Congress to pass any such measure. Mr. Davis moved to strike out the section of the bill which, as amended, confirms the titles given by Gen. Sherman to Sea Island land for three years, and upon this motion he spoke at some length, asserting that the bill, as before the Senate, proposed to violate the constitutionally guaranteed right of property. Mr. McDougall made a point of order that his amendment was before the Senate. The Chair decided that Mr. Davis' amendment was in order.

The vote was taken on Mr. Davis' amendment, and it was decided in the negative. Mr. Davis offered an amendment to strike out the section confirming land titles under

Gen. Sherman's order. The Chair stated that this amendment had already been voted upon and rejected. Mr. Davis offered an amendment pro-resolution, saying there was no adequate restraint on the exclusion of races, and advocated the amendment of Mr. Lawrence, his colleague. Mr. Eliot (Mass.) offered an amendment to Mr. Lawrence's instructions, namely: 'That representatives and direct taxe shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within the Union according to their respective num-bers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed, and the elective franchise shall not be denied or abridged in any State on ac-count of race or color." He said he could not give to the resolution reported from the Committee on Reconstruction his support, because, it asserted, by implication; that a State has a right to disfranchise a large mass of its citizens, He did not want placed in the Constitution any language which seems to recognize that right—we could not serve God and mammon, and by such an admission we were tampering with a political sin. Another objection to the resolution was, it enabled a State, by making the right to vote depend on a property qualification, to exclude a large mass of men of both races, and a State might legislate in such a way as to convert itself from a republic to an oligarchy. Mr. Schenck (Ohio) moved the following amendment to Mr. Lawrence's instructions: "Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to the number of male citizens over twenty-one years of age, having the qualifications for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature. The Congress, at their first session after the ratification of this amendment by the required number of States, shall provide by law for the actual enumeration of such voters, and such actual enumeration shall be separately made in a general census of the population of all the States within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as Congress may by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every hundred thou-sand of the population, but each State shall have at least one representative."

Mr. Pike (Me.) opposed the resolution. It did not, he contended, compass the pur-pose for which it was intended. He therefore preferred the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio. By committing the resolution to the committee some of the objections would be removed. Mr. Kelley (Pa.) said that on the 10th of Henderson (Mo.) moved to adjourn. Mr. Trumbull (Ill.) hoped the Senate would not adjourn, but would get a vote this evening.

Mr. Henderson understood that Mr. Davis was going to speak for two hours, and he did not feel compelled to sit and listen so long. Mr. Anthony (R. I.) suggested that the Senate adjourn, with an understanding that a vote he taken on the bill to-morrow. The question of adjournment was decided as follows:

Yeas-Messrs. Buckalew, Davis, Foster, Guthrie, Henderson, Hendricks, McDougall, Norton, Riddle, Saulsbury, Sherman, Sprague, Stockton and Wright—14. Nays—Messrs.Anthony,Chandler,Clarke, Conness, Cragin, Cresswell, Dixon, Fessenden, Harris, Howard, Howe, Kirkwood, Lane (Ind.), Morgan, Morrill, Nye, Pomeroy, Stewart, Sumner, Trumbull, Wade and Wilson-22.

Mr. Davis was proceeding with his remarks, when Mr. Hendricks suggested that there could be no opposition to adjourn-ment, with an understanding that a vote would be taken to-morrow at three o'clock. Mr. Trumbull said he would not object, provided this was the understanding.

The Senate, at five o'clock, adjourned. House.—The House, resumed the consideration of the joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution.

Mr. Lawrence (Ohio) moved to recommit the resolution to the Committee on Reconstruction, with instructions to report an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which shall apportion direct taxes among the States according to the property in each, and which shall, second, apportion representatives among the States on the basis of adult male voters who shall be citizens of the United States.

He proceeded to explain his proposition The present mode of apportioning direct taxes and representation was unjust, and although the result of compromise, was wrong in principle and unequal in its prac-tical results. By his amendment they would make the voters in each State pre cisely equal. It was not propsed to with-hold suffrage from any class of people. The amendment did not design to interfere with the right of any State to say who shall or who shall not be voters. He wished one voter in South Carolina to count as one voter in Ohio, for the purpose of representation, and the crowning merit of his amendment was a perfect representative democ-racy for all purposes of representation, every voter being equally potential in our council. The original basis of representation on three-fifths of the slaves of the South having ceased, the mode itself should now pass away. Place not a tax on labor, but on property, which was the true basis of taxation

Mr. Shellabarger (Ohio) opposed the resolution, because it contemplates, provides, and in effect authorizes the States to wholly disfranchise an entire race of people, and that, too, whether that race be white or black, Saxon, Celtic or Caucasian, and without regard to the number or proporwhole the entire population of the States. It is a declaration to be made in the only great and free republic, that it is permis-sible and right to ideny to these races of men all their political rights, and that it is permissible to make them "hewers of wood and drawers of water" and mudsills of society provided only won do not make the society, provided only you do not seek to have these disfranchised races represented in your government. The moral teaching offends the sense and spirit of this age, and violates the fundamental principles of our government, and is intrinsically unjust. By being inserted in the Constitution, and being a companion of other clauses, it thereby construes these other clauses and lets down and repeals the free spirit and sense of the Constitution.

A colloquy ensued between Messrs, Shell-abarger and Conkling, Mr. Chandler rose to a point of order.

He further quoted from the debates in the convention to sustain his views

Mr. Bromwell (Ill.) said that the resolution reported by the Committee allowed its object to be defeated by leaving a door open to a property or other qualification, so that the man whom the amendment is designed to protect may be disfranchised. He indicated that he favored an amendment to ap portion representatives among the differen states in the same proportion of the whole number of the inhabitants of each State excluding Indians not taxed, as the number of male voters qualified to vote for representatives of the most numerous branch of the Legislature. He preferred that all the amendments be reported, in order that they might all come up together for discussion. Mr. Cook (III.), was satisfied that the re-solution reported from the Committee on Reconstruction was the only one which should be engrafted in the Constitution. The evils complained of could not be re-medied save by the adoption of the amendment. Mr. Marshall (Ill.), in the course of a few remarks, said he saw such indications after the election of Mr. Lincoln as to satisfy his mind that the dominant power desired civil war for the purpose of bringing on a revolution in our system. If any amendments to the Constitution were necessary this was not the time to make them.

Mr. Schenck (Ohio) caused to be read views formerly expressed by him in relation to slavery, and thanked God that he, with others, was now standing here in order to determine what provision should be made in the midst of the ruin which the South by their efforts at secession had produced. He showed the magnitude of the evil of unequal representation, and in reply to Mr. Marshall said, if the Republican party were revolutionary it was in the direction of freedom and equality, and it did not become a gentleman, improperly calling himself a Democrat, to object to this object. They had no sympathy with those miserable wretches of the South who, making them selves tyrants, deprived a large portion of the people of their rights. Now that an opportunity was afforded to remedy this evil, those who oppose it could do so only on the ground that it would solve the diffi culty and remove the negro from the arene of politics, and so their occupation would be gone. Mr. Schenck explained at length
