The jury to assess damages had run up the amount to $486,000. The tax payers would be astounded when they were made acquainted with the facts. At considerable labor he had carefully examined the property, and had compared the previous assessments on the Assessor's books with the award of damages. Mr. Van Cleve thought the thanks of the citizens of Philiadelphia, were due to Mr.

King for his industry in ferreting out these facts, but the original ordinance should not be repealed when Councils could reach the object in view by having the award of damages set aside. If the subject came before the Committee on Law, he would guarantee ane committee on Law, ne would guarantee a prompt and searching investigation.

Mr. Spering said it was not right that Mr. King's statement should go before the public without some explanation. He had no doubt that the awards were excessive, but in some cases it might be that the seeming excess might be due to the loose way we excess might be due to the loose way we have of assessing property in Philadelphia. That for and in consideration of the improvements to be made by said corporation in and upon said street, and the labor, care and expense to be laid out and expended by said corporation in and about the improving ing, adorning and beautifying the same, and in order that said corporation may be better enabled to carry out the purposes of this act, the right of eminent domain of the Commonwealth in and upon and over said street, is hereby granted and surrendered to said corporation.

The President—Broadstreet had better be created into a distinct municipality. Mr. Gray said some of the most estimable gentlemen in the city were desirous to improve Broad street, and make it what it should be, the handsomest street in the world. There was no railroad job in it, and the expenses would be borne by the gentlemen named in the bill. A bill similar to this one would be passed by the Legislature and as Councils had complained of the passage of bills without knowing their contents before, he had submitted this one, and asked that it be printed.

The ordinance making an appropriation of $887,811 97 to the Board of Controllers of Public Schools for 1866, was taken up.
Mr. Dillon moved to strike out all the items referring to the Boys' and Girls' High Schools. Not agreed to. Yeas 15, nays 26.
Mr. Simpson moved to strike out the appropriations to the Boys' High School.
Mr. S. in making the motion said that

Mr. S., in making the motion, said that he believed that a majority of the citizens were in favor of abolishing the school. We were in layor of abolishing the school. We tax the people to give them an equal system of education, but only about four per cent. of the pupils can be educated in the High School. Of those educated there, seventy per cent. were drones upon the community. He was in favor of encouraging the Gram-150 00

mar Schools, by raising the standard of education. Mr. Willits believed the institution had done a great amount of good. Many of the young men educated at the High School had become distinguished in many walks of life. Many years ago we had to obtain teachers from other States, but now our High Schools give us teachers that do a credit to the city.

Mr. Creswell desired Mr. Willits to name

the location of any of these teachers.

Mr. Willits replied, that he came from one of the outside wards, and was not very well acquainted with the teachers, but he could name at least a dozen that would not have been teachers but for the High school. thought it would be a serious thing to withdraw all support from the High School so Mr. Creswell said the High School costs a reat deal more than it should for the bene-it derived from it. He was in favor of raising the standard of education in the Grammar Schools, and abolishing the High Mr. Hancock believed that we should compel every child to attend school until a certain age. He thought the $27,000 asked for the High School, would be of more service if approximated. vice if appropriated to educate those who now never go to school. The city should give a fair English education and nothing Mr. Taylor said boys had been admitted to the school, and we are bound to make an appropriation to educate them.

Mr. Franciscus opposed the motion to strike out. He believed the High School to be an excellent institution and deserving of the support of Councils. He had graduate of that school in his employ, and he desired no better men. Mr. Billington was in favor of education, but he doubted the propriety of maintaining a college out of the money of the taxpayers. A good English education is all that can be expected from the public schools. Mr. Dillon said that the education in the public schools was becoming so superior to that obtained in the private schools, that the rich were monopolizing the schools and keeping out the poor.

Mr. Hetzell said the High School only Mr. Hetzell said the High School only gave the boys a smattering of learning, while it failed in giving them an education of a practical character. He was in favor of abolishing the High School, because the grammar schools would then be fostered, and the system of cramming a few pupils to get them in the High School, done away with

Mr. Evans opposed the amendment, and during his remarks read from the report of the Controllers of the Public Schools to show that the graduates of the High School were not drones, but were filling high and responsible positions in the various pursuits The motion to strike out the appropriation to the High School was lost-yeas 17, nays 25. Mr. Harrison moved to amend the bill Mr. Harrison lawyed to another the solution by adding 25 per cent, to the salaries of the teachers. Not agreed to—yeas 12, nays 27.

The Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society Boston, Jan. 25.—The thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery meeting of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society was held to-day, Edmund Quincy presiding. Among the resolutions offered was one to dissolve the society, which gave rise to a long discussion, in which William Lloyd Garrison presented an exposition of his views, saying that the nation had decreed, by its organic low, the utter extinction of slavery. The public sentiment was connected with and confirmed in its devotion to freedom, and the foot of war had added its crushing tread to the extinction of slavery. The word "anti-slavery" was no longer distinctive, for to-day the country was all anti-slavery.

The old reproach was taken away, and the uncompromising demand for freedom the uncompromising demand for freedom to the oppressed was no longer needed. The men and women of this society are fanatics, incendiaries or infidels no longer. They had not gone down to the millions, but the millions had come up to them. Hence-forth the members of the society were to enter on a new work; not anti-slavery work enter on a new work; not and sharely work, but the work of securing the education, elevation and political rights of property and the franchise to the negro man, and in this we would be supported by and act with the masses of the American people.
Wendell Phillips and others opposed the proposition to dissolve, and on a vote the resolution was defeated. The following new officers of the society were elected: President, John T. Sargeant; Vice President, Miss M. T. Severance; Corresponding Secretary, Charles K

Homicide Cases .- Says the N.Y. Herald: The trial of Pellicier, jointly indicted with Gonzales for the murder of Jose Garcia Otero, was brought to a close yesterday in the Brooklyn Court of Oyer and Terminer. The day's proceedings consisted of testi-mony for the defence, the summing up of el on both sides, and a charge from the counsel on both suces, and a charge from the presiding Judge. The jury, after an absence of one hour, returned into court and rendered a verdict of guilty. The prisoner exhibited no emotion on this amouncement being made. Gonzales and Pellicier will both be arraigned for sentence at 10 o'clock
