, he says-'Mr. Marshall has at this moment, lodging in his house and eating at his table, Philip Egalité, now Duke of Orleans, and the Count de Noailles, formerly two of the richest and most powerful noble men in Europe. What a striking example of the instability of all human events!' In speaking of Bourbons in Philadelphia we must not forget to mention that famous "Bourbon among us," Mr. Eleazar Williams, whose claims to the throne of France were so ably put forth in Putnam's Maga zine about twelve years ago. If Mr. Wil liams was a Bourbon, then we literally had one among us, for that much talked of but unfortunate pretender to the dauphinship paid us a visit at the BULLETIN office. Mr. Williams may have been a Bourbon for all we know to the contrary, at all events he was probably quite as good a man as though he had been one, and doubtless went as nearly direct to Heaven as any of them. Only a few years since we had a visit from a representative of English royalty in the person of the Prince of Wales. Albert Edward was domiciled at the Continental Hotel, and he smote the hearts of many of the fair 'young 'dames, who were afforded an opportunity of gazing upon the young Guelph, whose brow is to be encircled with the golden round of royalty, provided he ·lives long enough and nothing happens · to prevent it.

THE ARCH .- Mrs. John Drew repeated the performance of "Fortunio" at the Arch last evening, and a large audience gave full evidence of their appreciation of its success by constant applause. Mrs. Drew dressed as usual, charmingly; and her reading of the rythm was excellent. In this respect she appreciated the points herself, and made no attempt to instruct the audience as to where they came in. Mr. Robson would do well to imitate her in this respect, and so capital an actor as he need only give the matter due consideration. Mrs. Thayer, Mrs. Creese, Miss Reed and all the ladies, as well. To-night she appears in "An Actress By Daylight" and in the burlesque of "Mazeppa," the most delight-fully absurd play of this character we ever laughed at. Mr. Griffith will also appear in "Uncle Foozle" this evening. Next week Mr. J. S. There are some vil lainous and some very good things in this concoction from Cooper's novel. The absurdity of the plot is almost sublime, but the scenery, the ship and the final scene make amends. The way in which the closing fight, red fire, &c., are received by the "gods" shows that we cannot expect a millennial era of hatred of war so soon after the close of the great rebellion, but that the taste for the combative is still a prominent American characteristic. PASSING COUNTERFEIT NOTES.—The cases of Brown and Heckel, two men who were arrested, several weeks ago, on the charge of having been engaged in the business of passing counterfeit notes, have been before the Court for a couple of days past. At the time they were taken into custody there were several counterfeit notes found upon their persons, and in close proximity to the place where the arrest took place, a bundle of the same notes, containing several hun-dred dollars was also found. These notes were taken in charge by the officers, and on the trial were produced. Mr. Jenkins, prosecutor for the State, produced strong facts and arguments bearing on the case and against the defendants, while the opposing counsel, with equal zeal examined everything that wrs in favor of their client. After the evidence and arguments had closed, the judge charged thejury in an able and forcible manner, when they retired, but up to the present writing they have not reported. This is case of considerable importance and magnitude. For a long time past Camden and adjacent villages have been' completely adjacent villages have been completely flooded with spurious bills of various de-nominations, together with well exceuted specimens of fractional United States cur-rency, and it has been almost impossible to detect and bring to deserved punishment the men engaged in this unlawful business. efforts to ferret out the offenders, and thus relieve the public of a nuisance, but until they laid hands upon the above individuals they have not been very successful. It is believed that there is a large number engaged in the distribution of these notes still at large, for almost every day they are offered in the stores in Camden in change for some trifling article purchased.

HORSE CAR RAILBOADS,-Camden is de termined not to be behind in the matter of improvements, and will soon boast of having several lines of horse car railroads. A num ber of wealthy and influential gentlement have organized a company, for the purpose of constructing such a road from Cooper's Point to Kaighn's Point, for a charter to which they have already made application to the Legislature. This road will run through several of the most important streets, and cannot fail to be of great advan tage to the citizens, and tend in no small degree towards the advancement of the city itself in all those improvements which are necessary for its rapid increase. It will also be the initial in the construction of othe roads of a similar character, which will soon be commenced. The work on this one will be inaugurated at the early opening of Spring, and prosecuted with vigor until its completion.

These poor people are representative of all grades upon which poverty has laid the hand of misery, and were it not for the provision thus made by the city for them at night, they must suffer intolerably.

on the Camden ferry boats were displayed at half-mast, in consequence of the decease of Wm. Cooper, Esq., who had been for many years identified with the ferry inter-ests of Camden. TOKEN OF ESTEEM .- Yesterday the flags got up and staggered against the fence. Reaching a pool of water, he washed and was refreshed. He soon recovered strength and ran for the woods. After a long chase he was finally met by a man living in the neighborhood. Lee had drawn his knife and eld the man at bay till one of the guard arrived, when, presenting a revolver at Lee's head, he said, "I surrender to you, but not to this Hoosier." He was put on board a reight train, and reached the State Prison Friday night. He tried several times to himself out of the car on the way throw lown, saying that he wanted to kill himself. He had been in the Penitentiary before, and preferred death to a return. His guard was importuned, as also the Sheriff afterwards, to kill him. He was completely rushed, and in the deepest despondency and misery. When brought in to the Penitentiary the when brought in to the Pentlehilary the warden asked the name of the desperate man. "James Lee," was the answer. That officer said, "No, his name is Somers. He has been here before." Lee then gave the Sheriff a sketch of himself and his career. When a mere boy he stole seven hundred iollars, and was sent to the Penitentiary at Akron, where he belonged. His father, he said, was a brutal Irishman and abused his mother. He inherited his father's disposition to crime, and although he had made many attempts to reform, he could not re sist the temptation to do evil.

Conviction of the Murderer of Otero.

[From the N. Y. Herald, to-day.] The Trial of Jose Gonzales y Fernandez or the murder of Jose Garcia Otero, the 22d of November last, in the City Park, Brooklyn, was concluded yesterday in the Kings county Court of Oyer and Terminer. The Court opened at 10 o'clock A. M., when the defence put in their testimony; but there seemed to be nothing tangible in it, as the counsel did not prove anything contradicting the main evidence for the prosecution.
