The brig Otter, from Philadelphia, for Havre, was totally lost in Clew Bay, near Westport. A portion of her cargo will be saved.

The ship George Chaplain, from Liver-pool for Philadelphia, was off Queenstown, January 5, leaky; lost sails and had had her decks swept.

The fire at St. Catharine's Dock, London. was the most disastrous for years. The official estimate of the damage has not been ascertained, but the latest unofficial estimote ran as high as ±500,000. The fire was believed to have been caused by incendiaries. The Star says the Colonial office leaves the Jamaica Inquiry Commissioners quite free to conduct the inquiry in their own way. Crewe Hall, the residence of Lord Crewe, and one of the finest Elizabethan build-ings in England, has been destroyed by fire.

The loss is estimated at ±120.000. The London Times editorially urges ac celeration in the rate of repayment of the national debt, which, at the present rate, will not be extinguished till A. D. 2270, and quotes the preparations for the speedy re-payment of the American debt as an incentive.

The non-official portion of the Prussian Berliner Staats Anzeiger contains an article on the United States, in which it character izes the President's message as eminently conservative, and lays stress upon the con-tinued friendly relations between Prussia and the United States. The article points out the success of American institutions, and denounces the precipitate and unjust opinions which have been expressed by some Prussian journals, friendly to, but improperly regarded as Government organs. It is stated that the new Italian Minister of Finance will maintain the budget of his predecessor, with the exception of the army and navy estimates, which he will endeavour to reduce.

to reduce. The Spanish Correspondencia says the Government knows of the revolutionary projects of those who mistake forbearance for weakness, and in any case is certain of defeating them.

"The girl says they kept mostly to the woods and ravines, and all covert places, to avoid discovery, and gave their former home in Missouri a wide berth for fear of the many Mormons there. At length one of the sisters died from exposure and privation, and covering her up in the woods, they wanderedon. Soon another sister perished, and Louisa and her mother alone pursued their flight. At length Mrs. Black lay down, never to rise again. Louisa thinks it must have been in the vicinity of Cleveland that her mother died. Instead of asking any assistance, she wandered onwar-aione. She tells of being at Greenville, Pennsylvania, and of finally arriving at Middlesex, where she says she lay concealed for three days on the farm of Mr.

Edmondson. This was about the 9th of December. "She proceeds to relate that she was here found by a couple of horse thieves. and we next find this young girl, on the eve of Dec. 11, employed as an emissary by these rogues to ride off a horse that they had just stolen from Mr. Edmonson's field. She states that they instructed her to go to Oil City, and gave her directions how to get there; also, that one of them gave her two bills, a ten and a five, with which to procure subsistence for herself and horse on the route. When asked what she did with the money, she at first did not seem to recollect, and at length said she

'spent it,' but did not say for what. However, it is supposed she lost the money. These thieves told her that they would take another route to Oil

City, where they would meet and take charge of the horse; also, that their gang had their headquarters there, and that they had run off many a horse to Oil City. Tney furthermore boasted that they had stolen a span in Cleveland worth $400. They placed her on the horse and started her off, and that is the last she saw of them. Instead of taking the prescribed route. Louisachanged the programme by taking a route of her own choosing.

"She finally took refuge in the hay stack, where she was found badly frozen."

SOMETHING ELSE TO MAKE PAPER OF .-

A grass, called "Esparto grass," found in the south of Spain, and on the other side of the Mediterranean, in the north of Africa. is taking the place of cotton and rags in the manufacture of paper. It grows on waste lands, plants itself from the roots, is peren-nial and is improved by a careful proved nial, and is improved by a careful yearly thinning out. But it must have a very hot and dry climate. It has heretofore been used for fuel, for the manufacture of the heaviest and strongest ropes, and for mak-ing baskets and matting. Since its use in paper-making has been known, great quan-tities of it are exported to England at a very remunerative price. The annual export is now estimated at 30,000 tons.
